U. S. ANNOUNCES FARM LOANS TO START MONDAY

Name 9 of 12 Agents to Work Plan.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Farmers whose lands are not already mortgaged to the hilt, and who want to borrow up to $5,000 under the terms of the new farm financing bill, can present their pleas promptly next Monday morning in any of 9 out of 12 regional cities. Immediate loans are to be made, but in no case above 75 per cent of the present appraised value of the farm property—after deducting all debts now outstanding against it.

Henry Morgenthau Jr., chairman of the federal board, in full charge of the administration's program for easing the farmers' mortgage burdens, announced tonight that nine regional loan agents have been appointed. They will receive full instructions by Saturday and will be on the job in their districts Monday morning. Agents in the other three districts will be appointed soon.

Delay Signing of Bill.

The announcement had been planned to follow the actual signing of the farm relief-inflation bill by the President, but due to the absence from the city of Speaker Rainey the bill was not sent to the White House. Mr. Rainey, delayed by fog in a contemplated flight to the capital, will sign the bill tomorrow, as provided by law, and it will go to President Roosevelt's desk and be formally made into law at about noon.

The farm loan agents will make their headquarters in the offices of the federal land banks, of which there are 12. The agents have application blanks ready to be filled out, and are prepared, Mr. Morgenthau said, for a rush of business.

Mr. Morgenthau said that Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, has promised to hand him a check for $2,000,000 within an hour after President Roosevelt signs the bill. This will be the first advance of an authorized 200 million dollars for direct loans to farmers.

Refinancing Plan.

The other relief plans of Chairman Morgenthau, which are authorized in the new bill and contemplate the refinancing of up to three billion dollars of existing farm mortgages at lowered rates of interest and with temporary waiver of principal payments, will not go into effect as promptly as the direct loans, it was stated.

Mr. Morgenthau, however, revealed that he is planning to lose no time on this feature either, and he disclosed that he has invited 25 insurance companies holding much farm paper to send representatives to a conference with him next Monday morning.

Convert Farm Mortgages.

The farm board chairman will seek the insurance leaders' views on converting their present farm mortgage paper into the new 4 per cent bonds to be issued by the new farm credit administration created under the bill. It is expected the bonds will be issued beginning two weeks from now, and they will be made available also to mortgage banks, associations and others holding farm paper. Under the bill the administration may issue up to 2 billion in such bonds, with the interest guaranteed by the government.

The purpose of issuing such bonds is to reduce the interest rate being paid by the farmers, the banks exchanging mortgages for bonds being allowed to charge not to exceed 5 per cent interest.

Interest Cut 55 Millions.

Within 60 days the rate of interest on a billion dollars of federal land bank loans issued to 400,000 farmer borrowers will be reduced to 4½ per cent, resulting in a saving of $55,000,000 to the farmers during the five year period that the reduced rate will be in effect. The farmers will be required to make no payments on principal during the same period.

The loans permissible under the new act may not be in excess of 50 per cent of the appraised normal value of the land, plus 20 per cent of the insured improvements. This provision will require many holders of farm mortgages who wish to con-

RAIN DELUGES CITY 10 OUT OF LAST 11 DAYS

Rain and hail storms, accompanied by high winds, swept central Illinois and Indiana yesterday, causing floods that washed out bridges, overflowed farmlands and left thousands of dollars of damage in their wake and made certain still further delays in spring planting preparations, which are already two weeks behind schedule.

In Chicago also the rains continued, although without causing serious damage. Only one day this month, the 4th, has lacked its downpour, and there has been precipitation on 32 of the last 41 days. More is expected today, while temperatures will remain below normal, according to last night's forecast.

Heavy Excess of Rain.

In the four months of 1933 up to May 1 the excess of rainfall in Chicago above the normal was only .8 of an inch. Last night the excess above normal in eleven days of May was 2.25 inches, making a total excess of 3.05 inches of rain from Jan. 1 to date.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel pointed out that temperatures for March and April were about normal, a recession to subnormal points starting only in May.

A rain of cloudburst proportions, accompanied by high wind and hail, wrecked several buildings and flooded hundreds of homes yesterday in the section of Illinois around Hoopeston.

Washout Wrecks Train.

Rail and wire communications were interrupted and a washout on the Nickel Plate railway wrecked a train west of East Lynn, killing the brakeman. Nearly four inches of rain flooded the streets and isolated a part of Pontiac. The Vermilion river was six feet above normal and still rising.

A terrific rain and hail storm struck Champaign county and flooded high ways and farm lands. Guards were placed at the Big Four railroad bridge over the Salt Fork river, east of Urbana, where the heavy rain had endangered the wooden trestle.

The Mackinaw and Kickapoo rivers were out of their banks. In McLean county, it was reported, farmlands were inundated. There were numerous reports of telephone and light wires cast down by the winds in the central part of the state.

Floods in North Indiana.

Streams in the northern portion of Indiana were at flood stage or above after the excessive rainfall of the last 24 hours. Highway traffic on some of the main traffic arteries was blocked by high water and the state highway commissioner was advised that thousands of dollars in damage had been done to roads and bridges.

In Kokomo, Ind., ten families were driven from their homes by water from Pete Run and Wildcat creeks, swollen from a terrific rainstorm that lasted seven hours.

47 STATES' CROPS LATE

BY PAUL POTTER.

Spring planting is at least nine days behind schedule in every state in the Union except North Carolina, tabulations made yesterday by Nat C. Murray, veteran crop analyst of Chicago, reveal.

In Illinois the spring season already has been delayed fifteen days by the excessive rain and low temperatures, Mr. Murray's figures reveal. Conditions in producing areas of the north central west now parallel those of 1926 and 1927, when two late springs were experienced by farmers.

Still Time for Fair Crops.

In 1925, however, spring work was delayed more than it has been to date, considering the farming country of the nation, and in that year farmers were able to produce a fair season's crops, Murray finds. Based upon a period of ten years, Murray calculates that the present accumulation of rainfall in the corn belt has taken about 2 per cent from the farmers' "average chances" of producing a corn crop.

On the other hand, weather has been favorable for the winter wheat and hay crops in most sections of the nation's "bread basket" in the middle west. The drought which during the winter threatened the wheat crop, cutting it to the lowest possible yield since 1904, was broken April 20.

Truck gardeners in Cook county and nearby areas producing the bulk of Chicago's summer and fall vegetables yesterday bemoaned the tricks of the weather. Most of their fields were either pools of water or so heavily soaked as to make planting impossible for another week.

Italy Reveals How Girl Aided Officer as Spy

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 11.—How pretty 25 year old Camilla Agliardi of Brescia smuggled out facsimiles of secret Italian naval documents to agents in Jugo-Slavia and France by hiding them in framed paintings was revealed tonight. It was also announced that the sentence of death passed on the girl by a special military tribunal would probably be commuted to life imprisonment by King Victor Emmanuel.

Miss Agliardi thus escapes the fate of a noncommissioned naval officer, Ugo Traviglia, whose mistress she was and with whom she collaborated in selling Italian naval secrets. Traviglia, a Sicilian who was employed in the ministry of marine in Rome, was shot in the back by a firing squad at Fort Braschi near Rome at dawn today.

Condemned to Death.

The couple were condemned to death yesterday by the special tribunal on the charge of military espionage. The girl immediately appealed for mercy.

Traviglia's duties required him to carry valuable documents from one office to another in the ministry of marine. He found a way to photograph or copy them while going to and fro. Another duty, that of destroying waste paper at night, gave him opportunity to compile information and sell it to foreign agents.

His accomplice, who is interested in pictures and art, aided him by slipping the papers and documents in the casings of pictures and paintings which she sold.

Both confessed their guilt and according to tonight's communique Traviglia asked the pardon of the firing squad for the harm he had done his country. Traviglia, regretting his acts, also asked not to be tied or blindfolded but to be shot in the breast facing the rifles with open eyes. His request was denied.

Arrested Months Ago.

The arrest of the couple took place many months ago, but the police took much time to run down every angle in the case so as to be sure there were no others involved.

Coincident with the announcement of the shooting of Traviglia, newspapers carried a brief communique that Premier Mussolini received several functionaries of the Ovra—voluntary organization for repressing anti-Fascism—and praised them for their work.

Mussolini's thanks to the secret informers of Ovra are believed to be for their services in turning up recent activities of anti-Fascists which have resulted in numerous arrests in Rome, Florence, Milan, Genoa and other cities.

ROOSEVELT OFFERS BONUS ARMY JOBS IN FOREST CAMPS

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—It was revealed today that President Roosevelt will offer the bonus marchers, now assembling in Washington, jobs in the reforestation army.

The President today issued an executive order permitting 25,000 world war veterans with honorable discharges to be enlisted in the forest army, and enrollment will begin simultaneously with the opening of the convention of the B. E. F. in a few days.

Heeding reports that the leaders of the bonus army are chiefly Red agitators, more intent upon stirring up trouble than upon giving ready aid to needy veterans, the President conceived the plan of offering the men shelter and food in the forestation camps and healthy toil in the outdoors.

Idle Put to Work Digging Dandelions in Kansas Town

Clay Center, Kas., May 11.—(AP)—After looking around for relief work for which funds supplied by the federal government might be spent, Harry Stevens, city engineer, decided eradication of the inevitable dandelion was a worthy cause. He put 35 men to work digging them out of a cemetery. Fourteen wagon loads were hauled away. The next day the workers started digging the unsightly weed out of the city's park.

Jay Morse Ely Killed in Auto Crash in South

Jay Morse Ely, member of a family well known in Chicago and Lake Forest, died last night in a hospital at Donalsonville, Ga., of injuries received in an automobile accident. The accident occurred yesterday while Mr. Ely was motoring to Chicago from his home at Thomasville, Ga., to visit his mother. She is Mrs. C. Morse Ely of 1301 Astor street.

At noon Mr. Ely's car, driven by his chauffeur, was struck by a motor truck in the main street of Donalsonville, 60 miles west of Thomasville. Mr. Ely was taken from the wreckage unconscious.

Dies Eight Hours Later.

At the hospital it was found he had suffered head injuries, fractured ribs and a broken leg. He died eight hours later without regaining consciousness It was believed that a fractured rib penetrated one of his lungs. The chauffeur escaped unhurt.

Manager of Plantation.

Mr. Ely had resided in Chicago until five years ago, when he went to Thomasville to manage Inwood, the Ely family plantation there. He was a graduate of Yale university and served in the war as a first lieutenant.

He was 40 years old. Besides his widow, the former Josephine Hamline of Chicago, he is survived by three children, Miss Adrian Ely, who is with her mother in Thomasville; Miss Caryl Ely, a student at Stewart hall in Virginia, and Jay Morse Ely Jr., who is attending a preparatory school.

6 Kidnapers to Serve Total of 150 Years

Peoria, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—Convicted under the new federal kidnaping statute resulting from the Lindbergh case, six defendants charged with extortion were sentenced to serve a combined total of 150 years in federal prisons and pay fines aggregating $20,000 here today.

Within twenty minutes after a jury had found them guilty of sending ransom demands through the mails, Federal Judge Louis Fitzhenry sentenced Mike Talarico, Davenport, Ia.; Frank Delbono, and Joe Varsalona, Chicago, to 42 years in Leavenworth prison and fined each $5,000 and costs. Wesley Pritchett, Chicago, drew a 20 year sentence and $5,000 fine, while Heinie Lee, Davenport, and Carl Delbono, Chicago, got two years apiece.

Talarico, Delbono, and Varsalona, pictured in government evidence as principals in the abductions last fall of Adhemar Huughe of East Moline, and Fred Defilippi, Spring Valley, were given 20 years each for each letter mailed in connection with the kidnaping of Huughe, who was released in Peoria upon payment of more than $13,000 ransom.

Pritchett and Carlo Delbono were pointed to in the evidence as guards of Defilippi, who paid $5,000 for his release, while Lee accompanied Talarico and Varsolona when they made preliminary arrangements in Spring Valley for Defilippi's abduction.

The court said Carlo Delbono was "an unfortunate, weak, ignorant man," and told Lee: "You are getting your break and when you get out I am hoping you will go straight."

Tony Colombo of Chicago, who repudiated a sworn statement he had made about a typewriter seized in his Chicago barber shop, was called before Judge Fitzhenry and held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond for perjury.

CUT PRICE DAIRY HEAD KIDNAPED? TWO TALES TOLD

H. Thomas O'Hara, superintendent for the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., went to the detective bureau last night and reported that he had been kidnaped by some polite abductors early yesterday morning.

"I was lured out of my home at 1050 George street by a call stating that a boiler had blown up," he said. "That was about 3 a. m. Four men seized me and took me out by Joliet and questioned me about the milk business. Then they hauled me out around Indiana Harbor and released me at noon. I was treated very well and assured I wouldn't be killed or held for ransom."

Last night the police, skeptical of the story, went to O'Hara's home and interviewed his wife. She said that her husband went out at about 3 a. m., but was back at 9 a. m., when he left again to return at 11 a. m. This made matter quite complicated, so O'Hara was kept in custody.

The Meadowmoor company is an independent concern selling cut price milk. There have been rumors that Murray Humphries, racketeer, was a silent partner in it. Asked about this, O'Hara said he had never heard the name of Humphries mentioned.

Windshield Wiping Racket Operator Is Fined $200

William Brown, 24 years old, 1735 West 35th street, was fined $200 and costs yesterday by Judge John Gutknecht for operating a "windshield" racket. Brown engaged youths at 30 cents a night to mount the running boards of autos stopped by the traffic light at Michigan avenue and Lake street and wipe windshields. Two boys testified they earned as much as two dollars in tips in an evening which they were forced to turn over to Brown.

FIRST SALARY CHECKS WILL GO OUT TODAY

Banks Ready to Buy Tax Warrants.

Chicago teachers and other school board employés seemed assured of four months' pay in cash by next Wednesday as a result of action taken yesterday by Chicago bankers and concurred in by the school trustees. The first month's pay, for September, 1932, will be distributed today from school funds of $3,400,000 already on hand.

Under the plan, as announced by Mayor Kelly, a total of $16,000,000 is to be distributed to school employés covering back salaries, in addition to September, for the months of October, November, and December, 1932.

Addresses School Board.

Mayor Kelly's announcement was made at a meeting of the school board shortly after five new trustees, appointed Wednesday, had been inducted into office. He said that at a meeting earlier in the day the loop bankers had "practically agreed" to purchase $12,750,000 worth of 1932 school anticipation warrants.

This sum, the mayor said, added to the $3,400,000 on hand, would provide funds to pay school workers up to Jan. 1, 1933.

Must Pass Resolution.

The mayor informed the trustees that the $12,750,000 warrant sale is contingent upon the board passing a resolution which the bankers drafted at their meeting yesterday. This resolution provides:

1. That the school board agrees not to issue 1932 school warrants in excess of $22,100,000, which is 50 per cent of the estimated 1932 tax extension for school board purposes.

2. That after deducting $5,000,000 in warrants already sold not more than 75 per cent of the $17,100,000 balance, or $12,825,000, should be placed on sale. The resolution asked that the remaining $4,275,000 in warrants be held in reserve.

Vote to Pass Resolution.

The board, which had recessed after the induction ceremony, reconvened as an executive committee, and with a full attendance of eleven members for the first time this year voted informally to pass the resolution. Then President Orville J. Taylor called a special meeting for 11 o'clock this morning to ratify the committee action.

Plans for immediate payment of teachers today also were completed. Principals from each school were instructed to call at the board office this morning and obtain pay checks which they will take to the schools.

The bulk of the funds for the September pay day was obtained through the "Liberty loan" drive to pay teachers, headed by Henry P. Chandler. A total of $2,200,000 in tax warrants was sold by this committee. The rest of the pay fund was made up as follows: $992,000 in cash from the state distributive fund, $60,000 in cash which the school board had on hand, and $100,000 from back rents. Mayor Kelly assured the board that any shortage of funds needed to meet the September pay roll would be furnished by the city.

Receive Cash from State.

It was announced at the meeting that an additional $240,000 in cash had been received from the state distributive fund by County Superintendent Otto Aken. This will be made available for pay roll purposes at the special meeting today.

The plans for the warrant purchase were completed at a meeting at the Chicago club. Present were James R. Leavell of the Continental Illinois National bank, Melvin A. Traylor of the First National bank, Charles G. Dawes of the City National bank, Solomon Smith of the Northern Trust, and Howard Fenton of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

Text of Resolution.

The full resolution as dictated by the bankers and agreed to by Mayor Kelly said:

"Whereas, the amount of taxes that may be actually expended for 1932 for educational purposes of the board of education is not now definitely ascertainable, but it has been estimated that such amount will not be less than $44,200,000 [the levy was $49,000,000];

"Whereas, an effort is being made to sell 1932 educational tax anticipation warrants, and in order to facilitate such sale it is desirable that this board agree to certain further limitations as to the amount of such warrants that will be sold to the public;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, That this board of education, if consideration of purchases by any prospective purchaser of said 1932 warrants, does agree:

"1. That issuance of warrants will be limited to amount not in excess of $22,100,000, or 50 per cent of the amount of taxes estimated to be expended for the year of 1932, unless it is found that such extension exceed $44,200,000.

"2. That after deducting aggregate principal amount of such 1932 warrants that have heretofore been sold to the public that of the balance thereof there will not be issued and sold to the public an amount in excess of 75 per cent of such unsold warrants."

"Our efforts today are one step in the program to pay teachers and other city employés," Mayor Kelly said after explaining his plan. "The legislation passed in Springfield to force the collection of taxes has also been an important factor in bringing the cash for the teachers' pay day."

It was indicated yesterday by school trustees that the board probably would issue 1932 warrants in small amounts to pay back salaries for the months of February, March, and April.

Taylor Greets New Trustees.

The five new members of the school board were inducted into office and greeted in a speech of welcome by President Taylor.

The new members are James B. McCahey, president of the J. J. Dunn Coal company; Charles W. Fry, president of the Machinists' union; Paul Drymalski, president of the Polonia Coal company; Harry W. Solomon, hotel and property manager, and Joseph J. Salat, president of the Lawndale State bank.

"We welcome you to our midst," Mr. Taylor said. "You come at a time when we are facing a crisis—a crisis that calls for the exercise of scund judgment and untiring energy. Our teachers must be paid and our financial situation put on a sound basis. There are always two sides to every question, so whatever we do we will be criticized by some and praised by others. But we must not let adverse criticism deter us from using our best judgment. You will find your work on the board both vital and interesting."

Bogan Is Pleased.

Supt. William J. Bogan expressed elation over the announcement of the pay day plans.

"That is great," he said. "It will relieve much suffering among the school employés and will help to reestablish the morale of the teachers which has been at low ebb."

The school teachers and other board employés have not received any money for services rendered during the present school year. After the four months' salaries are paid the board will still owe its employés approximately $16,000,000.

The teachers have dramatized their plight with several noisy demonstrations in the loop and at the city hall. Another parade has been called for tomorrow afternoon by John M. Fewkes, a teacher at Tilden Technical High school.

ANOTHER COURT HANDS JOLT TO TAX OBJECTOR

Jarecki Orders Goldberg to Pay Up at Once.

Sol H. Goldberg, the first property holder to oppose the efforts of county authorities to collect overdue taxes under the Skarda tax receivership act, received a second blow yesterday when County Judge Jarecki overruled his objections to 1930 taxes of $36,466 upon the Loop-End building, 177 North State street. The court ordered that the delinquent taxes be paid in full in addition to a penalty of 12 per cent for a year's delay in payment.

On the day before Circuit Judge Harry Fisher ordered that the Loop-End building, which Goldberg leases, be placed in receivership under the Skarda act. This action permits County Treasurer McDonough to collect the income from rents until the taxes are paid. Tenants in the building were advised yesterday to pay their rents to the county treasurer until the taxes are paid in full.

Goldberg Plans Appeal.

Attorneys for Goldberg said they would appeal Judge Jarecki's decision overruling the objections to the tax bill. However, they must put up the full amount of the taxes with the county treasurer pending the appeal, and the county receiver, in the meantime, will collect all income from the building. Under these circumstances, an early payment of the taxes in full was probable, lawyers said.

The county court hearing on the Goldberg case occupied several hours, but Judge Jarecki said that such hearings hereafter would be confined to a few minutes.

"I have heard these arguments a hundred times and the evidence is always the same," he said. "In the future, attorneys must stipulate as to the evidence. There is no reason why these cases should take more than thirty minutes to hear."

Agree to Speed Up Cases.

A conference was held during the day between County Treasurer McDonough and State's Attorney Courtney. They agreed that the cases involving tax receiverships should be tried before Judge Jarecki because of his familiarity with tax cases and because speed in gaining receiverships would thus be achieved.

The state's attorney also promised that he would assign another lawyer from his staff to assist the county treasurer's legal force in preparing suits against tax delinquent properties. The treasurer has been hampered in his prosecutions under the Skarda act because he had only two attorneys to prepare suits, he said.

Five More Suits Filed.

Five suits seeking the appointment of county tax receivers were filed yesterday. A list of the defendants and the taxes owed follows:

Pine Grove Apartment hotel, 2816 Pine Grove avenue, $43,555.

Diversey hotel, 554 Diversey parkway, $48,335.

Assistant State's Attorney William Cushman presented two informations before Judge Jarecki asking why delinquent taxes had not been paid by the State-Lake Building corporation and the Canton Tea Gardens, Wabash avenue and Van Buren street. Back taxes on the first building are $308,046 and upon the second are $43,824.

The collection of delinquent taxes yesterday continued to increase. The payment of 1928 taxes totaled $90,674 in comparison with $19,110 on the previous day; the 1929 taxes collected were $71,926, in comparison with $53,225 the previous day; and the 1930 taxes collected totaled $61,323 in comparison with $28,334 collected the previous day.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Election June 5)

JUDGE WM. V. BROTHERS

Judge William V. Brothers, Republican, was indorsed by the Chicago Bar association primary. He ran in eighth place among the sitting judges who are seeking reëlection. He is a son of Judge David M. Brothers, also of the Circuit bench.

Judge Brothers [W.V.] is a native of Chicago born here forty-seven years ago, and he lives in Evanston. He attended public schools, Lake View High school, and was graduated from Northwestern University Law school in 1906. He was admitted to the bar in 1906. He entered into a law partnership with his father, which was ended when the senior Brothers was elected to the Circuit court in 1915.

The son joined his father on the bench in 1924, being elected to fill the Prindiville vacancy. At his inauguration one of the main speeches was made by Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, who has been a close friend of the Brothers family for more than forty-five years. Judge Brothers was reëlected in 1927.

He has been criticised for being more active in politics in Evanston than is held to comport with judicial office.

As chief justice of the Criminal court in 1928, and as chief justice of the Circuit court in 1932, lawyers say he has shown aggressiveness and capability. The Bar association report recommends his reëlection. It says of Judge Brothers [W. V.], "He has served eight years in the Circuit court to the general satisfaction of the bar. He is courteous, industrious, and even tempered."

WORLD'S BIGGEST X-RAY DEDICATED TO CANCER FIGHT

The largest X-ray machine in the world, capable of doing the work of $75,000,000 worth of radium, was formally dedicated last night at the Mercy hospital. The ceremonies were attended by many physicians and scientists interested in the field of cancer and its subjection by Roentgenic rays.

In his address Dr. Henry Schmitz, who presided, pointed out that 80 or 90 out of 100 patients could be cured of cancer if they did not delay examination and proper treatment. He also stated that, whereas with available supplies of radium only one patient could be treated every thirty hours, the new apparatus is capable of treating patients three times as fast and with better results, as the ray may be centralized directly upon the affected point.

Among other speakers were L. D. Moorhead, M. S., M. D., F. A. C. S., dean of the Loyola university school of medicine; the Very Rev. Robert M. Kelly, S. J., president of Loyola university; Dr. Jennings C. Litzenberg, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Minnesota; William D. Coolidge, director of the research laboratories of the General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, president of the Chicago Medical society. Among the guests were Sir Henry Wellcome of England.

This afternoon in the amphitheater there will be a blessing of the institute by Bishop Edward Hoban of Rockford and addresses by Dr. Moorhead and Dr. Schmitz.

Sanitary District Gives Employes 2 Weeks' Pay

Employés of the sanitary district yesterday received pay checks totaling $115,000, covering their salaries for the first two weeks of February. The money to meet the pay roll came from the collection of back taxes for 1928 and 1929.

JUDGE GENTZEL ADOPTS PLAN TO AID INVESTORS

Small Bondholder Given Court's Protection.

A plan designed to protect the interests of real estate bondholders during the reorganization of properties, following foreclosure proceedings, was initiated yesterday by Judge Robert E. Gentzel of the Superior court.

The judge announced that he would take jurisdiction of all liquidation trusts created as a result of real estate reorganization in his court and continue that jurisdiction through the entire life of the trust. He stated that this would allow him to revoke the trust, remove the trustee, or dictate changes in management of properties held in such trusts.

Open to Individual Appeals.

He said his court would be open to appeals from individual bondholders regarding the mismanagement of properties in which they hold an interest. A representative group of such bondholders, he said, could appeal to his court for a change in management of any property. The judge also said that he would make the names and addresses of bondholders available to all security holders in the same property.

Announcement of the new plan was made by Judge Gentzel at a hearing of a protest by a minority group of bondholders in the 20 East Delaware Building corporation against a foreclosure sale held on Dec. 1, 1932. At that time the trustee, the Chicago Title and Trust company, in conjunction with a bondholders' protective committee, obtained the property on a bid of $80,000.

Plan to Obtain Loan.

Under a reorganization proposal the trustee is to take over the management of the property for a term of 15 years. During this time a $100,000 loan which must be obtained to carry out the reorganization, is to be paid, all the bonds are to be retired, and other expenses of the foreclosure met.

Attorney Stephen Love, representing the dissenting group of holders of $250,000 worth of bonds, asked the court to withhold approval of the sale. He charged that the reorganization plan failed to give the bondholders a share in the management of the property. He cited similar reorganizations in which the properties were "milked" of their assets by trustees or managers.

The attorney also asked the judge to direct the trustee to turn over to his group a list of all the bondholders. He said that the bondholders could not take concerted action unless they were known to each other. He added that bondholders should be given a share of responsibility in the management of the apartment building.

Opposes Love's Request.

Attorney Sidney S. Gorham, counsel for the trustee, opposed Attorney Love's request. He asserted that the minority would use the names of the bondholders for "sharpshooting purposes." He asked immediate approval of the foreclosure sale.

Judge Gentzel then announced his new plan. "For a long time I have sought a method of protecting the small bondholder, who is usually the goat in foreclosure suits," the judge said. "Apparently the only way is for the court to take jurisdiction of the liquidation trusts created under its chancery acts.

"By this method judges may come or go, but the directing power of the courts retains control of properties, sees that taxes are paid, that mismanagement does not occur, and that the small bondholder is protected."

GOV. LANDON'S READY TO TALK AFTER ALL; OFFICE AID RELENTS

Topeka, Kas., May 11.—(AP)—Miss Beth Keller, stenographer in the office of Gov. Alf M. Landon, answered a long distance telephone call today and was asked if the governor was ready to talk.

"Is your party ready to talk?" she countered, not wishing to waste any of Gov. Landon's time.

BILL INCREASING BOMBER PENALTY PASSED BY HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—At the end of long debate, intended to concern increased penitentiary terms for bombers, but which developed into a political discussion, the house of representatives today passed the Adamowski bill raising the penalty for bombing, upon conviction, from one to 20 years to from ten years to life imprisonment.

Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] called the bill on third reading and asked its passage. William E. King [Rep., Chicago] took the floor to say that increasing penalties would not hasten imprisonment of bombers. Only efficient detection and prosecution could accomplish that end, he said, and quoted from an editorial in THE TRIBUNE in substantiation of his contention.

King read another TRIBUNE editorial criticising County Treasurer McDonough for alleged laxity in enforcing the Skarda tax receivership bill. This drew fire from Adamowski and other Democrats, who demanded that King stick to a discussion of the bombing bill. The roll was finally called and that bill was passed, 99 to 5.

2 NORTH SHORE COUPLES ROBBED OF CASH, JEWELS

Two couples were held up and robbed by two armed men late last night in front of the home of William O. Kurtz, 1229 Scott avenue, Wilmette, general manager of the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Nevins, 345 Elder lane, Winnetka. From the two men the bandits took the money they had in their pockets. The value of the property taken was set at about $2,000.

After attending a show downtown the two couples were on their way home in Mr. Nevins' car. He had stopped to let the Kurtzes out when the robbers, who were in an automobile, halted them and made their demands.

COAL MERCHANTS JUBILANT OVER DEFEATING T-N-T

Thank Kelly and Courtney for Ending Strike.

Members of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association held a jubilation meeting at the Midland club last night to celebrate their victory over the Trucking and Transportation agency, alleged racket of Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1.

On motion of the association's president, Norman R. Elmstrom, the membership voted a resolution of thanks to Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney. This was for their part in moving officials of the Chicago Coal Teamsters and Hikers' union to call off the strike declared Monday when the merchants' association posted the same wage scale the union had hitherto granted independent merchants who had "gone along" with the Humphries agency, otherwise known as the T-N-T.

Credit Both Officials.

With 187 coal yards reopened and 3,000 teamsters and hikers back at work, officers of the association assured the membership that large credit in their victory was due Mayor Kelly for banning T-N-T trucks from city hire and to the state's attorney for his edict that no legitimate merchant need longer pay tribute to the racketeers.

Points of public policy as well as a wage concession were won by the merchants when the union called off the strike. On the wage question the union agreed to grant the merchants' association the same $7.50 a day scale for drivers it had granted dealers who had lined up with the T-N-T. The merchants association had been paying $8

On public policy the union agreed to renounce the contract whereby the T-N-T claimed the exclusive right to negotiate all wage questions as well as to impose a boycott of the whole coal industry on any customer delinquent more than sixty days on his fuel bill.

Pledge Finish Fight.

While accepting the congratulations of the coal dealers with thanks, Mayor Kelly and Mr. Courtney indicated that the fight to purge unions and business associations from racketeering was far from finished. With reference to the T-N-T, for example, it is known this agency still dominates the building supply business to the same extent it did the coal business until the merchants rebelled.

Mr. Courtney made known that he had written Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, to confer with him in Chicago on a program to eradicate rackets from the unions here. Mr. Woll, the state's attorney said, has promised to call on him on his next visit here and invited the prosecutor to visit him in Washington, D. C.

"The idea behind this conference is to clean up the situation as it now exists," Mr. Courtney said. "I am assured that both the American and the Chicago Federations of Labor do not want to tolerate the dominance of the racketeers"

Saves Public Coal Increase.

With the coal strike settled, claims were made that the publicity turned on the T-N-T had saved the public 40 cents a ton on the price of coal. The explanation was that the demands of the T-N-T had become so pressing that an increase was believed unavoidable unless the T-N-T were driven out.

Formal ratification of the agreement for a $7.50 scale is expected next week. The merchants have one hurdle to surmount there, as the union has been embroiled in a factional fight, with the leadership of John Sheridan, his son, John Sheridan Jr., Milton Booth Jr., and Daniel Cain, apparently in the ascendancy.

A massmeetig of the union has been called for next Sunday at 814 West Harrison street to settle the dispute and iron out the differences between the Sheridan and Baker factions. Sheridan apparently has support of a majority of the membership, but Baker has possession of the union records.

Following Sunday's meeting, a joint committee of merchants and union members is expected to ratify the $7.50 scale and to discuss a possible reduction of five cents an hour in the pay of coal hikers. It will be the first direct meeting of employers and employés in the retail coal industry since the T-N-T stepped in in 1931. Both sides have evinced willingness to submit their disputes to arbitration.

CONSPIRACY CHARGES FILED AGAINST 22 IN IOWA MORTGAGE RIOT

Denison, Ia., May 11.—(AP)—Formal charges of conspiracy to hinder the process of law and contempt of court were filed today against 22 men allegedly involved in a farm foreclosure sale riot two weeks ago.

Prosecution of the men, all of whom were arrested by the Iowa National Guard, was started immediately after the lifting of martial law, which had been in effect here since April 28.

County Attorney Andrew Bell filed the charges in true informations before Judge Homer A. Fuller of Mount Ayr, after an aid to Maj. Gen. N. A. Kinley had read the proclamation officially ending military rule in the county.

HORNER PONDERS PLANS FOR NEW SALES TAX LAW

Hopes for One That Court Will Uphold.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—Whether the Illinois general assembly will be asked to pass a new state sales tax to replace the one killed by the Supreme court yesterday was under serious consideration by Gov. Horner and legislative leaders today.

The governor was swamped with telegrams from merchants and other retailers from all parts of the state asking information whether they are to consider the 3-cent law absolutely dead, whether it will be kept alive by a petition for rehearing, and whether they should refund to purchasers the taxes collected during the last forty days.

Study Court's Decision.

The governor made no formal statement on any of these subjects, but told newspaper men that he and his advisers are studying the high court's decision to determine whether the faults in the defunct law can be avoided in a new bill. He was seen in conference with Corporation Counsel Sexton of Chicago, who drafted the first bill, and Dewitt Billman, executive secretary of the legislative reference bureau, the state's expert on legislative matters.

"We are considering how a new bill can be drawn in conformity with the opinion of the Supreme court," he said informally to newspaper men.

"There is absolutely no justification for the reports that the administration will abandon the sales tax principle in its effort to raise funds for relief or that it will support a bill for a state income tax as an alternative."

Creation of Conscience Fund.

Before he made this statement, shortly after his return from the funeral services for Senator Clifford J. Vogelsang at Taylorville, the house of representatives recorded three items in the aftermath history of the crash of the 3-cent tax.

Representative Roland V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago] presented a bill for the creation of a state "conscience" fund, into which, for the purposes of relief, retailers might turn that part of their sales tax collections not returned to the customers who paid it.

Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] effected passage by the house of a joint resolution including a similar purpose and also the creation of a joint committee of the two houses to confer with Attorney General Kerner to determine whether a constitutional sales tax may be established and, if its conclusion is in the affirmative, to draft such a measure.

1 Per Cent Tax on Incomes.

Representative Roger F. Little [Rep., Champaign] introduced a state income tax bill modeled after the New York state law and imposing a 1 per cent tax on net income regardless of the size and without exemptions except for the salaries of government employés. Little said the bill was drawn several days ago by the legislative reference bureau at his request and was not the product of the Illinois Agricultural association.

In connection with the question whether the flaws pointed out by the Supreme court in the administration's first sales tax bill, it was recalled that in a typewritten statement Attorney General Kerner yesterday said that a bill could be drafted that would avoid those objections, indicating definitely that he has no thought of asking for a rehearing, a step which would cause retailers who have collected sales tax money to withhold refunds until that petition could be disposed of. In the same statement he urged repayments to purchasers at once.

Legislators Shy at New Bill.

But, regardless of the possibility of drafting a new bill that will be flawless constitutionally, assembly observers agree that the best outcome for such a measure would be its enactment by a mere majority vote postponing its effectiveness until July 1, instead of passage by two-thirds vote which would put it to work as soon as it is signed. Generally doubt is expressed also that even on the majority vote basis the assembly would create a tax higher than 1 per cent.

Members of both houses say that while the passage of the now defunct law was not subjected to widespread opposition because the amount imposed for relief purposes—or used downstate, possibly toward reduction of property taxes—the collection of the impost by retailers on everything purchased has made the home folks sales tax conscious.

Many members who voted for the first bill say that because of the treatment they have received in their districts since that time they would not again support a sales tax.

Stop Their Advertising.

Some of the members relate extremely disagreeable experiences during the last forty days, during which the tax was in force. One Democratic representative from a city of 18,000 in the northwestern section of the state is in the hotel business. As a result of his vote for the 3 per cent tax his hostelry was subjected to a boycott by his fellow townsmen.

Another Democratic member from the same general section edits and publishes a newspaper. It is reported that after the effects of the sales tax for which he voted began to sink in, local retailers began to withdraw their advertising and other fellow citizens canceled their subscriptions.

Dozens of members have been bombarded with protests, complaints and threats of retaliation when they are candidates again.

DISHWASHER HELD FOR BLAZE WRECKING TOWN OF ELLSWORTH

Ellsworth, Me., May 11.—(AP)—Charged with arson, Norman Moore, 25, said by authorities to have signed a confession that he set the fire which caused $2,000,000 damage and made 400 homeless Sunday night was being held prisoner by the National Guard at the jail today. Crowds gathered angrily outside.

Moore told officials, they said, that he started a fire in the Morang-Robinson storehouse about 9 o'clock Sunday night, igniting a pile of excelsior in the basement. He went to a stationery shop, less than two blocks away, awaiting the fire alarm.

He then went to his room above a restaurant where he was employed as a dishwasher. When that building was doomed, he assisted his employer in removing part of the furnishings. He later went about the streets lending aid here and there to householders struggling to save whatever they could. Leaving town Monday morning, he returned for a short time that afternoon to view the destruction. The remainder of the time, he said, he had been working at Hancock.

Moore has a reputation as an amateur wrestler and for several summers traveled about the state with carnivals.

ASSAILS PICKING OF DOCTORS FOR RELIEF FAMILIES

Dr. Raymond H. McPherson, secretary of the Jackson Park branch of the Chicago Medical society, criticized in an open letter yesterday the system under which medical care is provided for families on the relief rolls. He declared that a selected list of physicians is awarded all the medical work done for the Cook county bureau of public welfare, to the exclusion of all other private practitioners.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, said it is true that all medical care given families on relief is provided by a group of "civil service" physicians, who win that post by competitive examination. There are 56 such "civil service" physicians at present, he said, and President Emmett Whealan of the county board plans to add 20 to the list soon. They receive $1.50 for each call, he said.

The Chicago Medical society was requested to furnish a list of 20 needy physicians, Mr. Moss said, but after a cursory examination the list was discarded because of President Whealan's desire to get the best physicians, by competitive examination, rather than the most needy doctors.

GUARD FATHER AFTER DAUGHTER 14, HANGS SELF

Child Is Suicide After Auto Accident.

"I'll not be here more than 24 hours," Bode, who was near collapse, told the police. A guard was placed at his bedside in the Riverside home. Bode is secretary of the National Oxygen company, 29 South La Salle street.

Injures Boy, Hangs Self.

His daughter, a freshman at the Riverside-Brookfield High school, hanged herself in her bedroom yesterday morning. She had been hysterical, police learned, since the automobile she was driving struck and seriously injured a seven year old boy on Wednesday. The victim, Lawrence K. Dow, 42 Fairbanks road, Riverside, was in a semi-conscious condition yesterday at the Berwyn hospital. Physicians said that he had suffered a possible fracture of the skull.

Mrs. Bode discovered the body of her daughter after returning from visiting a neighbor. Marie had fashioned a rope of bed sheets, tied one end to the doorknob and tossed the other end over the door. A note left by the girl said: "It wasn't my fault, mother."

The girl had been in such a highly nervous state after the accident that her mother had told her to stay home from school and rest. Marie had not joined the family at breakfast and had said that she would rather remain in her room.

Companion Explains Crash.

The accident in which the Dow boy was injured occurred at Quincy street and Fairbanks road, Riverside. Miss Bode was driving Jeanne Ashley, 14 years old, 193 Quincy road, and Betty Richards, 15 years old, 237 Herrick road, home from school when the car struck the boy's bicycle.

"We were only going about 25 miles an hour," Miss Ashley said. "Marie slowed the car at the intersection, but the boy shot out in front of us. The accident was unavoidable."

The Bode girl was held by police for a short time following the accident when tire marks were found to indicate that the car had skidded 25 to 30 feet.

PATRONAGE PIE SOON WILL BE CUT, FARLEY TELLS 300 DEMOCRATS

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Postmaster General James A. Farley journeyed to Capitol hill tonight to pacify some 300 house Democrats who have been wandering a trifle irritably about when the patronage pie is going to be cut.

The meeting was described as one of complete harmony. Mr. Farley told his fellow Democrats that the gigantic task of filling some 150,000 jobs with deserving party men could not be completed in a day. He described the pressure upon himself and the administration and asked the representatives to bear with him just a while longer. At the close of the meeting all those present appeared placated. Everybody shook hands with Mr. Farley, and smilingly departed.

Outside the caucus room where the meeting was held, there were some, however, who appeared not so satisfied. Said one southern congressman:

"We don't know any more now than when we went in."

And there were others who agreed with him after they had time to think it over.

LIFE OF FRENCH CABINET AT STAKE OVER WAR DEBT

PARIS, May 11.—(AP)—The life of the French government may soon be at stake in the fight between Premier Daladier and former Premier Herriot over war debt payments to the United States.

A wide breech between them, their partisans said tonight, has been caused by Herriot's insistence that France pay the $19,261,432 installment overdue since Dec. 15, and the refusal of Daladier and the cabinet to do so under present circumstances.

Daladier, goaded by Herriot's insistence, now is represented in some quarters as willing to default the June 15 payment as the easiest means of avoiding being caught between Herriot's popularity and the chamber's stubbornness. Herriot's supporters indicated that they would carry the debt fight into the chamber.

STORES TO BEGIN REFUNDING SALES TAX CASH TODAY

Plan to Give What's Left to Relief Board.

Leading merchants and relief officials started a movement yesterday to turn over all unclaimed sales tax receipts to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for the relief of the idle. This followed the decision of Attorney General Kerner not to try to gain a rehearing for the sales tax law by the State Supreme court, which on Wednesday declared the law unconstitutional.

Refunding of sales tax money to purchasers will be started in several State street department stores, grocery chain stores and in many smaller retail establishments today. The taxes will be repaid upon the presentation of receipts dated between April 1 and May 10. Any tax money that remains after this refunding has been completed, over an average period of thirty days, will be turned over to the relief commission by those merchants who adopt that plan.

$6,290,000 Collected in State.

Statisticians of the relief commission estimated that a total of $6,300,000 was collected under the sales tax law throughout the state during the 40 day period between April 1 and May 10.—In Cook county they estimate that a total of $3,238,000 was collected.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief commission, said that he expected Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, to make an appeal to the merchants of the state to turn over all unclaimed sales tax receipts to relief agencies. This plan was understood to have received the approval of Gov. Horner.

D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, said that his store and other leading State street establishments have adopted a definite policy of refunding the sales tax to all purchasers who can present their receipts. This refunding will start today and end on June 15, he said. At that time all the remaining sales tax money will be turned over to the relief commission, he said.

"There has been some question as to how the refunding of the sales tax will be handled for charge accounts," Mr. Kelly said. "We have decided to make direct credits on the charge account statements, thus saving our customers the trouble of calling in person to get their refunds. Today we had very few inquiries about the refunding of the tax, a fact that we believe indicates the willingness of the public to carry the burden of relieving the idle."

Store Chain Adopts Same Plan.

F. H. Massmann, vice president of the National Tea company, announced that the sales tax will be refunded to the chain's customers beginning today and continuing until June 15, upon the presentation of receipts. After that date the unclaimed money will be turned over to the relief commission, he said. Many other retail organizations announced similar plans.

In connection with the relief emergency caused by the loss of revenue that was expected from the sales tax, Mr. Reynolds said that complete reports on the month of April, which were received yesterday, indicate the first net decrease in the number of families on the relief rolls in Cook county.

"The Unemployment Relief Service reports that it had 2,649 less families on its rolls at the end of April than at the beginning of that month," he said. "We consider this report, which is the first one showing a net decrease of families on the relief rolls, to be decidedly encouraging."

SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Albertina Charles, 19 years old, 7752 Essex avenue, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against William Charles Jr., 8042 Prairie avenue, son of a captain in the Chicago fire department. The bill, filed by Attorney Joseph Becker, charged that Charles beat his wife when she complained about her mother-in-law coming home intoxicated.

RELIEF "CLIENT" GETS JAIL FOR TIPSY DRIVING

Joseph Bailiff, after pleading for leniency on the ground that he was on the public relief rolls, was sentenced to twenty days in the house of Correction and fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green of the Traffic court on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

"Spending charity money for liquor doesn't arouse any sympathy from me," the judge declared. "Driving while drunk is bad enough in itself, but when the public is financing your dangerous spree you deserve the maximum penalty."

Buster Brock, 3829 South Michigan avenue, another Negro charged with driving while intoxicated, was sentenced to ninety days in the House of Correction and fined $100 and costs.

NAVAL STATIONS SLASH ORDERED TO REDUCE COST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Reduction of the naval training stations at Great Lakes, Ill., and Newport, R. I., to a bare maintenance status and curtailment of numerous other activities of the navy were ordered today by Secretary of the Navy Swanson as part of the program for saving 55 million dollars in the cost of the navy in the next fiscal year.

The status of the navy yards at Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, Philadelphia, and Charleston, which have long been regarded as superfluous and which have been retained only as a result of political influence, is left in doubt. Secretary Swanson said that the fate of these yards is dependent upon the extent of the program of construction of new naval craft that is adopted by congress. The inference is that these yards will be retained if sufficient construction is authorized to furnish justification for such action. House leaders say a 3-year building schedule calling for expenditure of 32 millions next year is contemplated.

Limit Set at 270 Million.

"The budget for the fiscal year 1934," said Secretary Swanson, in a letter to the service, "has been drastically reduced and the limit of 270 million dollars has been fixed as the sum total of naval appropriations which may be withdrawn from the treasury during the fiscal year. This reduction necessitates a drastic curtailment of activities, both ashore and afloat. In making reductions in expenditures on shore for the fiscal year 1934, the following general principles will govern:

"[A] The navy yards at New York, Norfolk, Mare Island, Puget Sound, and Cavite will be maintained for service to the fleet. The navy yard at Pearl Harbor will be continued as at present. The status of the navy yards at Portsmouth, Boston, Philadelphia, and Charleston, is dependent upon availability of funds for new construction. Additional instructions will be issued as soon as practicable.

"[B] Only such radio stations and direction finder stations as may be necessary to carry out the policy of the department will be retained.

Reduced to Minimum.

"[C] Expenditures on officers' quarters and barracks, for repairs, upkeep, and grounds, will be reduced to the absolute minimum.

"[D.] Restrict passenger automobiles and passenger carrying small boats; suspend replacement of trucks and reduce overhauls; suspend replacement of locomotives and railroad equipment; suspend replacements of all construction equipment for buildings and grounds, etc.; suspend alterations and improvements to buildings and structures, limit repair of vital items to a minimum and specific amount; suspend replacement of all plant facilities.

"[E.] Reduce recruiting stations, receiving ships and stations, training stations and schools to a minimum necessary to meet the requirements of the fleet.

"[F.] Close unnecessary commissary stores.

"[G.] Reduce activities at all navy reserve aviation bases to that required for voluntary training or close entirely to bare maintenance status.

"[H.] Concentrate independent purchasing, disbursing, and other activities in nearest navy yard or station to fullest extent possible.

Shore Activities Curbed.

"2. In conformity with the foregoing principles the status of the following shore activities will be changed as indicated:

"Naval training station, Newport, R. I., reduce to bare maintenance status. Maintain war college.

"Navy supply depot, Brooklyn, N. Y., reduce to bare maintenance status but maintain clothing factory.

"Motion picture operators' school, New York, close.

"Destroyer stores office, Philadelphia, transfer to San Diego or destroyer tenders.

Minimum at Lakehurst.

"Naval air station, Lakehurst, N. J., reduce activity to minimum required for Macon until her transfer to west coast and then to bare maintenance status.

"Naval training station, Norfolk, Va., skeletonize activities and trade schools.

"Marine base, Parris Island, S. C., to be retained as a training station for marines. Reduce activities to minimum required for present needs.

Reduction at New Orleans.

"Naval station, New Orleans, after transfer of district headquarters to Charleston, reduce personnel to bare maintenance status.

"District headquarters, 9th naval district, move to city of Chicago as soon as necessary office space can be made available.

"3. Naval reserve aviation bases at the following places will be maintained in reduced status for voluntary training: Brooklyn, N. Y.; Detroit, Mich.; Long Beach, Cal.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Oakland, Cal.; Miami, Fla.; Seattle, Wash.; Squantum, Mass.; and St. Louis, Mo.

"4. The following navy radio stations will be closed: Detailed instructions will be issued as to disposition of personnel and equipment in each case: Portsmouth, N. H.; Newport, R. I.; Lakehurst, N. J. [when decommissioned]; Cayey, Porto Rico; Brownsville, Tex.; Parris Island, S. C.; St. Thomas, Virgin islands; Port au Prince, Haiti; New Orleans, La.; Cordova, Alaska; Hilo, T. H.; Great Lakes, Ill. [when district headquarters are moved to Chicago]; Puerto Obaldia, Panama; and La Palma, Panama."

U. OF C. PUNISHES 26 STUDENTS FOR DORMITORY RAID

From unofficial sources it was learned yesterday that three men students of the University of Chicago had been suspended for the remainder of the year and twenty-three others put on probation, all for breaking into girls' dormitories April 3.

One of the probationers said that the episode was merely a prank and that the crowd had climbed fire escapes and entered Blake and Foster halls to get a little college spirit into the university. While on probation they are forbidden to join fraternities or to take part in certain other activities.

Eleven Women Terrorized in Drug Store Robbery

Eleven women customers in the Walgreen company drug store at 4309 Berkeley avenue looked on last night while two armed men compelled a clerk, Lawrence Hausen, to open a safe and surrender $125. One of the bandits had warned the women not to make any outcry, promising them they would not be molested if they were quiet. Hausen was struck on the head with a pistol butt by the second man when he was slow in opening the safe.

HOUSE ADDS 8 MILLIONS TO VETERANS' BILL

Bonus Advocates Force Increase.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Eight million dollars was added to the 1934 apporpriation for veterans today as the house staged a momentary revolt against the administration's economy program.

Consideration of the independent offices supply bill found the socalled house bonus bloc fighting every step of the way against curtailment of ex-service men's benefits as reflected in a veterans' administration appropriation cut from $1,037,000,000 to $577,728,000 by the Roosevelt budget bureau.

But they succeeded only in securing adoption of an amendment which raised the total for hospital facilities and field work of the veterans' bureau from $77,273,000 to $85,273,000. The additional eight millions, it was stated by Representative John McCormack [Dem., Mass.], sponsor of the amendment, will insure the future existence of the bureau's regional offices throughout the country.

Revolt Short Lived.

It was pointed out, however, that the eight millions will never be used unless President Roosevelt desires. Under the economy bill the President has discretionary authority to direct all operations of the veterans' administration by regulation and if he chooses to abandon the regional offices they will be abandoned and the eight millions impounded in the treasury.

The revolt threatened by the action on the McCormack amendment proved short lived, however. A moment later the house rejected by a vote of 119 to 76 an amendment which would have increased the veterans' pension fund by 150 million dollars. And from that time on, all amendments affecting the veterans' administration were voted down in turn.

Avert Vote on Bonus.

A vote on immediate payment of the bonus, which house leaders are seeking to avoid was narrowly averted on the floor during consideration of the supply measure. Representative Charles V. Truax [Dem., Ohio] offered an amendment under which ex-servicemen's adjusted service certificates would have been paid within one year. His amendment proposed to increase the service certificate fund from 50 millions to 2 billions 400 millions. The chair, however, ruled the amendment out of order.

Nor was the floor of the house the only scene of new bonus agitation today. Leaders of the ways and means committee together with Majority Leader Joseph W. Byrns and Budget Director Douglas, it was learned, have been conducting conferences at the White House regarding the bonus issue which threatens now to bob up to the embarrassment of the administration.

House Leaders Apprehensive.

It is understood that the conferees discussed the possibility that President Roosevelt, under the inflation rider to the farm bill, will have authority to pay the bonus now as a means of putting the inflated dollar in circulation. It was decided, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would not have power to accomplish this and that it will be necessary to enact legislation if the bonus is to be paid.

A bonus petition, sponsored by Representative Ernest Lundeen [Farmer-Labor, Minn.] has now been signed by twenty-seven members of the house.

The signatures of 145 members will force the Patman bonus bill from its ways and means committee pigeon hole and bring it to a ballot on the floor and house leaders are fearful that the necessary 145 signers will be found for the Ludeen petition.

Wins Another Victory.

President Roosevelt won another victory in the house when a motion to recommit the independent offices supply bill because of one of the economy riders it carries, was defeated. Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] objected to the provision giving the President authority to modify or cancel government contracts relating to transportation, and asked that the bill be returned to committee for deletion of that section.

Although the independent offices measure did not come to a vote tonight, defeat of the motion to recommit was a certain indication of its passage tomorrow. It carries a total appropriation of 606 million dollars for the various independent offices of the government and in addition a number of economy proposals suggested by the administration.

New U. S. Taxes in Prospect to Finance Public Works

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—New taxes to pay for the new deal were in preparation today as collaborators on the President's bill to control industry and finance a huge public works program gave the measure its final touches.

The bill is to go to the President tomorrow and, if approved by him, will be immediately introduced in congress.

Silent on Nature of Tax.

Participants in the drafting of the bill refused to divulge the exact nature of the tax to be proposed, but it is to be enough to pay the interest and meet sinking fund requirements on a public works bond issue that may run as high as 3 billion 300 million dollars.

From one source came a report that the tax would be a sales tax of some sort, probably on a limited list of commodities, and that it would be labeled the "unemployment tax."

From another source came the announcement that there would be a levy on pay rolls, but this was denied by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], one of those most active in the conference, and the trips to the White House to consult over the bill. An annual revenue of 220 millions was said to be the goal to be attained.

Californians Win Point.

In senate debate on the electricity tax Senators Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.] and William G. McAdoo [Dem., Cal.] defended the sanctity of Los Angeles' municipally owned system, which already has got a 22 million dollar loan from the R. F. C. Under the spell of their plea and with publicly owned power systems in their own states in mind the senators voted, 43 to 31, to exempt all such systems and their consumers from the electricity levy.

Tomorrow's troubles are to be even more significant, for the session will see Senator Huey Long [Rad., La.] pressing an amendment to raise the income surtaxes, confiscating all incomes of more than 1 million dollars a year, taking 95 per cent of all estates and gifts over 35 millions, confiscating all above 5 millions inherited by one person, and imposing a capital levy rising from 1 per cent per year on 1 million dollars to 100 per cent on all in excess of 100 million.

vert them into the new bonds to waive portions of the principal, for in many cases the loans on original mortgages are in excess of 50 per cent of the present value.

Apart from these refinancing operations are the loans, authorized up to 200 million dollars, which will be made by the farm credit administration direct to the farmers in amounts not to exceed $5,000.

These immediate loans at 5 per cent are intended by the measure to permit farmers to repay any present indebtedness, to give them working capital for farm operations or to provide them with funds to redeem or repurchase lands lost to them by foreclosures.

Limited to 75% Value.

In no case will the mortgages under this provision exceed 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm property, including prior mortgages or other indebtedness lying against the property. Farmers granted such loans will pay interest only for three years. After that annual principal installments will be assessed.

Of the nine agents already appointed to receive application for these loans only one of the Chicagoland states, Illinois, is included. Agents to serve Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin will be named later, but not in time to begin operations Monday.

C. W. Carson of Amarillo, Tex., was appointed as assistant to Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner, and will have charge of the direct loan provisions of the act.

Petition Glencoe Board to Reinstate Police Chief

A petition signed by 1,073 residents of Glencoe asking that Jacob Rudolph be reinstated as chief of the village police force was presented last night to President August Babize at a meeting of the village board. Rudolph, who had been chief of police for 16 years, was removed from office and made chief welfare officer of the village a month ago. Among the signers of the petition are Federal Judge James H Wilkerson and Brig. Gen. Abel Davis.

MEANS CLAIMS TO KNOW LINDY KIDNAPER GANG

Says Child Shown Him as Flyer's Son.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, now serving a term in Atlanta penitentiary because of his futile and expensive promise, a year ago, to return to Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, today told a jury here in the District Supreme court trying him for another angle to the case, that he knows who kidnaped the child.

When the hubbub had died down in the court room, he modified his statement; he said he knew the men who said they were the kidnapers.

Then he tossed into the record another sensational remark: That he had actually seen the Lindbergh baby on March 22, 1932, 21 days after its disappearance. But again he qualified. He had seen a blue eyed baby, about 18 months old. And the men who said they were the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby had told him this was the Lindbergh baby.

Puts Question Mark at End.

That was the way with all of today's testimony. A smashing declaration that caused everybody to gasp; a mild little question mark that made many smile. Another thunderous statement; another anti-climax, as Means sought to prove that he had not conspired with his co-defendant, Norman T. Whitaker, to steal $35,000 from Mrs. McLean. On the contrary, Means argued, it was always Mrs. McLean who had taken the initiative, had urged money on him, had been willing to take chances that he advised against.

For instance, he pointed out, "Mrs. McLean was willing to pay over $100,000 to the kidnapers without getting a positive identification, but I wanted to be sure."

With no hesitancy, but many a pause, Means brought the crowded courtroom down to Aiken, S. C., where Mrs. McLean was waiting in her "Cozy cottage" to receive the Lindbergh infant. Means himself was at the Commercial hotel. Early the morning of March 22, he said, he received a telephone call from Wellington Henderson.

Accuses One as Kidnaper.

Means claims that Henderson, whom he identified as head of the communist third internationale in this country with headquarters on Grand River avenue, Detroit, is one of the kidnapers.

Following the call, Means said, he dressed, rushed downstairs, into a side street, where in the back seat of an automobile he saw "a little baby, about 17 or 18 months old, with a knitted cap tied on with a ribbon under his chin. I could not see the hair. It was wearing a buff colored coat covering the dress, a pair of shoes and white stockings."

Henderson, Means maintains, waved a hand toward the child and announced, "That's the Lindbergh baby. We're ready to turn it over now if that house [Cozy cottage] is clear."

But Means said he wanted more proof. Henderson said he had the word of Irving Fenton. Fenton is the man whom Means identifies as the second of the kidnapers. He said he first met him through a "friend of his" at Atlanta penitentiary.

Means Still Unconvinced.

Even this didn't convince him. Means reiterated solemnly. He didn't want to impose on Mrs. McLean, he explained.

Means turned to the jury, spread the palms of his flabby hands toward heaven, and asked them: "How could I be sure it was the Lindbergh baby? I had never seen it."

Everybody sat silent a moment.

"At last I thought of a test. My son, who had gone from Washington to my sister's home in Concord, N. C., to spend the Easter holidays, had taken his motion picture camera with him. I decided to go to Concord, get the camera, return to Aiken, take movies of the baby, send them in by air mail to Col. Lindbergh."

When court adjourned today Means, figuratively, was on his way to Concord to get the camera. But the identification had not yet been made.

Whitaker Enters Picture.

Means said Whitaker came into the picture while Means was participating in negotiations for having the baby turned over to Mrs. McLean at Aiken, S. C.

According to Means, Whitaker had written he needed a loan. Means had replied he needed Whitaker. The two went to Aiken and met Henderson. Whitaker went to Mrs. McLean's cottage as a decoy "to look around at everything to see if Mrs. McLean had made preparations to grab the kidnapers."

Then came the early morning of March 22 and Means' meeting with the little baby.

Tomorrow he will take the stand and, presumably, carry the story from Aiken down to El Paso.

PROF. COMPTON IN CRASH; WIFE AND SON ARE INJURED

Auto Skids on Way to Iowa Lecture.

Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago and co-winner of the Nobel prize in 1927 for his researches on cosmic rays, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident on the Lincoln highway west of Sterling, Ill. His wife and son, Arthur H. Jr., 14 years old, who were with him, were cut and bruised.

Prof. Compton was en route to Cornell college at Mount Vernon, Ia., where he was to deliver an address in the evening. The car skidded on wet pavement and crashed into another driven by F. A. Schmidt of Fort Madison, Ia. The Compton car was demolished. Mrs. Compton was cut about the body and head, and a nail was driven through her left hand. The son suffered a lacerated scalp.

Mrs. Compton and the son were taken to the Morrison hospital at Morrison, Ill. When it was reported they would be able to return to Chicago today Prof. Compton continued to Mount Vernon, where he delivered his lecture. He will speak tonight at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

Two Boys on "Bike" Killed.

Two unidentified boys, one about 14 years old and the other about 12, were killed last night when they were struck by an automobile as they were riding on the same bicycle at Blue Island and Damen avenues. The driver of the car fled after the accident.

Witnesses told the police that the driver, bound northeast in Blue Island avenue, halted half a block away, turned around, rode back to the scene and, after pausing briefly to look at his victims, went south in Damen avenue. His license number was not taken and the police had no clews to his identity.

Two other deaths in Cook county raised the year's traffic toll to 321. The victim:

George Leshek, 5 years old, 1418 West 14th place, crushed beneath a truck at 14th place and Loomis boulevard. He died at the Mother Cabrini hospital.

Bernard Voss, 25 years old, 3835 North Sawyer avenue. Killed when an automobile he was driving crashed into a surface car in front of 2133 Milwaukee avenue.

ESCAPED INSANE PATIENT TO FACE ROBBERY TRIAL

Nicholas Evans, colored, will be arraigned in the Felony court today on a charge of robbery. He was arrested Tuesday by Policeman Chester Zobus after he had held up two employés of the Lake-Michigan building and forced them to surrender an overcoat and a suit of clothes.

Later he was identified by Otto Geahlaar, 25 West Huron street, and Bedford Williams, 400 Deming place, as a man who had held them up at the point of a pistol.

Evans is an escaped inmate of the Kankakee state hospital. His record shows that he was convicted of robbery March 20, 1931, and sentenced to the Joliet penitentiary. It further shows that on July 20, 1931, the sentence was vacated by Judge Joseph B. David and Evans was sentenced to the Manteno state hospital as an insane person. Sept. 28, 1931, Judge James J. Kelley vacated Judge David's sentence to Manteno and sent Evans to the Kankakee institution. He escaped there on April 1 of this year.

FIND BOY KILLER GUILTY; SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Escape's Electric Chair by Jury's Verdict.

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—Harry Murch, 16 years old, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury in Queens County court tonight. He stabbed William Bender, 12 years old, with a potato knife last Jan. 31 in a deserted house in Richmond Hill, Queens. The mandatory penalty is from twenty years to life imprisonment.

Although the evidence had been regarded as sufficient to have warranted a verdict of first degree, Mrs. Mary March, the mother, cried and screamed as she was being taken from the building.

Boy Calm to the End.

Her conduct was in contrast to that of her boy. Just as he had been calm while 13 year old Johnny Miller told the story that caused his conviction, he remained calm when the foreman of the jury pronounced the words "We find him guilty of murder in the second degree." Harry stood up and composedly answered the formal questions as to his name, age, place of birth, and former residence.

Elizabeth Bender, mother of the dead boy, declared that "despite our sorrow we did not want him to go to the chair."

Judge Praises Verdict.

"I am perfectly satisfied with your verdict," he said, "and I believe I speak for the district attorney's office that they, too, are satisfied. I am very happy it was not first degree murder. I would not want to send this boy to the electric chair."

He remanded Harry to the county jail for sentence on May 19.

Joseph Lonardo, assistant defense attorney, announced that an appeal would be taken to the Appellate division.

In summing up, Dana Wallace, defense attorney, had admitted that the defendant killed the Bender boy, but maintained that a convulsive movement on the part of the victim was responsible for the knife's having penetrated the heart.

"LIE DETECTOR" RECONCILES A WIFE AND MATE

The lie detector was given credit yesterday for the reconciliation of Mrs Gladys C. Clissold, 38 years old, 6306 North Nordica avenue, and her husband, Walter, in the Superior court of Judge Joseph Sabath. Attorney Harry X. Cole, who represented Mrs Clissold in her suit for separate maintenance, appeared yesterday and asked that the suit be dismissed.

"The couple separated after Mr. Clissold had made charges of infidelity against his wife," the attorney said. "Her willingness to be questioned in the lie detector convinced Mr. Clissold he had erred. They are living together again."

FIND BABY'S DEATH ACCIDENT.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the death of Charles Raleigh, 2 years old, crushed to death Wednesday in an elevator at St. Vincent's orphanage, 721 North La Salle street.

DESIGN FREIGHT PLANE TO CARRY 3 AUTOMOBILES

L. B. Manning, president of the board of American Airways, yesterday revealed that plans for a plane capable of carrying 12,000 pounds of freight, or three automobiles, on long flights are near completion at Wayne, Mich.

Construction of the plane, which he hopes will make a strong bid for the heavier pay loads thus far handled by railroads and buses, will be begun within a few months, he said.

The plane will be a two motored, all metal Stinson. It will have a cruising speed of 80 miles an hour, a top speed of 100 miles, and will be capable of making long hauls. Mr. Manning said the designs contemplate making it possible to drop three 4,000 pound automobiles or four smaller cars, fully assembled but for wheels, into the cabin. The wheels would be taken off before loading and hung on the side of the plane, he said.

ST. CHARLES LENS GENIUS' WIFE IS GIVEN DIVORCE

Mrs. John E. Mellish, wife of the astronomer and lens grinder of St. Charles, who was permitted to work outside the Kane county jail during a recent imprisonment in order to turn out work for observatories throughout the world, yesterday won a divorce before Judge John K. Newhall in the Kane county Circuit court. Mrs. Mellish was awarded custody of eight children.

Mellish, regarded by many as the foremost astronomical lens maker in America, was jailed Sept. 8, 1931. He was found guilty on statutory charges made by his wife and 15 year old daughter.

Scientists then pleaded that to keep Mellish in jail would be a blow to scientific progress. As a result he was permitted to go to his St. Charles workshop each day. Last April 13 he was paroled at the intervention of a friend in southern California, who took the lens maker to the west coast to work.

SAME GUN KILLS 2 SECRETARIES OF RICH RECLUSE

Mystery Adds to Mystery in Double Murder.

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—Mystery piled on mystery as the police today continued to seek the murderer of Edward Albert Ridley, aged and odd millionaire, who kept an office in a spooky subcellar in Allen street, and his secretary, Lee Weinstein.

The first point, which added an element of grim determination to the crime, was the discovery that the automatic pistol from which were fired the two shots that killed Herman Moench, Ridley's previous secretary, two years ago, had also been used last night to fire the seven shots that ended Weinstein's life.

The second point was the question of who died first—Ridley or his employé—for upon that will turn the disposition of $200,000 bequeathed to Weinstein in the will of the wealthy eccentric, which was deposited in the surrogate's office.

Which Died First?

The will parceled out specific bequests of $812,500 to Weinstein, nephews, and nieces of Ridley and some few others, and provided for a five year trust fund of the residue, after which it was to be divided among the children of the nephews and the nieces. It provided that if Ridley died first, $200,000 was to go to Weinstein, and if Weinstein died first, the $200,000 was to go to the residuary estate.

Since both men were found dead—Weinstein shot seven times and Ridley murdered with twenty-two blows from a heavy bookkeeper's stool, the question of which died first was uncertain.

In addition to the question whether Ridley of Weinstein died first, was still another problem, and that was the precise color of Ridley's flowing beard. Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, Inspector Francis J. Kear, and Medical Examiner Thomas Gonzales, all insisted that Ridely's beard had been of a reddish tinge, not due to blood stains.

May Have Dyed His Hair.

In Fanwood, N. J., where Ridley had lived for 35 years, every one who could remember seeing the old man insisted his beard was white. Persons who had seen him two years ago, at the time of Moench's death, also insisted that it was white.

Around this point arose the question of whether he dyed his whiskers recently, and if he had, why?

Police discovered that Ridley bore the reputation among his tenants of being a sort of Shylock, who lent much money on mortgages and insisted upon prompt and full payment.

According to George A. Lewis, attorney, who handled Ridley's legal business, the estate was worth about $2,000,000.

Miss Anna B. Ridley of Brooklyn, a cousin of the old man, said he had been acting queerly. Recently she had visited him.

"There's a woman detective in the next room," she quoted him as saying. "She is always shadowing me. I know they are after me. They are always after me."

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID tablets have an almost unbelievable record of success. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

CHARGES WASTE TO TRUSTEES OF U. OF ILLINOIS

Devine Lists $37,000 Loss by Mismanagement.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—Mismanagement of funds and gross extravagance were charged against trustees of the University of Illinois in the house today by Representative John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon].

For an hour the former minority leader gained the sort of strict attention rarely given a speech on the floor while he charged the trustees with having shown "glaring incompetency" in handling the college funds and offered as evidence a loss of $37,000 which still stands.

Devine reached his high point with a discussion of the home built for the president of the university, its furnishings and ornamental arboretum. The establishment cost $207,238.79, of which furniture and accessories was a $43,324.36 item.

Ash Trays Cost $10 Each.

Devine's colleagues murmured in astonishment when he read a partial list of the furnishings, revealing the purchase of such luxuries as $10 ash trays, and irons costing $150, a $3,338 dining room suite, an oriental rug for $1,575, and other furniture of like quality.

"The responsibility for this expenditure rests solely upon the trustees of the university and not upon the legislature," said Devine in explaining that the house was not built with state moneys. Instead, he declared, the trustees used a so-called "operating" or "contingent" fund, which originated from three sources: Students' tuition fees, sale of produce at the university, and endowments.

Devine said that this fund in normal times averaged one million dollars annually. "It properly belongs in the state treasury and should be administered by the state," he added, "not only for the purpose of preventing extravagant expenditures but for properly safeguarding the fund.

Tuition Fees Are Increased.

"The worth of a state university cannot be estimated by the amount of its appropriations or the size of its building. Lavish expenditure calls for constantly increasing revenues, as is attested by the fact that students' tuition has been increased approximately 40 per cent since the commencement of the construction of the president's new home.

Before he launched into the financial operation which lost the university $37,000, Devine read from the list of furniture bought by the trustees out of university funds for the new home of the president. In part it follows:

Pay N. Y. Architect $5,553.

"Another item of expenditure in connection with the president's new home taken from the controller's figures, that is worthy of mention is that of architecture in the amount of $17,557.79," continued Devine. "Of this sum, $5,553.56 was paid to a New York architect; the supervising architect's office at the University of Illinois received $9,893.44; plans and specifications were charged with $1,656.01 and miscellaneous with $454.78.

"The state of Illinois has an official state architect. The university has a department that teaches architecture. It is apparent that in the opinion of the trustees neither the graduates of the school nor the official state architects were competent to design this palatial home! What a recommendation for the graduates of the school of architecture of the University of Illinois!"

Turning next to the subject of finances, Devine harked back to the statement he made on the floor of the house on March 6 when he said that "it was rumored that were it not for the activity of one man there might have been a scandal in connection with the university that would have shaken the state.

"The following day I received a telegram from the president of the board of trustees saying that he would call a meeting of the board so that I might bring the facts to their attention; that if anything was wrong the people had a right to know it, etc.

"During the latter part of last year, information was given me in confidence that there had been gross laxity by the trustees in handling the university funds. I did not reply to the invitation I received from the board of trustees to appear before them for two reasons—first, because I wished to verify officially the information given me, and had I found it incorrect it was my intention to stand here and acknowledge the fact. Secondly, if the information was correct, then the trustees were wholly to blame and there was nothing to be gained by repeating it to them since it was something they already knew and something which they and their publicity department were not telling.

"My information was that there had been approximately one million dollars, secured only by a personal bond, deposited by the treasurer of the university in the Citizens bank, of which the treasurer was an officer, and that one member of the board of trustees insisted upon the funds being removed from that bank with the result that this bank was taken over by a second bank, the First National Bank of Champaign, and new arrangements made for the security of the university money and an officer of the second bank selected as treasurer of the board.

"I asked the controller of the university some questions concerning the management of this fund and shortly thereafter received a statement written by Sveinbjorn Johnson, professor at law and university counsel.

Attorney's Written Statement.

"According to Mr. Johnson's written statement, at the time when the second depository closed there were public funds belonging to the University of Illinois in the custody of the treasurer and deposited in such bank in the sum of $877,536.77. This fund was secured by a personal bond and also by collateral belonging to the second depository. After the collateral was sold and proceeds thereof applied to the payment of the amount due the university and after a percentage of a deposit credit was applied toward the payment of the university fund there remained unpaid, and still remains unpaid, the sum of $37,006.87.

"Continuing his statement, Mr. Johnson says, 'securing this amount there was, of course, left the surety bond, all the sureties being still alive and residing in the community. Under the economic conditions existing their assets had dwindled very substantially, but it is the opinion of the board as it is of the undersigned that the obligation of the bond will be in due time fully met by the sureties.'

"I have introduced a bill placing the university funds under the direction of the department of finance and I await with interest the onslaught of the university, its press agents, and partisans."

Denies Waste in Handling University of Illinois Funds

Champaign, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—Charges against the University of Illinois on the floor of the house of representatives by Representative John P. Devine today at Springfield were contested in a statement made here by Edward E. Barrett, president of the university board of trustees.

With regard to the statements reported made by Mr. Devine concerning the handling of university finances the following points should be made, according to Mr. Barrett:

"1. Mr. Devine states that every state officer, department and institution except the university gives an itemization of the appropriations asked, while the university demands its appropriation in lump sums contained under five heads.

"Reference to the appropriations made by the assembly in 1931 will show that appropriations were made for the charitable and penal institutions of the state and for the normal schools in precisely the same form and under the same headings as have been made and are requested for the university.

"The procedure in appropriating to the university is precisely that followed for the other state institutions in this respect and is in accordance with the state finance act.

Defends Board's Expenditures.

"2. The board of trustees of the University of Illinois is a corporation under the laws of the state. In that respect it differs from any other state institution or department. The board of trustees was clearly within its legal rights in utilizing funds to build a president's house. Expenditures for this purposes were carefully scrutinized and checked throughout in the same manner as followed in the case of any university buildings.

"There seems to be a certain lack of proportion in accusing the board of 'lavish expenditure' of $200,000 three years ago for a permanent improvement which will serve for a century or more, and overlooking the fact that this board has during the last two years left unexpended from the state appropriations made to it in 1931 the sum of $2,800,000, which on July 1 will revert to the state treasury.

"3. The board of trustees does not handle funds appropriated by the state to the university; such funds are disbursed for the university by state officials. Funds controlled directly by the board include receipts from fees, sales, federal funds, and gifts. It is true that in 1929 such funds in the hands of the university treasurer were secured by a personal bond.

"It is true that the bank of which the university treasurer was an officer was taken over by another bank, but the university lost not a single penny in the transaction. The resources of the treasurer's bondsmen were such that even though his bank had closed, the university would have been able fully to collect the amounts due it.

Covered by Personal Bond.

"4. Since that funds of the university in the hands of the treasurer have been protected, not only by surety bonds, but government securities equal in value to the amounts of public funds on deposit. The amount of $47,000 still due after the closing of the First National bank of Champaign represents chiefly funds held by the university in trust, which could not be covered by government securities. These are fully covered by personal bond, and furthermore will participate in further dividends on slow assets.

"5. The present treasurer of the university is Mr. Frank M. Gordon, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago. Funds in the hands of the university are deposited in this bank, and are covered both by a surety bond and by government bonds, the market value of which must equal the balance at all times.

"It is, therefore, not correct that university funds cannot be covered by collateral. They can be and they are. This was held legal in the case of the closing of the First National bank of Champaign, and the collateral was realized upon to the amount of $794,965."

JOIN TO GUARD CHICAGO'S MILK FROM STRIKERS

Dairymen, Sheriffs Act as "Holiday" Nears.

Precautions were taken yesterday by both organized dairymen and agencies of the law to safeguard the milk supply of Chicago and suburbs against violence when the milk strike in Wisconsin is called tomorrow.

The Chicago board of health issued orders that all milk should be barred from shipment to Chicago from any farming area where a strike is threatened or where a majority have voted to strike.

400 Deputies Ready.

Sheriff Tiffany of Lake county last night declared he had 400 deputies ready to handle any situation, while sheriffs of McHenry, Du Page, and Kane counties also reported extra precautions against violence or interference with regular deliveries of milk or other farm products.

At a meeting held last night at Poplar Grove, Boone county, members of the Poplar Grove and Capron locals of the Pure Milk association resolved that, in view of the rise in milk prices already obtained and the passage of the farm bill in Washington, they opposed "any action that might embarrass our leaders in their program for betterment of farm conditions." They were opposed to any strike.

Suppliers Seek to Continue.

In each of the 23 Wisconsin milk plants from which supplies come to Chicago a petition has been signed by a majority of the farmers and sent to Gov. A. G. Schmedeman stating they would not strike and wished to be issued licenses to keep their plants open. This action has been under way for a week in Walworth county.

Illinois dairymen even went so far as to make plans for sending their surplus quantities of milk not needed for Chicago into Wisconsin areas cut short by the strike if necessary. Recent reductions in milk consumption here have made available nearly 200,000 quarts of milk daily, now converted into cream or butter and the skim milk fed to hogs. This can be used in Wisconsin on a moment's call, the farmers declare.

Turn Down Strike Plea.

E. L. Bost, former steel worker who is heading a movement among McHenry county farmers to join the Wisconsin strike, has called a mass-meeting at Woodstock tonight. He wired officers of the Pure Milk association to be present. They wired back yesterday before leaving with a delegation of milk company officials for Washington that they "are too busy handling the farmers' problems in putting up the price of milk to attend such a meeting."

Throughout the milk area surrounding Chicago farmers yesterday were encouraged by the decision of Dr. Clyde L. King, arbitrator, to boost milk prices not later than May 15. Federal aid in making this price effective, along with a rise of 1 cent a quart in retail milk prices, was the object of the Washington junket of 11 Chicago dairymen yesterday. Five officers of the Pure Milk association and six officials of the Milk Council, Inc., comprised the delegation which will confer today with Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, head of the farm relief administration created this week in Washington.

"Chicago's milk supply will be kept safe and clean," declared the orders issued by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. "I sympathize with the dairy farmer and I have faith that the majority of them will continue to give us wholesome milk. But in past strikes the purity has been jeopardized by a disgruntled few. Under existing conditions our inspection force will not be adequate to cover the entire Chicago milk marketing area in so short a time as might be required by sporadic outbreaks."

HOME OF ILLINOIS U. PRESIDENT WITH 26 ROOMS COST $207,000

Champaign, Ill., May 11.—[Special.]—The president of the University of Illinois has been living in a new $207,000 home which today was criticized in the state assembly, for two years.

The house has 26 rooms including five in the basement. The style of the house is Georgian, which is in keeping with the architectural plans of other university buildings.

The house is used as official university headquarters. It has been used for entertainment of distinguished official guests to the university, for entertainment of faculty and students, for receptions of state-wide groups meeting at the state co-educational institution.

At the January, 1928, meeting of the board of trustees the provisions of the president's house were definitely agreed upon as the result of the report of a special committee. Work was done on the plans and on Nov. 15, 1929, preliminary plans and sketches for the house were presented to the board. On March 11, 1930, revised plans were submitted to the supervising architect authorized to take bids. The building of the house started the same year.

The "big five," composed of delegates of Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, and the United States, called the meeting in an attempt to get the conference back on the rails after a near wreck through the continued refusal of Germany to withdraw from its demands for arms equality.

TRUCKMAN ASKS $75,000 UNDER BOMBING THREAT

Philadelphia, Pa., May 11.—(AP)—An idle truck driver, said by police to have demanded $75,000 in a series of letters to the Pennsylvania railroad under threat of blowing up passenger trains, was arrested tonight.

Police said the man, who identified himself as James Vanderslice, 32, admitted writing the letters, but stated the threats were a "bluff" made to obtain funds to support his undernourished wife and three children.

The letters demanded the $75,000 in bills of specific denomination and asserted nitroglycerin would be used to wreck trains.

City and railroad detectives arrested Vanderslice as he reached into the rumble seat of a parked automobile which was supposed to contain the money demanded.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

COPPER MAGNATE LINKED TO BANKER MITCHELL CASE

Involved in Stock Deal; Jury Completed.

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—William D. Thornton, president of the Greene Cananea Copper company, was named today as the man to whom Charles E. Mitchell sold stock at a loss to avoid income tax payment for 1930.

This was the one important new phase of the government's case against the former chairman of the National City bank and the National City company to be disclosed at the first day of his trial. It was brought out by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie while he was questioning talesmen about their acquaintance with associates of Mr. Mitchell.

The jury was completed late today.

The banker was indicted for having shown illegally that he had no taxable income in 1929 and 1930 by making sales of stock and later repurchasing it. His net income in those two years, the government contends, was in excess of $4,000,000.

Swope May Testify.

It was to Mrs. Mitchell that enough National City bank stock was sold at a loss to wipe out the 1929 taxable income, the indictment states. The name of the man to whom Mr. Mitchell is charged with selling stock at a loss of $759,000 to absolve him from the payment of a tax on the income he reported in 1930 had been carefully concealed until Mr. Medalie named Mr. Thornton today, adding that probably he would be a witness.

Others who may testify, the prosecutor intimated, are Lindsay Bradford, Gerard Swope, Gordon Rentschler, Hugh Baker, James Stillman, Beekman Winthrop, Percy Rockefeller, Harry Mayer, Walter Adams, George B. Sweeney, Harrison M. Peterson, Edward Barrett, John R. Turnbull, and Lee Olwell.

When the selection of a jury began, the presence of Max D. Steuer as counsel was sufficient to lead one talesman to form a conclusion about the guilt or innocence of Mr. Mitchell.

It was John Barry, a white haired man, who objected to the presence of the widely known criminal trial lawyer.

Objects to Criminal Lawyer.

Mr. Steuer's question to him could not be heard, but his answer was that if Mr. Steuer was in the case there must be some difficulty. It would require something to remove that impression, he said, in answer to another inaudible question.

Mr. Medalie rose.

"Do you believe there is something wrong with the defendant?" he asked.

"Yes, that is what I meant," said Mr. Barry with a smile.

"Then I can't stand in the way," said Mr. Medalie, and Mr. Barry was excused.

MELLON INCOME TAX PAYMENTS ARE UNDER FIRE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Income tax returns filed by Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury and ambassador to Great Britain, are being investigated to determine whether he is guilty of practices similar to those which led to the indictment of Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City bank, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced today.

At the same time tax assessments and refunds which the treasury department allowed to steamship companies while Mellon was secretary are being made the subject of a separate inquiry by the department, according to the attorney general.

The income tax investigation grew out of charges that Mellon sold certain properties to a company which he and his family owns at a loss so that he could deduct the loss from his 1931 income. Thirty-one days later, according to the charges, Mellon bought the properties back.

These charges have been made publicly by Representative Louis T. McFadden [Rep., Pa.], but Attorney General Cummings said today they were not the only grounds for the investigation.

"Suggestions have come from many sources that we would do well to look into that matter," Cummings announced. "It is only fair to say that we look into all accusations that have some substance. We get many letters here from irresponsibles but we try to segregate them and follow up only those that seem to present good leads."

Asked whether he thought the Mellon charges presented good leads, the attorney general smilingly replied, "I have said that we are going to investigate them."

Mitchell, former head of the National City bank of New York was indicted by the department of justice on tax evasion charges because he sold securities to his wife to establish losses of income for tax purposes. It is not clear, however, that the Mellon case is strictly comparable.

The investigation will be kept in the hands of the department of justice and not turned over to the treasury, the attorney general said, but he added that he had not yet put the investigation in charge of any one agency. The investigation of the steamship tax cases under Mellon's administration has been going on in the bureau of investigation for more than three weeks.

FORTIFY AUTO; COUPLE DEFIES POLICE 12 HOURS

Michigan Motor Tax Stirs Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Mich., May 11.—[Special.]—After withstanding a twelve hour siege of Michigan state police in their chained, barricaded, and provisioned automobile "fortress" Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Moross of Mosherville capitulated this afternoon. Their unconditional surrender followed an assault on the windows of the car by five policemen. Thus ended the rebellion of the Morosses against state auto license fees.

The Morosses, members of prominent Michigan families and famous in Mosherville for their single handed crusading, were dragged from their car scratched, bruised, and utterly subdued. They were taken to the Jackson county jail and charged with driving with improper license plates and disorderly conduct.

Fight High Auto Tax.

The Morosses were halted last night by state police, who said they were driving with improper plates. Moross, who is 58 years old, said he was protesting the state's auto license fee, which is $21.45 for his car. They refused to surrender.

Instead, Moross and his wife, Katie, 56 years old, stocked their sedan with food, extra clothing, a stove and blankets. Moross chained down the hood and locked the doors.

Secure in his "fortress" Moross dared the police to get him or his wife. Police attached a towline to the car and brought it to a Jackson garage. The siege attracted a large crowd.

Their Car Their Castle.

For 12 hours police waited for the Morosses to leave their car. The Morosses showed no disposition to leave. They wrapped themselves in the blankets and dozed. Police grew impatient. They obtained a warrant and five policemen smashed the windows of the car. The police dodged a barrage of canned goods and arrested the Morosses.

Moross has been hanged in effigy on the lawn of his home for his activity in various crusades. Moross was once manager of the Indianapolis automobile races and is a friend of Henry Ford and Barney Oldfield, pioneer auto racer.

MRS. McGUIRE LEAVES $625,000 ESTATE TO KIN

The late Mrs. Frances M. McGuire, niece of John P. Hopkins, once mayor of Chicago, left the major portion of her $625,000 estate in trust to her seven children. This was disclosed yesterday when her will was filed and admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Mrs. McGuire died on May 3 in her home at 4822 Ellis avenue. She was 39 years old.

The will directed that one-third of the entire estate be given to Mrs. McGuire's husband, Walter G. McGuire, a physician. The remainder, after certain bequests are made, will be held in trust for her children, John, Walter, Mary, Frances, Josephine, Julia, and Patricia, until Walter, now 7 years old, reaches his majority. The property will then be divided equally among them.

The bequests mentioned in the will are $5,000 each to the Little Sisters of the Poor and the Catholic Charities of Chicago, and $10,000 to the Catholic bishop of Chicago for the benefit of the Quigley Preparatory seminary. Mrs. McGuire also directed in her will that $10,000 be given to the Rev. P. J. McGuire for "ten thousand masses for the repose of my soul."

Mrs. McGuire's husband, her father, John A. McCormick, an official of the Chicago Trust company, and the trust company were named co-executors of the will and co-trustees of the children's trust. The will was filed by Attorney S. T. Lawton.

GERMANY PERILS TARIFF TRUCE; ASKS MORE TIME

Must Study It Further, Berlin Announces.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—The tariff truce, which Norman H. Davis of the United States hoped to inaugurate today with the solemn agreement of the eight nations composing the world economic conference organizing committee tonight, appeared indefinitely delayed with even the bare chance that efforts to bring it about may fail altogether.

Instead of the assent, which had been confidently expected from Germany as early as yesterday noon, the reich government advised Mr. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, and the British government that it must study the armistice further before giving an answer.

Annoyance Is Expressed.

Officially, it was said that this course was perfectly proper, and that the Berlin government has every right to study the proposals as long as it wishes. It was understood that Germany in reply to requests for immediate action, said Great Britain and America have taken their time about evolving the formula and the reich could not be rushed into an agreement.

Privately some annoyance was expressed because a meeting of the organizing committee scheduled for this afternoon in order to receive the acceptances and pass the truce along to other governments of the world, had to be postponed indefinitely.

It was understood here that pressure will be brought to bear in Washington urging upon the German representatives in the United States the necessity for speedy action one way or the other.

Davis Stays in London.

At the British foreign office the hope was expressed that the agenda committee could meet Friday morning to approve the truce, but it was later realized that this would be impossible. Mr. Davis, although he is impatient to return to Geneva to attend the world disarmament conference, nevertheless made plans to mark time in London for several days if necessary.

In American quarters it was understood that acceptances had been received from every one of the eight governments except Germany and Italy. No difficulty, however, was anticipated as far as Italy is concerned.

Reasons for Delay.

BERLIN, May 11.—(AP)—Germany's delay in replying to the tariff truce proposal likely was caused by the reorganization campaign now under way in industrial and agricultural circles, it was pointed out tonight.

A tariff truce, in view of the currency regulations in effect here since the 1931 crisis, would be of little value to America's trading relations with Germany, unofficial circles explained, because the ministry of economics is able by notice to curtail the amount of foreign currency importers are permitted to buy. This is not a tariff measure in itself, but actually can be used to regulate imports.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN, ENVOY TO DENMARK, SAILS FOR COPENHAGEN

Mrs. Owen was accompanied by Miss Helen Lee Doherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, who will be her assistant, and her family, which consists of Miss Helen Hudd Owen, a daughter; Reginald Bryan Owen, a son, and Mrs. William Meeker, another daughter, and her three children, Ruth Owen Meeker, Helen Reginald Meeker, and Katherine Windsor Meeker.

RUSSIA TEARS UP MANCHURIAN RAIL PACT WITH CHINA

Says Nanking Is 'Out' and Intends to Sell Road.

MOSCOW, May 11.—(AP)—Russia told the Chinese Nationalist government tonight that China has no rights in the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria and announced its intention of selling the line to the new state of Manchukuo.

Advising the Nanking régime directly that the Peiping-Mukden treaties of 1924 governing the joint operation of the Chinese Eastern by soviet Russia and China are considered void, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff revealed the decision to sell the line to keep peace in the far east.

Under the Peiping-Mukden agreements the C. E. R. was supposed to revert to China gratis in 1956 and at any time before that year the the Chinese republic was given the right to buy the road from Moscow.

Chinese Claims Stated.

Only yesterday the Chinese ambassador to Russia, Dr. W. W. Yen, published a memorandum he had handed Litvinoff directing attention to China's claims to the road in view of the recent controversy between Russia, Japan, and Manchukuo over the alleged interference with operations of the line near the Siberian border.

The Russian commissar made the announcement in an interview with the Tass [Russian] News agency. Litvinoff's statement is interesting as the first open expression of the soviet policy regarding the status of the Chinese Eastern since Japan occupied Manchuria.

Until only a short time ago the principle was enunciated unofficially but nevertheless authoritatively that Moscow did not intend to relinquish its interest in the railroad. Reports of sale negotiations had aroused protest from the Chinese government, which maintained that the occupation of Manchuria did not affect China's rights to the road.

Says China Is "Out."

Litvinoff declared that the Nanking government had ceased to be a partner in the C. E. R. eighteen months ago, after Japan occupied Manchuria, because it had been unable to fulfill its obligations under the Peiping-Mukden treaties.

"The nonaccomplishment of its obligations for eighteen months deprives the Nanking government of any formal and moral right to refer to these agreements," Litvinoff said. "It seems to me that these circumstances are quite sufficient to prove the baselessness of any possible claim by the Nanking government in the case of the sale of the railway."

Litvinoff revealed that he had discussed the question of the sale with Ambassador Ota of Japan on May 2 as a means of settling Russia's controversy with Manchukuan authorities which "threatened to complicate our relations with Manchukuo as well as with Japan."

Two Planes "Bomb" Peiping.

PEIPING, China, May 12 (Friday).—(AP)—Another unidentified airplane flew over Peiping today scattering handbills similar to those dropped by a bombing plane, supposedly Japanese, yesterday. Chinese anti-aircraft guns on the city walls and machine gunners at police headquarters went into action, but ineffectively.

The aviator who flew over yesterday dropped leaflets addressed to "fellow Asiatics," warning that Peiping and its sister city of Tientsin, where about 2,500 Americans live, would be besieged if the Chinese continued their reristance in North China.

AN EYEWITNESS STORY OF BATTLE IN JUNGLE WAR

Tribune Man Shot At in Mudhole.

Here is the second of a series of stories from The Tribune's correspondent in the Gran Chaco where Paraguay and Bolivia are at war. The Tribune man is the first neutral correspondent to be permitted to visit the war front.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNOZ, Chaco, Bolivia, April 3.—[By courier and mail to La Paz, Bolivia.]—A passport handed to me by Gen. Hans Kundt, German commander of the Bolivian armies, enabled me to be the first foreign correspondent to penetrate freely the heart of the Chaco war zone.

Armed with his credentials, I visited the entire section of the front near Nanawa, the Verdun of the Chaco, to view a battle and to get shot at for several hours in a mudhole. It is near Nanawa that the Bolivian and Paraguayan armies are locked in a battle which may determine the ultimate winner of the war.

Enemies 100 Feet Apart.

Modern trench methods of warfare have been adopted by both sides. At some parts of the Nanawa front, the enemy forces are less than 100 feet apart. Although the trenches are crudely built and uncomfortable, the sanitary conditions are good.

I received my Chaco baptism of fire in a trench on the right wing of the Nanawa sector. The officer who accompanied me pointed out that my height had probably drawn the bullets of the Paraguayans. We burrowed down into a mudhole and stayed there for several hours while machine gun bullets kicked up the earth about us. Finally there was a lull and we departed for other places.

The Paraguayans appeared to be well supplied with ammunition. They certainly did not attempt to economize during the hours of my visit. Their aim, however, was not particularly deadly. The Bolivians used their guns sparingly, apparently under orders to conserve their ammunition.

Fort Mass of Ruins.

By climbing to the top of a big tree, I ascertained, however, that the Bolivian artillery fire had been extremely accurate in its bombardment of Fort Nanawa. The fort, less than 1,000 yards away, looked to be nothing but a mass of ruins. Six or seven badly wrecked straw huts were nearby.

(Fort Nanawa itself has been abandoned by the Paraguayans, who have fallen back to Fort Ayala, which, technically speaking, is a sort of adjunct of Nanawa, although the names of the two forts are used interchangeably.)

The morale of the Bolivian troops appeared to be high. They exhibit complete trust in the leadership of Gen. Kundt.

Buck Private's Utopia.

Strange as it may seem, Bolivian officers and men live about equally well at the front. This means that they exist on the same low standards of comfort. When there is no bread for the men there is no bread for the officers. In other words, it is a buck private's Utopia.

Frequently sugar does not reach the front lines for several days, in which case "hievra mate," a sort of native tea imported from Argentina, is substituted. Often corn replaces bread because of a lack of flour. The gap in the stream of supplies is due to the great distance to the supply bases and the bad weather conditions.

It was during my stay at the front that the important battle of Gondra began. The Bolivian division was concealed near Gondra in particularly thick jungle. The troops were well camouflaged and equipped with machine guns. Picked infantry companies stood ready to advance with fixed bayonets.

The Bolivians awaited the enemy's attack and let them advance almost in front of their lines. Then, with the Paraguayans at the 20 yard mark, the Bolivian guns opened up, raking the Paraguayan lines with a terrific fire. This hail of bullets broke the back of the Paraguayan advance and caused heavy casualties. The battle was hardly 15 minutes old before about 120 Paraguayan bodies were strewn over the battlefield. Bolivian casualties were much lighter.

Prisoners Are Satisfied.

Before leaving the front I talked with Paraguayan prisoners taken in the fighting at Campo Jordan and Gondra. They were being held temporarily at Saavedra.

The prisoners declared they were treated well and received good food. One soldier, Corp. Alberto Salinas of the Second Paraguayan infantry regiment, said he had fought in the Chaco since last July and had seen action in the big Paraguayan offensives against Pitiantura, Boqueron, Castillos, Fernandez, and Campo Jordan. He was taken prisoner on March 11 when his company received the order to retreat toward Fort Gondra.

Corp. Salinas said there are many foreigners in the Paraguayan army.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

7,500 SPEAKEASIES, 25,000 JOBS HIT BY DETROIT RUM ORDER?

Detroit, Mich., May 11.—[Special.]—Supt. of Police John P. Smith late this afternoon ordered the closing of every "blind pig" in this city. Inspectors of the 15 districts were instructed to see that they all remain closed. It is estimated 7,500 places and 25,000 persons are affected by this order.

"Now that people have beer," Chief Smith said, "I believe they will be willing to help us handle the blind pig situation. I think we can get convictions when we take cases to court."

Chief Smith added that the city gets 95 per cent of the beer license fees, and he had been told many speakeasies had closed, fearing lack of profit.

BOTH SIDES FILE SLATES OF 50 TO DECIDE REPEAL

Preparations for the campaign to elect repeal delegates in Illinois June 5 and in Indiana June 6 to the conventions of the two states, which will ratify or reject the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th, started yesterday. Nominating petitions were filed by both repealists and drys at Springfield for their tickets of 50 candidates as delegates.

The repeal ticket petitions were placed with the secretary of state by Joseph Higgins, representing the Democratic organization. They contained 62,500 signatures. Only 25,000 were required. Both Republican and Democratic parties are represented on the repeal ticket, which was made a joint slate to remove the issue from partisan politics.

The anti-repeal ticket was filed by representatives of the dry organizations. The petition was in a bound volume containing 100,000 signatures. Midnight was the deadline for filing. There was no indication that any petition not supported by the major bodies would be filed.

With the contest narrowed to two slates of 50 candidates each a straight vote on the issue of repeal and the use of circles above the opposing tickets is assured.

500 ROADHOUSES IN COUNTY; ONLY 14 ARE LICENSED

The finance committee of the county board learned yesterday that out of 500 roadhouses and roadside eating places in Cook county only seventy-five paid license fees in 1932 and only fourteen have bought licenses thus far in 1933. The license fee at present is $50.

Revelation of the small number of licensed places in the county was made as the committee was considering a suggestion to boost the license fee from $50 to $100. Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the committee, said the return of beer entitled the county to a higher revenue from roadhouse licenses.

County Controller Michael J. O'Connor said that all license applications are made through the office of Emmett Whealan, president of the county board. The fee is paid there, he said, and the money is turned over to his office. The meeting broke up when Commissioner Peter M. Kelly said he would oppose any change in the license fee until another method of selling licenses was adopted. He suggested that the licenses be sold by the county clerk.

CELEBRATE 7TH ANNIVERSARY OF AIR MAIL ROUTE

Seven years ago today air mail service between Chicago and the southwest was inaugurated by National Air Transport, which is now a division of United Air Lines. In the first year of operation the line's planes flew 800,000 miles. Last year planes on that line flew 14,000,000 miles. The same pilots who carried the first mail are still flying that route. They are Edmund Matucha and Paul Johnson.

The new five hour and forty-nine minute service of American Airways between Chicago and New York has proven so popular that extra sections are being added, F. W. Oakes, vice president in charge of traffic, said yesterday. The route is flown by fifteen passenger Curtiss Condor planes.

A landing area extending one mile south of the entrance channel and from the inner to the outer breakwater of Chicago harbor, has been reserved for the Italian seaplane flotilla expected to arrive here in June. The planes will anchor north of the Navy pier.

Texas Voters to Decide on 3.2 Beer on Aug. 26

Austin, Tex., May 11.—(AP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today signed legislation that will submit to a vote of the electorate on Aug. 26 the question of legalizing 3.2 per cent beer and setting up regulations for its sale if authorized.

BOLIVIA TELLS LEAGUE ITS FOE BROKE COVENANT

Council Is Called to Special Session.

GENEVA, May 11.—(AP)—In a protest today to the league of nations against Paraguay's declaration of war, Bolivia said that Paraguay had placed herself outside the league covenant and had incurred the sanctions provided for in article 16 of the covenant.

If the league council, which was convoked in a special session today to consider the declaration of war in the Gran Chaco conflict, would accept the Bolivian view, it would mean a recommendation to world powers to sever economic and financial relations with Paraguay.

Could Send Punitive Force.

The council would even be empowered to invite nations to send a punitive force to Paraguay.

Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, cabled the Bolivian government asking whether it were ready to accept an arbitral decision. The league also has asked Paraguay whether it will accept arbitration.

First Experience for League.

The war declaration, made yesterday, was the first formal one since the birth of the league of nations.

The league called the special meeting of its council after a council committee had been convoked. The council probably will meet Monday with Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy presiding. The league will probably propose an armistice and may send a commission to the Gran Chaco to supervise the truce, establish the facts of the situation, and receive the recommendations of the two belligerents for a settlement.

MICHIGAN ENJOYS FIRST EVENING OF LEGAL BEER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., May 11.—[Special.]—Thousands of Michigan residents enjoyed legal 3.2 beer after 6 p. m. tonight, sold in technical violation of the law. Officials of the state liquor control commission admitted that, for many places got permission by telegraph, with the statement that licenses would follow.

The threat of a beer scarcity that developed Wednesday was somewhat dispelled today. Lack of tax stamps until the last two days, however, greatly retarded preparations for sale.

Distributors could not make deliveries until stamps were attached. An airplane was dispatched from Lansing today for Escanaba bearing a supply of stamps for the commission's upper peninsula branch office. Five distributors wanted stamps for 7,000 vases and 500 barrels.

Legislators at Lansing will convene an hour later tomorrow, 10:30, instead of the usual 9:30.

Gov. William A. Comstock, who has sampled 3.2 beer during some of his trips outside the state, said today that he would advise the liquor commission to insist that brewers maintain a full 3.2 alcoholic content in the brew.

Plane Fails Frank Hawks; Glides 3,000 Feet, Lands

New York, May 11.—(AP)—The Fuel system of Frank Hawks' new long distance speed plane quit on him today as he was 3,000 feet above the towers of Manhattan and his engine died. Hawks glided downward across half the town and landed safely on the polo field on Governor's island in the bay.

COLORADO BEER LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL, STATE JUDGE HOLDS

Greeley, Colo., May 11.—(AP)—State and federal 3.2 per cent beer laws were held unconstitutional today by District Judge Claude C. Coffin and he upheld the city in its refusal to issue beer licenses.

Judge Coffin ruled the state and federal laws are "clearly invalid" because they "seek to thwart and evade the dry amendments in the United States and Colorado constitutions."

He denied the Greeley Elks club and Fred N. Fetch, café owner, a writ of mandamus which they sought to compel the city council to issue the licenses.

NEW LIQUOR LAW CUTS PRICES OF PRESCRIPTIONS

The price of prescriptions for so-called medicinal whisky, the good old American bourbon that retails for $6 a pint in the speakeasies that have it, has skidded like stocks in the depression crashes, federal prohibition agents report.

Under the amended national prohibition act the physician is judge of how much liquor his patient needs, and the price, formerly $3, for prescribing the "medicine," now averages about 50 cents, it is said.

The regulations of the commissioner of industrial alcohol, received yesterday by E. C. Yellowley, supervisor of permits, do not become effective until May 15, but the law enacted by congress is already in effect and the doctors know they need not hesitate in disposing of the prescription blanks on hand.

The doctor is not required under the new regulations to state the nature of the patient's ailment. Nor is there anything in the law that limits the amount of liquor that may be prescribed at a given time, so long as it does not exceed what the doctor believes "in good faith" the patient requires.

The price of bourbon varies from $2.50 to $3.50 a pint in the drug stores, but it can be bought for $55 a case, the federal agents say.

ROOSEVELTS' 2D SON TO MANAGE GILPIN AIR LINE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 11.—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, 22, second son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, arrived here today to become general manager of the Gilpin Air Lines, which provides airplane service between Los Angeles and Agua Caliente, Mexico.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AFTER THE SALES TAX DECISION.

The action of the Supreme court of the state in sustaining the injunction against the sales tax raises anew the question of how funds are to be obtained for the relief of the poor.

The only source which now appears to offer anything like the amount of money needed is the federal treasury. Congress is about to vote a half billion dollars for relief to be distributed among the states as a gift, not as a loan. To any one who understands the theory of American government this assumption by the federal government of an essentially state and local responsibility is distasteful and even humiliating. It evidences the incapacity of the people and their state governments to cope with their own problems. As a precedent in paternalism, its consequences can be only destructive. It will encourage states to shirk other responsibilities, it will encourage individuals to think that the world owes them a living and it will encourage congressmen to make appropriations from the federal treasury with which to buy the votes of those who prefer to be supported in idleness. That way lies degradation and ruin.

Illinois has been an unwilling partner in this business. The way of self-respect has been closed to us, however, by our courts and to a much greater degree by the financial policies of the federal government itself. The money which the federal government may now have to apportion for poor relief in this state is money which has been taken out of Illinois by the federal tax gatherers. Last year, in income taxation alone, the federal government took 80 million dollars from Cook county and 91 million dollars from the whole state, a colossal sum in a year of unexampled hardship. Whatever grant may be obtained from Washington the money sent here will be our own money and we shall support our own poor at our own expense. Illinois will not be a beggar state in the sense that Nevada, Idaho and the rest are chronic beggars. If the federal government will give our people half a chance to maintain the tradition of self-respect and home rule, we can do so and save money in the process.

EXILING PROSPERITY.

In its report of progress in the fight for government economy the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditure reveals the fact that while some states are checking expenditures and lightening the tax burden, others have not yet faced their problem. The spenders are still in control of the public purse and are ruthlessly emptying it. In time this suicidal policy will bring its inevitable consequences, but in the meantime enterprise will bear an increasing burden. In spite of the critical need for tax relief everywhere and retrenchments of expenditure in many jurisdictions, projects for new taxation are still appearing under one excuse or another. There are new taxes in Canada and Wisconsin, for example, and at Springfield a new drive to open the way for an income tax has begun, in spite of the notorious inability of Illinois taxpayers to support the burden now upon their shoulders.

Industries will not ignore this difference of state policy. They will not remain or expand in states where politics shows no regard for their interests or even their survival and where public opinion is not sufficiently intelligent to protect them from exactions which make success impossible. Private enterprise cannot carry the burden imposed upon it by the taxation imposed by many of the states and established industries will move from them, if practicable, while new enterprises will locate where they can be assured of fair treatment and the right to live.

States and communities which are not ready to put their fiscal household in order are going to be seriously handicapped in the period of revival, not only by the burden of inordinate debts and taxes but by the loss of productive enterprise unable to expand to the new opportunities or driven to better locations.

FARCES IN FASCISM.

Of all the European parties which put on colored shirts and try to thump their way into control of affairs, Mr. Mosley's young men in London are easily the most obnoxious. Their leader is the puniest of the Mussolinis and the English are the least fitted of Europeans for temperamental antics of this sort. The Englishman in his foggy way is sentimental enough, but as a patriotic hoodlum creating public disorders he's about as dismal a failure as an American would be trying to do the same thing.

It has escaped observation and comment, but the Mussolini stunt has been tried in the United States and each time it has ended in farce and comedy, betraying the credulity and feebleness of the citizens who tried to organize to terrify their fellow people.

The combination of the Klux with the Anti-Saloon league did succeed for a while in plaguing a few states, such as Indiana and Michigan, but the night shirt absurdities were too much for the patience and common sense of the mass of Americans.

The Klux had all the paraphernalia of a first rate terrorism. They were making their bid in white hoods and sheets for mystic dominance in American politics about the time Mussolini was marching on Rome. They had a good deal more than his amount of voodooism and their declarations had as high a content of patriotic flapdoodle. With crookedness at the top and foolishness at the bottom, they vanished like a white fog in a cool, crisp morning, joining the ghosts of their forefathers, the Anti-Masons, the Know-Nothings, and the American Protective association.

Fascism, organized to chase American citizenship up the street by seizure of police power and by the administration of private edicts, has never been able to prevail against American common sense and instinct for political action within the law.

THE NEW SCHOOL BOARD.

The new school board members may be congratulated upon an unusual opportunity for public service, but not an easy task. On the contrary, no public body in local history has ever been confronted by a more difficult one. The problem is to make ends meet, to obtain revenue enough for essentials, and to bring expenditure within income with as little sacrifice of educational requirements as possible. Retrenchment is imperative and its accomplishment involves difficult and important adjustments and wise allocation of available funds. The inheritance from years of unwise policies must be liquidated and sound methods established, and this must be achieved not only against the pressure of selfish interests long accustomed to favor, but with regard to many new and more legitimate claims growing out of the collapse of our public finances. The subject of school policy and administration is a highly sensitive one and at this time is complicated more than usual by agitation, both natural and proper, and artificial and perverted.

In such a situation only firmness, sensible acknowledgment of controlling conditions, and honest devotion to the general welfare of the children and the community can restore the schools to stability and efficiency. That the new board will manifest these essential qualifications and accomplish their difficult task of rehabilitation to their own honor and the great benefit of the community is the hope of all good citizens.

WHY REPEAT?

The experience of the state with the "prevailing rate of wage" act of 1931 ought, we think, to prevent the passage of either of the bills now in the senate and house which provide for a repetition of that ill-fated experiment. The new measures do not clearly or satisfactorily avoid the objections upon which the 1931 law was held unconstitutional by our Supreme court, and apart from the legal doubts involved they are as obnoxious from the standpoint of public policy and the interest of unemployed labor.

The 1931 law threw into confusion a public works program from which acutely needed employment was expected. Its vague terms which have not been substantially clarified in the new bills were inevitably challenged in court action and, in spite of the Supreme court's accelerated procedure, six months passed by before a final disposition of the questions involved could be reached. This arrested important public work and prevented employment relief. The same or a similar result is certain if either of the new measures is enacted.

A renewal of this ill-fated experiment is no advantage but an injury to unemployed labor at a time when it needs all possible and prompt relief. In fact, under pretense of helping labor, it is really an assurance of fancy pay to political workers on undesirable or ill-timed projects. The interest of taxpayers and the community in general is also involved; for either measure, if enacted and held valid, would either increase the cost of public works or in the present depleted condition of state revenue would restrict otherwise possible and desirable highway and other improvements. Present conditions call for drastic retrenchment, but either of these measures, which are virtually identical, would compel unnecessary sacrifices. They are contrary to the interest of unemployed labor and to the interest of the state and people.

NEW YORK GOES BROKE.

[New York Daily News.]

Controller Berry says the city has got to tax subway fares 5 cents apiece for two years or go bankrupt.

So we say the city is going bankrupt. How soon, we can't say; but it is on its way to the same predicament which is bedeviling Chicago, with police and firemen and teachers unpaid and bondholders seeing their coupons turn to scraps of paper.

Our trouble is that nobody is willing to cut expenses. Economy is for the other fellow. Leave my department or my swollen pay roll or my little piece of honest or dishonest graft alone.

Some people are blaming it all on Tammany. Tammany is only partly to blame. Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia are far ahead of us on the bankruptcy road.

Our chief trouble is that our city governments bonded themselves overheavily in boom days for improvements—at the insistence of the very best people, it must be admitted. They took on too many jobholders, they undertook too many assorted kinds of public service and uplift work.

New York City's debt is about $2,100,000,000; interest payments and debt service cost us around $150,000,000 a year. We have to make up the annual subway deficits out of taxation, as well as carry on all the multitude of city government activities and take care of the needy, including a special and grotesque appropriation for veterans.

Tax payments are falling off; revenue sources are drying up. The time is coming when the city simply will not be able to pay all its creditors and all its employés at the present rate. And the city seems unable to cut down the rate of payment, trim its garment to fit its cloth, before it is forced to do so.

At emerald spears wrapped in a faint cerise
Pierces my vision with proficient lance.

THE CHILD'S MENTAL DEVELOPMENT.

THERE should be wide interest in the program of antagonisms through which children go as they follow out the schedule of life. The reason is that it affects so many children in so many ways and at so many periods of life that it creates problems in a multitude of families. It is often noticed in rather early infancy.

By the time a baby is ready to be put on the bottle he is in the age of antagonisms and, in many instances, he has accumulated a few. Most of these relate to feeding. A breast fed baby is far more apt to act instinctively.

Many, perhaps most, of the difficulties with poor appetite children are because of these antagonisms. The mother wants the baby to eat at a time that does not exactly suit him, and babies have very definite likes and dislikes; or to eat some food that he does not want. The ogre of antagonism arises and very soon the baby is negative-minded on the eating proposition and other proposals the mothers make. The child soon becomes a poor eater. The best remedy for a situation of this kind is to put the poor appetite child at the table with some of his playmates and let nature take its course.

When the child has grown a little older the expression of antagonism will probably relate to something other than eating. It will take on a new form. Presently the school age period is reached. At this time it is quite likely to shift the scene from the home to the school, but this does not mean that the personality of the antagonist has been changed. It may still be a parent, or it may be the school teachers.

In the earlier school years the child is likely to transfer some of his affection from his parents to his teachers, but in the course of time teacher antagonisms are built up. As children pass through adolescence and become increasingly socialized, the parental antagonisms take on new forms and find new methods of expression.

The progress from the total selfishness of the infant to the family relationships of the home, and from that to membership in a larger unit, the social life first of school children and later of sex conscious youth is accompanied by repeated change in the quality of antagonisms and the persons against whom they are directed.

All of this is a part of evolution. It does not mean that the child is abnormal. Nor does it indicate inherent criminality nor any other anti-social tendency. It does not call for anxiety on the part of the parent nor for vain regrets and heartbreaks. Meeting the situation knowingly and wisely generally is all that is required.

2. Is it easy to overcome it in a boy of 14?

3. I am 5 feet 6 inches tall, 40 years old, and weigh 215 pounds. I work hard but cannot lose weight. Will diet or exercise help? How about Epsom salts internally or in baths? Does such excessive fat result in heart disorders?

4. What is arthritis? What does it come from?

5. I thought I had lumbago. Is this the same as arthritis?

REPLY.

1. The most important symptom is albumin and casts in the urine.

2. Yes. As a rule regular hours, plenty of sleep, and quiet living cure the disease in adolescents.

3. You can lose weight if you want to. Depending on Epsom salts indicates that you are not much interested. Obesity increases the danger of heart disease to some extent.

4. Inflammation of one or more joints. It is often due to rheumatism, but not always.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 12, 1893.

CHICAGO.—Representatives of six foreign nations who have exhibits in the great buildings at the World's Fair held a meeting yesterday and decided that unless there are certain modifications in the rules governing the system of awards they will withdraw the exhibits of their respective countries from the consideration of the judges. That means they will not be judged for medals and diplomas. The countries protesting are France, Germany, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, and Russia. They object to the opinion of a single expert in making the awards, and argue for the opinion of a number of such experts acting as a jury.

At last the Nicaragua canal is in working order. Water was turned through the channel yesterday and a crowd of guests who gathered in one of the balconies of the Transportation building had the whole thing explained to them by P. H. Bevier, who represents the canal company at the World's Fair. The exhibit comprises a complete model of the canal and contiguous territory as it will appear when completed.

American wine growers represented at the Exposition entered a protest before the national commission against the alleged action of the restaurant proprietors at the park in barring out American wines. Sixteen representatives of the wine interests signed a statement in which they alleged that restaurant men asked that from $2,000 to $5,000 be paid them by the producers of each brand of wine before their products would be placed on sale at the eating houses.

MAY 12, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Trading in May wheat was stopped short yesterday by the Chicago Board of Trade. It is the first time that such a step has ever been taken on the Chicago board, which fixes the price of wheat for the world. It is regarded as possibly a first step toward the predicted regulation or limitation of maximum prices for basic food products.

LONDON.—The Daily Express Paris correspondent says: "I received last night certain information which is highly satisfactory concerning the submarine blockade. Without going into details, I am in a position to affirm that the allies have now a firm grip on the situation, and that the last eight days have proven that the allies can face the future without undue apprehension."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In an address before the reichstag the German secretary of the navy admitted that serious inroads were being made on Germany's submarine flotillas, due to "improved means of destruction devised by the allies."

WAR NEWS ABROAD.—London admits loss of ground south of Souchez on the western front, but claims counterattacks ousted Germans. Germans are in advance trenches near Dobropolye. Paris reports the capture of a strong German position in the region of Chevreaux. Surprise German attacks northeast of Berry-au-Bac, in the sectors of the Navarin farm and Auberive and south of Ste. Marie pass, were repelled. Berlin reports renewed activity of the French between the Soissons and Reims sectors. All efforts to advance failed. London reports bitter fighting in Macedonia continues.

WAR NEWS IN UNITED STATES.—British and French officers, retired because of wounds, may be sent to America to train troops. President Wilson may set June 1 as the day for registration of 10,000,000 men, of whom 500,000 to 800,000 will be drafted into the army. The war department may mobilize all National Guard units in training camps by June 15. Cavalry may be transformed into artillery. The President announces the personnel of the American commission to Russia; Elihu Root is to be chairman and Maj. Gen. Scott, chief of staff of United States army, will go.

SAN DIEGO.—All American aviation altitude records were broken by Capt. W. A. Robertson Jr., junior military aviator at the North Island Training school, who reached a height of about 16,400 feet. Zero temperature prevailed above the 16,000 foot level and both aviators suffered intensely.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

REPUDIATION.

Charleston, Ill., May 9.—According to Washington Irving, one of the President's Dutch countrymen, a magistrate who was called upon to settle a dispute between two citizens as to the balances claimed by each of them weighed the account books and as the books weighed the same declared the accounts settled.

That is about the logic displayed in the last remarks of the President.

He says reducing the value of the dollar will average up. Of course a person who purchased a United States bond this winter, when gold was high, will only get back half his money if the gold coin is reduced one-half; but that is very proper because there are persons who loaned money and bought bonds when gold was cheap. The magistrate and the President display equal logic.

Then his remarks about the gold supply. Of course there is not enough gold to pay all debts, and never was and never will be. But the gold situation was caused by the threats of the President to inflate.

No one can deny that the idea of paying United States bonds—payable in gold coin of present value—with a coin worth half that sum is repudiation and utter dishonesty. It stands, as far as honesty is concerned, exactly on a par with those South American countries which have repudiated entirely. And as honesty makes no difference, next year we may repudiate entirely.

What he is doing is making a capital levy on the creditor. Senator Long wanted to make one on all property. That was honest, to say the least. As all owe all can pay, and should pay. But the idea of the President is to take the money of bond and mortgage owners, a large part of which is held by trust funds for the aged, infants, and widows, and let the owners of real estate and chattel property get the benefit of it.

Even life insurance policies are affected. We have paid our premiums in sound money, but our widows will be paid in fifty cent dollars. The man who willed a sum to take care of his widow will have half of it taken away for the benefit of others. At least three-fourths of the farm mortgages were given to speculate on land, and why not require a return of the profits from those who sold us stock at a high price?

To do equity there should be an investigation of each transaction. There is no justice nor sense in what is proposed. And in reducing the content of the gold dollar the United States has become a racketeer, pure and simple. The situation is like the robber who justifies his robbery because he gave a part of the money to charity.

H. E. JOHNSTON.

EQUITY.

Evanston, Ill., May 8.—The announced purpose of the administration to make it possible for all debtors to pay their debts in cheaper dollars can create great wrongs unless consideration is given as to just when each debtor incurred this debt.

To permit a borrower of 1929 to repay his debt in dollars cheaper than those of today may be fair, but to permit one who borrowed money within the last few months to repay in cheaper dollars would be very unfair.

In September, 1932, we sold our home for less than two-thirds of what it cost us in 1929. The purchaser paid us only a little in cash and for the balance gave us a purchase money mortgage with the usual gold clause protecting us from having to accept payment later in dollars cheapened by government action.

The purchaser bought our home at a bargain price. Is the United States government now to step in, make the gold clause in the purchase money mortgage ineffective, and force us to accept payment in dollars that will buy fewer groceries than they would have bought in September, 1932? E. S.

HE HEARD THE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, May 8.—Last evening I listened to our honorable President in his inspiring talk from the White House in Washington. I am frank in saying that I enjoyed listening to him, and—at least for the present—I must admit that I am a convert. I, for one, shall devote a good portion of my spare time to help the cause along, for, although I hold and cherish an undying respect for our former President, Herbert Hoover, I have confidence in Franklin D. and realize that without the support and confidence of all of the people, regardless of party ideals and beliefs, his efforts will be of little avail.

I was particularly impressed with his straightforward remarks, which, I believe, were easily understood by most of us. His review of what has been done in Washington to date should inspire those of us who have been hesitant in accepting these actions, while his clear description of the plans of the future, particularly as to foreign nations, industry, farm relief, and transportation, should prompt us all to a most liberal support.

It is quite evident now that Franklin D. has a spark of the old Teddy in his veins, and it is my guess and prediction that ere another year passes we will see this spark kindled into a blazing reality of a second Teddy R. If this prediction comes true would it then not be proven after all that party distinction is merely imaginary and of no great importance?

BRITAIN URGED TO OUST HITLER'S SPECIAL ENVOY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 11.—This was an unhappy day for Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Chancellor Hitler's special envoy who came to England to explain the German Nazi movement.

To begin with, a wreath he laid at the cenotaph at Whitehall in honor of the British war dead was stolen and dumped into the Thames river by Capt. J. E. Sears, a world war veteran and a prospective Labor candidate for parliament.

Capt. Sears later surrendered to police and paid a fine of 40 shillings [about $8] for willful damage to the wreath. He was discharged under probation on a charge of larceny.

Took Wreath as Protest.

"I've done this as a deliberate protest against desecration of the cenotaph by Hitler's hireling," Capt. Sears said. "It is also a protest against the brutal barbarism which at present exists in Germany."

Later, the accusation was made that "Rosenberg and other Nazis now in London are Fascist propagandists" in the house of commons during a bitter Laborite attack on Hitler's envoy. Several asked the expulsion of the Nazis.

George Lansbury, veteran Labor leader, said:

"The teachings of fascism which these gentlemen are eager to express and to press is for the purpose of overthrowing this house and the constitution of the country."

Lansbury added that Rosenberg is encouraging propaganda in England to provoke disorder. He asked Sir John Gilmour, home secretary, why a difference was made for the entry of German and Russian revolutionaries.

James Maxton, another Laborite, jumped up and demanded to know why the home secretary refused his request two weeks ago to permit Leon Trotzky to come to England.

"If anything is done contrary to the interests of this country," replied Gilmour. "I will give Rosenberg his marching orders."

Tonight Rosenberg invited more than 100 British newspapermen to his hotel suite. Although only two or three of those present understood German, he expounded the Nazi ideals and hopes in German.

Count Bismarck, a fellow envoy, was persuaded to summarize his remarks in English and to put a few questions to Rosenberg. He answered a few and then left the room, saying that there were more killings in Chicago in a day than in Germany during the Nazi revolution.

BERLIN, May 11.—(AP)—One of the most revolutionary laws proposed in a century will be passed May 15, radically changing land inheritance laws, prohibiting Jews from inheriting land or farmers from selling them, Hans Kerrl, president of the Prussian diet, announced tonight.

The switch will be made from Roman law, under which land was regarded "as a commodity," to an old Germanic statute. The possessor under the statute will be prohibited from selling his land and from dividing it among his heirs, only one of whom will get the property.

Has Nazi Backing.

Kerrl in revealing the plan said it had Nazi backing, which it was believed assured the cabinet's approval.

It was apparent that the days of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist minister of economics and agriculture, were numbered, since the plan is aimed at the Junkers, big estate owners, and has as its goal the preservation of farms in sizes big enough to support one family, preventing subdivisions until they are valueless.

Fathers to Children.

"Land must be passed from fathers to children and to the children's children and shall not be allowed to be degraded to an article of commerce," he said, discussing the plan.

Under the law, only the oldest child can inherit land, but if succeeding children become innocently in distress, the heir must aid them and, in so far as he is able, provide for their support.

It further provides that the farmer can possess only one farm, and that no larger than necessary to support the family without outside paid laborers.

Applicable in Prussia.

The projected law at present will be applicable only in Prussia, but it was expected other states will fall into line.

Behind the law is the idea to build a new class of equally-landed gentry. The law will be applicable only to the farmers' real estate.

In case a farmer leaves cash and other valuables, the one who inherits the farm will not be included in the division among the other heirs until each share equals the value of the farm inherited.

Article two of the projected legislation reads:

"Only a German citizen of German blood can inherit land as a farmer. German blooded is he who has neither Jewish nor colored blood within four generations. Future marriages with persons of non-German blood deprives an heir-apparent of his legacy."

Torture Robbers of Aged Couple Arrested in Gary

Two men who confessed to torturing an aged couple at Kouts, Ind., two weeks ago and obtaining their life savings of $700 were arrested in Gary by Chief Deputy Sheriff B. C. Clayton. The men are Floyd D. Curtis, 31 years old, and Leonard Martin, 40 years old. The couple who were tortured and robbed are Mr. and Mrs. Gus Wandry. They were tied to a chair and their feet burned until they revealed the hiding place of the money.

PLAN CAMPAIGN TO CUT COST OF N. Y. GOVERNMENT

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—A campaign to reduce the cost of government in New York state by reorganization of local government and repeal of laws imposing mandatory expenditures was announced today by the New York state branch of the National Economy league.

The aims of the economy campaign will include A. F. Cosby, secretary of the branch, said, such steps as "amending the state constitution to open the way for efficient reorganization of local government and to grant true home rule, and legislative repeal of mandatory laws now forcing high expenditures on counties, cities, villages, and other local governmental units, whether they wish them or not."

"Since 1903 the cost of state government has increased from $18,000,000 to $250,000,000 annually, he declared.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Charles Gunther, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Joseph Leggons, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Harry Wolfenberger, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Shelby Morrison and John Jaeger, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Joseph Milakowski, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory; Edward Podolski, burglary, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John Prystalski.

Sherman T. Lewis, 68 years old, was found guilty of murder by abortion yesterday by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph Desort. The jury, which deliberated 20 minutes, fixed his sentence at 14 years in the penitentiary, the minimum sentence on a murder charge.

Lewis, barred from the practice of medicine in Wisconsin, where he formerly lived, and never licensed in this state, was charged with the murder of Dorothy Waters, 20 year old showgirl, known as Babe Lee. She was found dead Jan. 4 in an apartment at 709 Wilson avenue. Dr. James Lewis, a Milwaukee dentist and the son of the defendant, was indicted with him, but has never been extradited.

The state showed that Dr. James Lewis sent the girl to his father and wrote him a letter asking him to perform the abortion.

SPANISH REGIME USES 'GUILLOTINE' TO BALK ITS FOES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, May 11.—After months of parliamentary obstruction by a rabid opposition bent on overturning the present Republican-Socialist government, Premier Manuel Azana today turned to a cloture rule known in Spain as the "guillotine" and cut short the interminable debate on the law governing religious bodies.

His majority proceeded today to cast out the hundred odd amendments to the remaining articles of the religious bill and pass it. That means that the monks and nuns, who have educated nearly half of the children who go to school in Spain, must close their primary schools by Jan. 1 and their secondary establishments by Oct. 31, 1934.

As Azana acted in the cortes, disorders continued in the provinces where the syndicalist general strike is still smoldering. In four villages near La Corruna the parish churches were burned to the ground, and in three others fires were extinguished only after considerable damage was done. At Castellon 150 prisoners rioted.

Holdup Victim Surrenders $60 but Saves His Auto

Morris Jaffe, 4911 North Springfield avenue, was robbed of $60 by two armed men yesterday, but fought them off when they attempted to take his automobile, in front of 3517 Ainslie street. Jaffe struck both men, knocking one of them to the ground, and the bandits fled, abandoning the automobile.

SCENT A 'TRADE' IN FREEING OF GLASS SMASHERS

Crime Commission Will Look for Favors.

The Chicago crime commission is wondering why three men, who pleaded guilty to smashing windows maliciously, were placed on probation recently with the consent of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, one of the interested prosecutors. Many windows have been broken along "automobile row," South Michigan avenue.

Attorney John R. McSweeney was attorney for the window breakers. He is also State Representative McSweeney. In his capacity of representative he also is chairman of the house committee on motor vehicles and traffic regulation.

The crime commission, asserting that Attorney McSweeney is under obligations to the auto trade association for cooling the prosecution, announced yesterday that it was investigating all legislation coming before the McSweeney committee in which the auto association is interested.

Glazier Caught in Act.

On May 30, 1932, a glazier, Bart Flynn of 4838 West Jackson boulevard, a precinct politician, were caught in the act of smashing windows with a slingshot at 200 South Kedzie avenue. Bart Flynn, questioned by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, said he was breaking the glass to make business for himself and other glaziers.

Indictments charging malicious mischief and conspiracy were returned against the trio. The case was assigned to Judge Harry Lewis, but Attorney McSweeney obtained a change of venue to Judge James A. Fardy on the ground that Judge Lewis was prejudiced. Next Mr. McSweeney obtained several delays in the trial date because he was engaged in legislative sessions at Springfield.

All Three Plead Guilty.

Judge Fardy, however, ordered the case to proceed to trial on Feb. 20, 1933, and the defendants pleaded guilty. A hearing was held on the evidence, and witnesses estimated that the shattered glass was worth only $14. Attorney McSweeney then made a motion for probation. Judge Fardy indicated he would not grant probation, but consented to hear arguments for it later.

On April 21, Assistant State's Attorney John Murphy, who was prosecuting, informed Judge Fardy that an attorney for the Chicago Automobile Trade association had telephoned him "the heat was off" the prosecution. The judge then granted the three men probation, remarking that it was his own opinion they should be locked up.

"It is apparent State Representative McSweeney should do something for the Automobile Trade association," said Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, managing director of the crime commission, yesterday.

ARTIST RIVERA LIKELY TO LOSE WORLD FAIR JOB

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—Diego Rivera, Mexican mural painter, whose fresco including a likeness of Nicolai Lenin, was rejected by Rockefeller center, apparently also has a contract to paint a mural for General Motors for the Century of Progress exhibition in Chicago, to show men working on machinery and to be called "Forge and Foundry."

Today Rivera, however, received a wire from Albert Kahn, architect in charge of erecting the General Motors exhibition in Chicago, in which Kahn said he had instructions from General Motors executives to have Rivera discontinue the Chicago murals.

WEATHER BALKS SCHOONER BOUND FOR CHICAGO FAIR

MARTIN RIVER, Que., May 11.—(AP)—The weather man conspired tonight to keep the keel of the Bluenose, queen of the north Atlantic fishing fleets, in the salt water she has never left.

Out of Halifax six days ago for Lake Michigan and the Chicago World's Fair, the big banker was in the doldrums.

The 102 year old "John Bull" locomotive, which was a feature at the World's Columbian exposition in 1893, has arrived in Chicago on the Pennsylvania line and will be exhibited in the dome of the Travel and Transport building. The engine was built in England and made its first trip over the Camden and Amboy railroad, now a part of the Pennsylvania system, near Bordentown, N. J., on Nov. 12, 1831.

Three paintings which arrived from Philadelphia in a private car on the Pennsylvania railway were met at the Union station yesterday by a committee from the Art institute. Members of the committee included Chauncey McCormick, Frank G. Logan, Charles Worcester, Walter Brewster, Paul Schulze, Max Epstein, Joseph P. Ryerson and John A. Holabird. The paintings, loaned from the collection of Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman, for the World's Fair exhibit at the Art institute, were taken under guard to the institute in Mr. McCormick's automobile. Included were Jan Vermeer's "Lady Weighing Gold," Lorenzo di Credi's "Self Portrait" and Landi's "Portrait Bust of a Lady."

Fair officials announced yesterday that nearly every exhibit in the Travel and Transport building the Home Planning hall and the Home and Industrial Arts group has been completed. About 30 exhibits in the three groups, all of which require only two or three days to install, have been completed outside the fair grounds and will be in place in time for the opening.

Fair officials said yesterday that recent rainfall would not delay the completion of all projects, which they declared would be ready for the opening May 27.

The fair has given official recognition to a tourist camp one-half mile east of 211th street on the south side of Lincoln highway, near Matteson. A limited number of cabins will be available for tourists attending the World's Fair by May 27. The camp capacity will be increased during the summer, it was announced.

Eight large muskalunge, 16 wall eyed pike, 16 northern pike, 20 sunfish, 20 bluegills, and 20 crappies, are scheduled to arrive in air conditioned tanks in a special baggage car on the Ashland Limited of the Chicago and North Western railway at 9:15 o'clock this morning. They will be taken to the Shedd aquarium to become acclimated to Chicago's water. From there they will be transferred to the Fair grounds, where they will be displayed in the Wisconsin exhibit in the Court of States.

The trees, shrubs and wild flowers whish supposedly grew about the dooryard of Abraham Lincoln's Indiana home will be reproduced in the garden exhibit of the Men's Garden club of Fort Wayne, Ind., in the out door display at the horticultural building. The material will be brought in part from the old Lincoln farm in Spencer, Ind.

A third of a mile of sand with a 30 foot board walk flanking it will be zoned as a bathing beach at the fair. The bathing beach will include thrill rides and games, wheel chairs with uniformed attendants and four modern bath houses equipped with lockers, showers, and bathing facilities.

More than seventy-five exhibitors at the fair yesterday organized as The Century of Progress Exhibitors association, electing E. H. Sniffin president. He is assistant to the vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Maufacturing company.

DAWES TELLS JEWS GERMANY DECLINES PARTICIPATION IN FAIR

In connection with the protest by more than 25,000 Chicago Jews on Wednesday against persecution of their race in Germany by the national Socialist party of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, and to condemn Hitler's alleged choice of Joseph Goebbels as Germany's ambassador to A Century of Progress, Rufus C. Dawes issued a statement late yesterday. Mr. Dawes is president of the World's Fair. The statement read:

"The German government declined the invitation extended by the President of the United States to participate in A Century of Progress. It has made no appropriation for an exhibit and will not be represented here. We have received no report of the appointment of a commissioner and do not expect to receive any German representative officially."

FIRST LADY SAYS PRESIDENT WON'T GO TO EUROPE

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt today said there was very little possibility of her husband going over to London. She insisted that no definite plans had yet been made and she told newspaper women at the conference this morning that she was "almost certain" that the President would not go to Europe.

Asked whether or not she would accompany him to Chicago for the opening of the world's fair she replied, "Of course I will go with my husband if he goes. But even that plan is still indefinite. It depends on whether or not congress adjourns by then. There are so many things that might come up between now and then that I cannot make a definite answer."

She was, however, very definite about not being able to accept an invitation to go to Chicago the middle of July to attend the national women's congress.

NELSON MORRIS WINS DIVORCE FROM ACTRESS

Decree Is Granted in French Court.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 11.—Basing its decision on the principle—much honored in France—that it is not moral cruelty for a husband to restrain his wife from expressing herself, the Versailles tribunal today refused the application for divorce of Jeanne Aubert, actress in France and America.

Instead it granted the divorce to Nelson Morris, 41 year old member of the Morris family of Chicago meat packers, on the grounds that Miss Aubert's appearing on the stage against his wishes was a serious insult. The judges said nothing about her request for alimony.

"Whereas, it has been shown that Mme. Morris, known as Jeanne Aubert, without authorization of her husband or the court, left her home at Le Vesinet to give theatrical representations and to go to the United States, and,

No Act of Cruelty.

"Whereas, She does not show that she went back to the residence assigned to her; and,

"Whereas, She does not allege any definite probable act of cruelty on the part of her husband except the simple allegation that he could not make her happy; and,

"Therefore, the court declares Mme. Morris not justified in her application for divorce, which it dismisses and orders her to pay the costs.

"On the other hand, regarding the application of Nelson Morris:

"Whereas, Although her husband forbade her she continued to appear on various stages which constituted a serious insult to her husband as recognized by the law;

"Therefore, the court decrees a divorce according to the application and to the profit of the husband."

NO ALIMONY ALLOWED.

Nelson Morris, who won a divorce from Jeanne Aubert, stage star, in Versailles, France, yesterday, said at his offices at 38 South Dearborn street that there had been no settlement or alimony allowed her.

"I had been paying Miss Aubert $200 a month temporary alimony," Mr. Morris said, "but she hasn't received that for nearly three years. The French law requires that she remain in France to get the money."

After the marriage in 1928 Mr. Morris and his bride came to Chicago. They returned to France in 1929.

CROWN PRINCE TO HELP DEDICATE ERICSON STATUE

A cablegram was received yesterday by World's Fair officials from Oskar J. W. Hansen, Chicago sculptor, in Oslo, Norway, stating that King Haakon VII. promised to send Crown Prince Olaf and Princess Martha to the dedication of the Leif Ericson memorial in Grant park Sept. 1.

Hansen and his wife carried invitations from mayors of American cities with large Norwegian populations. King Haakon and Queen Maud expressed their regrets that they could not attend in person.

The monument to Ericson, whom Icelandic sagas credit with the discovery of North America about 1000 A. D., will be erected on the south side of Monroe street, between the Leif Ericson and west drives, facing south toward the Buckingham fountain. The statue will be cast in bronze by Hansen and placed between two granite obelisks 100 feet tall.

for the Best Solutions to Today's

What Is an ANAGRAM?

An anagram is merely a rearrangement of the letters of a word. For example, EFFOCE is an anagram of COFFEE; again, CORREG is an anagram of GROCER. Note that the anagram contains exactly the same letters of the regular word, the only difference being that the letters are placed in different order.

What well known food and grocery store items can you spell with the letters in the accompanying anagrams?

Today the Chicago Tribune presents another fascinating game of "Grocery Anagrams." It's loads of fun. You'll find it instructive. There's no hard work to do—and there's $100.00 in groceries and 100 Mary Meade Recipe Cabinets to reward successful contestants. Read the simple rules and start now!

THE RULES:

1. The letters in each of the accompanying ten anagrams when arranged properly will spell the names of ten well-known food and grocery items. You are invited to solve the anagrams and try for the $100.00 in grocery prizes and 100 Mary Meade Recipe Cabinets which the Tribune will award.

2. To the persons who submit the best entries in accordance with these rules, the Chicago Tribune will pay $100.00 in grocery orders and 100 Mary Meade Recipe Cabinets. First prize, $25.00 in groceries, second prize, $15.00 in groceries; third prize, $10.00 in groceries; next ten prizes, $5.00 each in groceries; next 100 prizes, one Mary Meade Recipe Cabinet each.

3. This offer is open to all—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just send in an entry.

4. Awards will be made to the persons who send in the best entries. Simply rearrange the letters in each of the ten anagrams to spell the name of a food or grocery item. After you have solved the anagrams, check the food and grocery store ads in today's Tribune and place a crossmark in the square if you find the item advertised in any of today's Tribune food and grocery ads. If the item is NOT advertised, make NO mark.

5. All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Tribune. Contestants agree to accept the decisions of the committee as final. Judgment will be based upon accuracy in solving the anagrams and in checking the ads, and neatness. No special consideration will be given to elaborate entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants. Only one entry may be submitted by any one contestant. Note: You do not necessarily have to solve all the anagrams correctly to win. The prizes will be awarded to the contestants whose entries rank highest.

Short Stories More Popular in Book Field

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

KAY BOYLE.

"It may be that the terrific tempo of the past fifteen years will prove to have been too much for the wind and limb of the novelist. Like the sprinter in the 440 dash who must put every ounce of his vitality into a few brief moments, the short story crowded into a handful of words, may be the form which has most truly caught the kaleidoscopic picture of our generation," says Edna Ferber in the preface to her latest book, "They Brought Their Women" (Doubleday Doran), a collection of eight short stories.

The theory is an interesting one since, against it seems to be pitched the theory that the tempo of the day is best expressed in novels of three decker size. You take your choice, mammoth, muscle building tomes or short stories catching the period's mood.

At least nine volumes of short stories have been published lately to support Miss Ferber's theory. Not so long ago it was a daring publisher who brought out a volume of short stories, for short stories didn't sell. Now they get on the best seller lists.

There is Miss Ferber's "They Brought Their Women," for instance. The title story has a special interest for the public in the fact that it was the cause of Miss Ferber's official disbarment from Mexico. Why, it is difficult to say, except that Mexico is described in it unflatteringly, but by some one who has never been there. But the spokesman is trying to persuade his wife NOT to go to Mexico. At any rate, Miss Ferber is forever persona non grata in Mexico because of "They Brought Their Women" and that despite the fact that the story ends with Mexico's capturing the gentleman whole souled.

The stories in the volume all have in common a new note in the short story. Willa Cather said recently, in one of the two or three public speeches that she has ever made, that the day of the girl and boy romance in fiction is past; that something more permanent, less casual, than a flare up of passion is now concerning creative writers.

All of the stories in this volume of Miss Ferber's have to do with the real every day life of those who to outsiders may seem deeply romantic. "Glamour" describes the grinding, hard work which fills the life of a "glamorous" actress. "Fraulein," the day off of a nurse. "Meadow Lark" tells of a boy born on the Kansas prairies whose passion is to fly and who never sees the welcoming eyes of an earthly love. "Hey Taxi" describes the day of a taxi driver, throbbing with excitement, who looks forward to seeing a movie, "Ride 'Em, Cowboy," with the sigh, "That's the life. Nothing ever happens in this town." "Wall Street-28" is about a golden plated broker who really comes alive when he is in his office at work. "No Foolin'" tells of a French-American marriage, but deals with it rather studiously than romantically. "Keep it Holy" is the stark story of a girl alone in New York who has nothing to do on Sundays.

Also in the new tone are the short stories in Kay Boyle's "First Lover" [Smith-Haas]. Without any of the conventional pattern of romance, they are as emotional for the reader as any book this year. Their emotion lies in their faultless prose. There are fourteen stories of uneven length and uneven genius, but all of a remarkable beauty of phrase and sentence and paragraph. They are tenuous, sometimes so fragile as to seem almost to shatter as one's mind touches them. But they have something oddly exciting about them in the sheer loveliness of their writing.

The title story, "First Lover," is more like Katherine Mansfield at her best than any of the hundreds of stories which have been credited with inheriting the mantle of her genius.

J. C. Squire's "Outside Eden" [Knopf] contains eleven stories, many of which have to do with the writing profession which Mr. Squire, as editor of the London Mercury, knows well enough to satirize with amusement and audacity.

"The Cage Bird," by Francis Brett Young [Harpers], cages thirteen short stories from the pen of the man who has been mentioned in dispatches as the logical successor to John Galsworthy. They prove, to this person at least, that Mr. Brett Young, whatever his distinction as novelist, is in little danger of becoming England's first gentleman of the pen so far as short stories are concerned.

Nor do Eden Phillpotts' "They Could Do No Other" [Macmillan] seem to me to be jewels in that gentleman's crown.

"This People," by Ludwig Lewisohn [Harpers], contains five long stories which tell the tragedy of the misunderstood Jew who not only wants to take his place among his fellow men but to serve them and is, like another of their race, rejected. The last story is a retelling of the old Hebrew tale of Queen Esther and Mordecai, but the others are modern versions of the tragic struggle of the race.

Three long short stories—novelettes—fill the covers of "Uproar in the Village" [McBride] from the pen of a Czech writer previously unknown to American readers. Their interest for the reader is more in their unusual material than in their inherent art.

"Short Story Hits, 1932" [Harcourt-Brace] is an anthology of high, medium, and low brow short stories which have proved their popularity in the magazines. It is edited by Thomas T. Uzell, former fiction editor of one of the popular weekly magazines.

Edward J. O'Brien's annual "Best Short Stories" will be published on May 17 by the Houghton Mifflin company.

Blind Retain Jobs Despite Trade Slump

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

With this greeting Miss Edith Swift, daughter of Chicago's mayor in 1895, George B. Swift, yesterday told things old and new about one of the city's notable institutions.

In 1919 Miss Swift helped to found the Lighthouse at 3323 West 22nd street. She has been its director ever since. Yesterday she reviewed its program and history in the interest of the dinner dance the volunteer aids are to have tomorrow evening at the Old Heidelberg inn at A Century of Progress.

"By miracle I mean economic phenomenon," Miss Swift explained. "During these several years of financial distress, we have kept our blind at work when their 'sighted' brothers and sisters have been deprived of jobs. It seems almost incredible, yet it's true. When things looked the blackest last fall along came a fairy godmother. That's the way it's always been."

The "fairy godmother" last October was one of the city's largest candy manufacturers. He gave the blind men orders for woven baskets—15,000 of them—just at the time when orders for telephone terminal plates and switchboards were being slashed because half a million telephones had gone into storage as the result of closed business offices. The manufacture of telephone apparatus is still one of the mainstays of the Lighthouse factory, but previous to last fall it had been its principal occupation.

It is a "miracle" to watch the seventy-five blind factory employés make the switchboards and weave the baskets. Quickly and accurately they work. In 4 minutes one man assembles 129 pieces into a switchboard. It's harder than a crossword puzzle. Last year work of this nature was provided at the Lighthouse to the extent of $22,000. There was a 10 per cent allowance made for mistakes, but only $18 worth was returned, proving the accuracy of trained hands.

Five years ago Miss Swift, in the face of strenuous objection, convinced the telephone manufacturers that the blind could do this work. She made a switchboard in 23 minutes. Then she taught a blind man at the Lighthouse. But she is the only "sighted" person who has ever taught a blind man the switchboard "puzzle." Instead she has proved that it is better to make a teacher as well as a student of every blind man. By this method he is better able to carry on in a position independent of the Lighthouse factory, she explains. Hence the blind teach the blind.

Today Chicago's Lighthouse is the only factory in the world, with one exception, that is teaching the blind to manufacture. The one exception is a Berlin factory that is training ex-soldiers.

As to the origin of the Lighthouse, Miss Swift joined with Mrs. Sidney McCallin to found it. The daughter of a Chicagoan, Mrs. McCallin went to London during the war to help entertain the blind at St. Dunstan's, founded by Otto Kahn and Sir Arthur Pearson, for the war blind of London. In 1919 Mrs. McCallin returned to Chicago and talked casually with Miss Swift about Chicago's interest in the physically handicapped.

The conversation took form. In a few months Miss Swift and Mrs. McCallin pooled their resources for a lecture by Sir Arthur Pearson in Orchestra hall. To their surprise they made $10,000. Then with the aid of the city's interested citizens they formed an organization and started the West 22d street factory.

Today there is a $50,000 building on the original 22d street site, providing $35,000 a year in work for the city's blind. Little wonder it is, then, that the Lighthouse has the backing of a distinguished board of women, an equally eminent board of advisers, and a coterie of volunteers interested in making this annual spring party the gayest of the year.

Ready for Vacation in Michigan

The sparkle in their eyes tells that little Nancy Krupp and her big brother, Peter, are looking forward to the vacation they are to have soon at Grandfather Sims' ranch at Au Gres, Mich. Peter, especially, will need a vacation in the country, for he is in the Presbyterian hospital now, recovering from a recent appendectomy. They are the children of Dr. and Mrs. Peter C. Krupp and the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lindblom and Marshall Win School Titles

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In the ninth annual high school orchestra contest, held in the auditorium of Roosevelt High school last night, two types of orchestras, classified by size of membership, competed for the city championship. In the first class, orchestras of less than eighty players, Lindblom took first place under the direction of Christian Lyngly, Roosevelt was second with Ehbardt Bergstrasser conducting, and Hyde Park third with Kathleen Findly as director. Other contestants were Lake View, Senn, and Wendell Phillips.

Class 2 embraced orchestras with from eighty to one hundred players, and here the first place was taken by Marshall, Merle Isaac being the conductor. Harrison was second under the baton of Joseph Grill, and Tuley third, directed by Irving Letchinger. Tilden was another entrant. While the judges, Glenn Dillard Gunn, Isaac Van Grove, and Karl Schuite, were deliberating, the orchestra of Lane, already in possession of their championship in past events, played as honorary guests.

Each orchestra was required to play a chosen number as principal subject for judgment. That for the smaller orchestras was the overture to Mozart's opera "The Impresario," and for the larger groups the introduction to the third act of Wagner's "Lohengrin." The contest was a demonstration of the work done in orchestral music in the senior high schools of Chicago. Every year shows a higher standard and an improvement in the performances. Oscar W. Anderson, supervisor of instrumental music in the Chicago schools, was in charge of the contest.

Ludlow White, baritone, and Charles Baker, pianist, were presented in a debut recital at Kimball hall last night by the Musical guild. This is an organization whose announcements through a course of years have come to take on the accents of authority, since the young talent that it discovers is generally noteworthy and the audiences that it gathers are generally large and friendly. It did not change its custom last night.

Mr. White has all the materials, vocal and mental, to be one of these days a fine singer. It is true that he needs more of the ripening process of technical study, and he has not yet arrived at the stage of being able to project the emotional swirl of Schumann's "Fruehlingsnacht." But Buonocini's "Per la Gloria" was a first class example of good voice and interpretation, and Mr. White at other times displayed an excellent working knowledge of the languages, including English.

Mr. Baker has both technic and imagination. He got more out of a Bach group than the average young player believes possible, and a later group by Chopin and Brahms was of high order, particularly the Brahms. Both artists concluded their assignments with works of modern times.

In 1909 Admiral Peary, accompanied by four Eskimos and one Negro servant, brought to America the credit of "discovering" the north pole. That epochal event is marked in quilting history by the design presented here. The four point star, representing the points of the compass, is set on a field of blue, which is the sky.

Cry for 'Life' Usually Man's Plan to Revolt

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Some of them still cry aloud for "life." They want to "see life," taste life, live life—before they settle down. Sometimes we find these "life-seekers" inside marriage, sometimes out of it. But none of them tell us just what is this "life" they're seeking.

If it were some big accomplishment they had in mind, we'd understand. If it were a travel phobia that possessed them, we'd understand. If it were a tiger-lion hunt they'd like to participate in, we'd understand, too, though a half hour as a ringside observer of Clyde Beatty and his menagerie reduced us to a state of near apoplexy. Nevertheless, we appreciate that there are others more adventurous than we. In fact, we wish we had more of the taste for adventure in our soul, and consequently admire it where it does reside.

But this cry for "life," as we hear it, has a rebellious note in it, usually. It's not the cry of gay adventure, of seeing things, doing big things, being somebody. It's rebellion at duties undertaken without thought of what marriage implied, in some cases. Or, it's rebellion at a dull love life, a life in which man has not entered or threatens not to enter. And, as we see it, the ideal is not taken from life as it is practised around one, but from the sex-radical cinema or literature propaganda.

Engagement of Miss Bucklin Is Announced

She Will Become Bride of Frederic Hurd.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT IS with more pleasure than surprise that we announce this morning the engagement of Miss Imogene Edna Bucklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vail Rhodes Bucklin, to Frederic Marshall Hurd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Rhae Hurd of Hinsdale. For the last seven months Mr. Hurd has been the devoted suitor of the Bucklins' charming dark haired daughter, escorting her at all of society's nicest parties.

Miss Bucklin has been one of the popular members of the younger set both before and since making her debut the last day of October in 1931 at a tea in her parents' apartment at 1415 Astor street. Miss Alice Mae Dickinson, Miss Jane Fortune, Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II., who was then Miss Florence Carr, Miss Helen La Chance, who is Miss Bucklin's cousin, and Mrs. Edward S. French, the former Ruth Crossett, were among those who assisted. After the reception there was a dinner dance at the Tavern for all of the assistants given by Mr. and Mrs. Bucklin and Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, who introduced their daughter, Isabel, the same day.

Miss Bucklin enjoys riding . . . her favorite sport . . . every winter at her family's Glendora [Cal.] ranch and in the summer at Charlotte, Vt., where the Bucklins have a lovely old farm. This last winter, however, Miss Bucklin's interest in domestic affairs kept her at home while the rest of her family enjoyed a California holiday.

After finishing at the University School for Girls and Miss Wheeler's school in Providence [R. I.], Miss Bucklin toured Europe with her mother and father and her young brother, Rhodes. Mr. Hurd attended the Asheville school and Northwestern university. No date has been set for the wedding.

Gloria Garnett Teacher's Bride.

Of further interest this morning is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Gloria Louise Garnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hancock Garnett of Evanston, to George Edward Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gregory of Norfolk, Va., on May 5. Miss Garnett, whose mother is Louise Ayres Garnett, the author of charming children's stories, and Mr. Gregory quietly slipped away and were married in Norfolk, where Miss Garnett is a sophomore at William and Mary college and Mr. Gregory a professor of English in the same school.

Before going to William and Mary Miss Garnett attended Sarah Lawrence college and Mr. Gregory took his undergraduate training at Harvard. Yesterday Mr. Garnett said that he and Mrs. Garnett hope to have their daughter and her new husband here for several weeks this summer, although they are to make their home in Norfolk.

Brahms Festival Is Announced.

The city's patrons of music are delighted that there is to be a three day Brahms festival May 25, 26, and 27 on the University of Chicago campus. The event, to be presented by the university music society, is in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the composer's birth. It is to feature Mrs. Charles H. Swift (Claire Dux) and Egon Petri, who was heralded in his recent Chopin concert at the Drake hotel as well as the university symphony orchestra, the university choir, the university

King Ill, Wales Receives with Queen Mary

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 11.—The first court of the London season was held this evening, but King George was absent and in his place the prince of Wales assisted Queen Mary in receiving those commanded to attend.

Late this evening it was unexpectedly announced that the king would be unable to attend tonight or tomorrow night because an attack of rheumatism in his left shoulder prevents him wearing a uniform. In May, 1930, the king was unable to attend a court due to localized rheumatism in his right hip. Recently he has been suffering from a chill which prevented him attending a film show in Windsor castle and the football final at Wembley.

But the court was not lacking in color. Débutantes, dowagers, and diplomats gathered to pay their respects to the queen and the prince.

Being a diplomatic court, it drew ambassadors, ministers, and attachés of all nations represented at the court of St. James's in addition to bishops, archbishops, famous judges, lawyers, high sheriffs, and lord mayors.

The regalia of their offices, flaming crimson and deep rich purple, and the shining satin of their uniforms served as a gorgeous background for the light colored gowns of the ladies present. For the latter it was a pastel court.

White—the accepted color for débutantes — predominated and soft light shades were the choice of matrons. Only eight American ladies were presented this year as against the twelve or sixteen in former years.

The Americans were presented by Mrs. Ray Atherton, the tall, dark, and graceful wife of the American chargé d'affaires. She wore a Worth gown of pale blue satin with a train of gold and blue. Her first presentee was Mrs. Robert Frazer from Philadelphia, wife of the new American consul general. She wore a model by Molyneux in a shade of old ivory. Her gown and slippers were of ivory satin and her train of old Spanish lace. She carried a fan of ivory, ostrich feathers, jewels, and pearls.

The débutante daughters of Mrs. Frazer followed. The elder, Miss Anne Howard, wore a gown of parchment satin cut somewhat on princess lines with large soft folds in the skirt. Her train was of the same material, lined in the color of talisman roses, a sheaf of which she carried. The simplicity of her gown emphasized the beauty of her long red hair, which was court dressed for the occasion. Her wrap was of white fur.

Miss Marion Howard's gown was of dead white mousseline de soie with a train of heavy white double satin. In contrast with her sister, Marion's hair is blonde and was held in place by a narrow band of crystal leaves.

The Field museum today will exhibit the lions shot by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field on their African hunting trip in 1930. The group of lions has been prepared by C. J. Albrecht taxidermist of the museum staff.

The Fields, who shot the lions at their private grounds in Tanganyika, presented the trophies to the museum. Among the specimens are a large male lion, shot by Mr. Field, and a lioness, brought down by Mrs. Field. Four small lion kittens are also included in the group.

Movie Closeup

Starting tomorrow admission prices at the United Artists theater will be reduced to 25 cents in the morning, 35 cents in the afternoon, and 50 cents at night.

Plaids Offer Contrasts That Bring Buying

Cool Colored Linens and Ginghams Please.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you like contrast, combines of flippant scotch plaids and cool colored linens and ginghams, you are going to plunge heavily with all your best appreciation and hang some of these uncommonly good looking costumes in your own wardrobe.

Listen to this lineup . . . black linen dress with a bright and breezy red Scotch plaid gingham top, the top with short sleeves and rib hugging silhouette and a coquettish bow to be tied under the chin. With this frock a fetching puffed sleeved separate hip length jacket of the same Scotch plaid gingham. If this one honey alone, won't win your heart, then nothing ever will.

Another twosome that will cause a mixup in traffic is a dove gray linen, worn under a swagger almost knee length loose coat of brown plaided novelty mixture. This brown mixture is tan, light beige and a ginger brown, and is as unusually stunning in contrast as it sounds.

The old classic, black and white, is featured in a street outfit of black and chalk white linen . . . the white blouse is worn over the trimly pleated skirt of black linen, the rather long coat is of white, made with simple lines, and two pockets in the loosely assembled manner of 1933. This is a coat that can be worn over any other cotton frocks you may have that are not already paired with a cape or a jacket.

Any one would fall for the newest seersucker suits, even though you think seersucker isn't so hot. These gay and very nonchalant new models are unbelieveably swanky . . . they consist of a fitted one piece dress, with delightfully short, loose sleeves, with a row of chromium buttons closing over your chest and a wide belt clasped with a huge covered buckle. The skirt is cleverly fashioned to flare around the lower edge and fits supersmoothly over the hipline.

But the coat is what causes the real excitement. It looks exactly like an abbreviated smock, hanging loosely in the back . . . it has a high turnover collar held in place with a dark plain silk short ascot scarf. There are two slanted pockets and one very large and shiny chromium button planted high on the shoulder to hold the coat in general position.

It's quite the snappiest summer suit you can find and totally removes any utilitarian flavor from this hitherto underestimated material. You'll find them in blue and white, brown and white, and black and white striped, regular old fashioned crinkled seersucker.

And while you are hunting for contrasts you'll be interested to know that you can now practice commendable restraint about those lovely but spectacular field flower or poppy prints . . . now you can find a lovely slim, simple black silk dress, mated to a snappy short jacket or coat of printed silk, effectively splashed with full blown scarlet poppies, heads of wheat, cornflower, daisies and contrasting green leaves.

Topped with a brimmed black hat, these street costumes are perfect for shopping, luncheon in town and even an informal dinner at eight.

Or in Winter Be Faithful to Codliver Oil.

(This is the fifth in a week's series of popular vitamin chats by Miss Meade. The Tribune vitamin and mineral charts and menus explaining the main sources, benefits of the vitamin and important minerals, and the best method of cookery to retain them, together with a week's health-boosting menus, will be sent you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

BY MARY MEADE.

"Getting our vitamin D" has become one of the pet American sports these last summers, for whether we know it or not our scanty attire under next July's blazes and the hours we spend basking under old Sol on the beach or up on the penthouse roof will be manufacturing that vastly important vitamin D without troubling us in the least.

So on this—our fifth—day of vitamin adventures let's take a look to see how old Sol does it and also how else we can rope in this vitamin for the months when the sun is more or less off duty.

Known as Sunshine Vitamin.

Vitamin D is known as the "sunshine vitamin," or more formally as the antirachitic vitamin. There are three things that go to make up strong bones and finely shaped bodies upon which to display the spring fashions. Bones need much calcium and phosphorus—minerals which are on tap in milk, cheese, lean beef, eggs, and many other foods we eat. But unless we also supply ourselves with that mysterious vitamin D these minerals simply enter and exit, as it were, without being taken up by our bones and our bodies. And the surest thing we know, if these three lifesavers—vitamin D, calcium, and phosphorus—aren't working together month in and month out for our families, the result for us grown-ups will be brittle bones, poor teeth, and a general run-down condition. And for the littlest ones and every growing youngster it will inevitably mean all the things that rickets threaten—bowed legs, "pigeon breasts," those bumps on the chest known as the "rachitic rosary," and other sorrowful manifestations of "hidden hunger" that will stay with those unfortunate throughout life.

It's in Cod Liver Oil.

Cod liver oil, either in liquid, capsule, or tablet form, stands out as by far the greatest giver of vitamin D. Egg yolks contain some and irradiated or vitaminized foods, such as yeast and bread, which are now on the market, also contain a certain amount. But the main source is the sun itself. Scientists have discovered that there is a certain "ultra-violet ray" which is part of the sun's rays or may now be produced artificially. When this ray shines down upon our bare skins it affects a certain substance called "ergosterol," which lies underneath the skin. It actually forms from this substance the precious vitamin D. And within, D, so formed, at once sets about helping calcium and phosphorus build up strong bones and well bodies.

This, then, would all be very nice if we could always depend on the sun to supply our needed vitamin D and keep our bones, teeth, etc., in good condition. But there lies the rub! Except in the hot summer months, this particular "ultra-violet ray" from the sun slants to us at such an angle that it is weakened and can do us very little good. Also, too often even in the summer time the heavy fogs or clouds of smoke which frequently sit down over our big cities cut out the health-bringer. And at these times—often all year round—careful adults and wise mothers are depending on cod liver oil in one form or another to insure health and happiness.

But now, just so we can read and fun, we'll put vitamin D into a box. This and the other vitamin tables which have run along with this week's food chats are ready for you—just in case the other papers were mislaid before they were clipped. We'll appreciate a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In the Vitamin B chart published Wednesday, the first sentence under the heading "Stability," should have read: "There's some loss by heat when vitamin B foods are cooked, though not a great deal."

90 PCT. OF SHEEP MEAT CONSUMED IN U. S. IS LAMB

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

[This is the second of a series of Friday food section articles on meats. Other descriptions for a buyer's guide on beef and pork cuts will follow.]

There has been enough English influence and ancestry in the United States to place sheep raising for wool and meat among major industries, yet sufficient dominance of Americans over their habits, food and otherwise, to require that this type of meat be in the form of lamb. Ninety per cent of the total lamb and mutton meat consumed by Americans is lamb, while in England the percentage is nearly reversed.

Lamb is available at any month of the year, but winter and spring are the more traditional months for its consumption. A survey of food value charts gives sound reason for its popularity, for lamb is one of the few foods which offer a good content and balance of calories, protein, phosphorus, iron and copper and vitamins.

Selected Cuts of Lamb.

The cutting up of a lamb is more simple than that for beef or pork and the nomenclature and variety of cuts is consequently more simple for the buyer to understand.

The select cuts are, as a result, those which command the higher prices are the loin, the leg, and chops or a roast from the rib section. All of these are suitable for roasting or pan broiling and the loin and rib chops also are often broiled.

The cuts in less demand and which often can be made just as nutritious and palatable as the more expensive portions, include the shoulder, breast and neck. All of these are suitable for braising, the shoulder also is roasted, the breast is commonly used for stewing or for broth, as are the neck slices.

Seared for 30 Minutes.

Here are some pointers on the time required for the various methods of preparation for the table. For roasts the lamb is seared for 30 minutes at 480 to 500 degress Fahrenheit and then at 300 degrees about 30 minutes for each pound. When cooked in water, simmering below the boiling point is best, 12 to 15 minutes per pound plus 10 minutes. Three to three and one half hours is the usual time required for braising properly.

It's more proper to have a sauce for the lamb than it is for the traditional "sauce for the goose," according to the national live stock and meat board in its studies of what make fitting accompaniment for various types of meats.

Four sauces do justice to lamb. Currant jelly has sufficient tart to be pleasing. Mint sauce or mint sherbet tickle the palate when lamb is the meat. Caper sauce is also suggested. Brown potatoes with a green vegetable or succulent such as green peas, spinach, turnips, asparagus or cauliflower complete a fitting main course.

Well done lamb is grayish brown throughout. Slightly underdone is grayish pink. To prepare a leg of lamb, wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Do not remove the fell, which is a thin papery covering over the outside helping to keep the leg of lamb in shape and permitting it to cook faster. The leg is placed in an open pan without water, skin side down and cut surface up for roasting.

THE TRAGEDY OF IT—skin that is growing dull, dry, old looking, unattractive . . . you've often thought about it. Every woman has. But have you ever wondered about the cause of aging skin? Did you ever hear that as skin grows older it loses something . . . something goes out of it?

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Skin, science has found, contains certain precious elements. These elements, found in youthful skin of every type, keep it fresh, smooth, attractive, young . . . help guard it when exposed to wind, dust and sun.

The gradual loss of these elements is what makes skin get old looking, dry, rough, unattractive. But scientists give this welcome and all-important message—you can now check the loss of these precious elements.

Now scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap, with its complete freedom from harshness, its ready solubility and its content of precious elements is an unquestionable aid in keeping the skin young looking . . . softly smooth.

Small wonder that this fragrant, white soap has been made the official soap in all the large film studios.

A Younger Looking YOU

SCIENCE tells you that pure, safe Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements all skin must have to look youthful. These elements are found in the skin itself . . . an abundance in fresh, youthful skin, less in skin that is growing old, unlovely.

MILLIONS of women (and men) everywhere confirm Hollywood's experience.

Won't YOU prove the beautifying effect this fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap can have on your skin?

"My skin certainly is ever so much more youthful looking since using it,"—— writes Betty Greene of New York

"When I read that the lovely screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap for their marvelous complexions, I began to use it, too. No wonder they are so enthusiastic. My skin certainly is ever so much more youthful looking since using this nice, white soap. Even within the first few weeks I noticed how much smoother and clearer my skin had become."

WEEK-END FOOD PRICES TO SHOW SOME DECREASES

Grocers Cut Tax Advance from Their Goods.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicago's ependitures for food this week-end will be made without the payment of the state sales tax and with many staple items somewhat reduced in price.

Both independent and chain store groceries and meat markets stopped collecting of sales taxes yesterday upon announcement of the Supreme court decision voiding the state law. Hundreds of grocery men went over their price lists, trimming off the advances which had been made on April 1 to cover the 3 per cent relief fund levy.

Watch Wholesale Prices.

At the same time the food purveyors of the city are watching closely the gradual rise in wholesale commodity prices, which before the summer is past is expected to be reflected in advancing retail food costs. Signing by President Roosevelt of the federal farm bill with its inflationary provisions is expected eventually to cause a rise in the prices of bread, milk, butter, meats, and some other staple items.

Today's prices on these and most other commodities in the food stores are practically unchanged from those of last week-end. The slight increases on such items as butter, cheese, meats and some of the fruits and vegetables are enough to offset the dropping of the sales tax.

Pork and Lamb Advance.

Pork and lamb prices have advanced both in wholesale and retail markets during the week, while beef and veal cuts remain economical purchases.

New in local supplies of vegetables and fruits this week-end are shipments of tomatoes from Texas, cabbage from Mississippi, and pineapples from Cuba. Arkansas strawberries also have come into local markets, lowering prices somewhat.

Canned foods continue to appear on the bargain counters of groceries in Chicago and suburbs, some of them priced the lowest in many years. Breakfast cereals also have been reduced in recent weeks.

On the other hand, the low priced breads, which a few weeks ago were less than five cents a loaf, have almost disappeared from the bakery counters.

YOU CAN ADD VARIED FLAVORS TO TABLE BUTTER

An English cook book, published in London, gives an interesting insight into the possibilities of butter. In this country, butter is just butter, but apparently some of the across the seas people don't think so.

For example, here are six "flavoring butter" recipes, with a foundation of four ounces [¼ cup] of butter, cayenne, salt, and pepper. To this mixture may be added either one ounce of anchovy paste, one ounce of lobster coral, one ounce of grated horseradish, three teaspoonsful of chopped parsley with an equal amount of lemon juice, one ounce shelled shrimps with lemon juice, or one tablespoon cooked, chopped spinach.

In all of these recipes, the ingredients are pounded together, and rubbed through a fine sieve.

PEACH KUCHEN.

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
4 teaspoons butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
6 to 8 peaches
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
¾ cup milk
¼ cup sugar

Make a crust by sifting the flour, baking powder, and salt together. Cut in the butter and add beaten egg and sweet milk to make a soft dough. Turn the dough out into a greased baking tin. Cover with peaches cut into eighths and sprinkle with a little cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a rather quick oven [400 degrees F.] until crust and peaches are both a light brown. Sprinkle with more sugar, keep in the oven five minutes more, and then serve. This amount makes one large cake.

Infant Welfare Society Prepares List.

The Infant Welfare Society of Chicago during the last two or three years has had approximately 25,000 children under its care all the time, providing for them medical and home nursing care. And more than that, that society diligently has attempted to teach the parents of these poor children how best to get the most value out of the limited rations with which they are supplied in order to provide an adequate diet.

Others Cut Food Budget.

Other families, too, who are living on a much reduced food budget, either from necessity or choice, might well profit from the suggestions the nutritionists of this society have to make on adequate meal planning and intelligent marketing. Too often in reducing food costs the tendency is to restrict the foods that appear to cost the most without considering the relative nutritive value. And so, some foods most essential to the diet are often neglected.

In supplying the family with an adequate diet on a small amount of money, or on limited rations, first of all they advise keeping in mind what constitutes an adequate diet.

ORANGE OR TOMATO—One serving.

EGGS—One daily.

Take a hint from the following marketing suggestions if you would keep within your limited food allowance without neglecting any of the food essentials.

Some Effective Hints.

Milk, for instance, the most important item of our market basket, constitutes a large percentage of food cost, and a saving may be made by occasionally substituting diluted unsweetened evaporated milk for the fresh.

Fresh fruits and vegetables should be selected when they are in season. In choosing between fresh and canned fruits or vegetables their respective weights should be compared. Buy by weight whenever possible.

Watch for sales. Large quantity buying is smart if all the food can be used up before there is any spoilage. Cooked cereals are less expensive per serving than the ready-to-serve types, so frequent use of both varieties will save pennies, yet, at the same time, supply variety.

Money will go farther if cheaper cuts of meat are used. They are quite as nutritious as the more expensive cuts, and every bit as tasty when properly prepared. Cheap cuts, however, do not need to mean poor grades of meat. Cuts that have a good deal of waste are no economy.

POTATOES, MILK AND ONIONS--THEY MAKE GOOD SOUP

Potatoes, onions, and milk, all in the same pot, make a filling and appetizing soup. The soup may be used as the main dish for a meal. Here is the recipe:

2½ cups mashed potatoes
2 slices onion
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup cold water
2 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
Pepper

Chop the onion fine, add it to the milk, and heat. Add this mixture to the potatoes and mix thoroughly. Mix the flour with cold water and stir it into the hot soup; then add the salt and pepper and boil for one minute. Strain if necessary and serve.

The other foods suggested for use with this soup for an adequate family meal are whole wheat bread, butter, fried cornmeal mush with sirup, milk for the children, and tea for adults.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The expensive grades of canned fruit cost more than others because of better appearance and added sugar. The standard grades are usually just as useful for salads and fruit cups.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a kick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also had shot him.

INSTALLMENT XI.

HUNTING FEAR.

Jack Fiske flushed as Dinah entered the room, but when he rose and came over to their table there was, Jane thought, something wholly admirable in his bearing. He was in love, and he was very unhappy, but he had a stoic pride in his pain. He was deferential to the girl he loved, but he was in no way humble.

He said good morning to both of them and stood there for a few moments; then he said:

"No!" she answered. "No, thanks! I couldn't possibly."

Lost in her own misery, she gave him no further explanation. He waited a moment; then he said:

"A fellow gave me two passes. I thought maybe——"

"I couldn't possibly!" she said again, with a sort of horror.

"But this is the best place to keep it—right here in my bag where you found it!"

He turned away; then, with an obvious effort:

"Would you care to go, Miss Rosslyn?"

"Love to!" said Jane, without hesitation. "I haven't seen a play for ages."

"Well—thanks," he said and went away.

"Do you mean to say," Dinah asked her friend, "that you could go to a play—now?"

"Glad of the chance," said Jane. "You see, I want—to forget."

That was not going to be easy. The newspapers were making a front page story out of the death of Philip Divine. There was more about the "woman of mystery" who had left her handkerchief there. There was a photo-photograph of the hall where he had lain, and another of him, of that face which Dinah felt would haunt her all her days.

"Murdered Clubman's Mother Speeding from London." A cable had reached his mother just in time for her to catch one of the fast boats. "Several Women to Testify at Inquest—Police Say Crime of Passion." Much was made of the fact that in the dead man's wallet there had been some four hundred dollars in cash. "The house where Broadway's favorite playboy had staged some of his most sensational orgies was practically undisturbed, except that in the ultra-modern kitchen there were signs that some one had been making cocktails. The police are considering the theory that Divine was shot during the course of a party. Four cocktail glasses were on the kitchen table, two of which had been used."

"Jane," said Dinah, close to her friend's ear, as the two girls sat in the subway, "was he really—like that? I mean—bad?"

"O, who's 'bad' and who's 'good'?" answered Jane. "We're not the judges, Dinah. And—let's not talk about it any more. Let's try to forget it if we can."

But it was she who mentioned the subject again a few moments later.

"Remember this, won't you, Dinah? If any one—of course I mean any one with authority—does ask you questions——"

"You mean—the police, Jane?"

"Yes," said Jane, steadily. "You've got to be ready for that, Dinah. If they ask you questions, Dinah, tell the truth—all the truth."

"Not—that you used to know him, Jane?"

"If you're asked. Don't volunteer anything, but answer frankly anything you're asked. And remember this, too, Dinah, that if it comes to the worst—to the very worst—and you're taken away—— O, I might as well put it into words! If we're both arrested there's nothing for you to worry seriously about. There'll be horrible notoriety, that's all. But your reputation is absolutely unblemished; there's nothing whatever against you. And if you're frank there's no one who won't believe your story."

"But what about you?" thought Dinah.

But she did not say it aloud. She knew there was very much that Jane had not told her.

"And I don't care!" she thought. "I don't care how things look. If any one's good in this world it's Jane."

And then and there she made up her mind that, no matter how much she was questioned, she would say nothing, not one word, to involve Jane. She would tell no lies, but she would hold her tongue. She would not tell any one that Jane admitted knowing Philip Divine. She would not tell any one that Jane had left her, had been absent so long in that house.

"I'll tell the truth," she thought. "I'll say how the lights went out, and a man took hold of me, and I was frightened, and fired. I'll say I found the revolver on the sofa—and that's true, too."

She would, and she could, do this, but she could not stifle her sickening dread of the ordeal she saw before her. That man with the dark mustache had recognized her; he would tell the police; she would be traced. She had strange, half childish notions of the methods and powers of the police. She pictured herself in a sort of underground dungeon, with a burly sergeant standing before her thrusting his face close to hers.

"Now, just where did you get that gun, hey? Come clean! Just where did you get that gun?"

She had read somewhere that they asked the same question over and over again for hours, until it became a torture intolerable, until the one questioned broke down utterly.

"Please—let me not break down!" she prayed in her heart. "Please let me be faithful to Jane—like she is to me."

All day that fear haunted her. Mr. Cressett, calling her in to take dictation, was struck by the pallor of her pretty little face and the look in her blue eyes. He felt uncomfortable. It seemed to him almost brutal to make this poor little thing work. That was the effect Dinah was able to produce without effort, without even being aware of it.

All day that long, long day she went in fear. As she was going out to lunch a man standing in the lobby stared at her. And it seemed to her a queer look. She felt sure he was a detective. When a stranger came in to see Mr. Cressett she was certain he had come from the police to make inquiries about her. When she left the office to go home she believed that she was being followed. At any moment she would feel a hand on her shoulder, turn to see a face with cold eyes and a grim smile.

"Come along with me."

Even as she went up the steps of the boarding house she went in sick dread. Perhaps they were waiting for her in there. Perhaps they had searched her room, found that revolver in Jane's bag. Perhaps they had questioned Mrs. Cotter, every one in the house; had somehow found out at what hour she and Jane had returned.

But the dim hall was empty, and the dreary front parlor. She went upstairs and found Jane in their room stopping a run in a stocking.

"Jane!" she cried. "What have you done with it? You mustn't keep it here in this room."

"With what, darling? My automatic? But this is the best place to keep it—right in my bag, where you found it. Don't you see, Dinah, that's the only thing that supports your story."

"I'm not going to tell where I found it. I'm just going to say—on the sofa."

Asserts Garat Puts Gaynor in 2d Place

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 11.—[Special.]—The preview of Fox's new Gaynor singing picture, "Adorable," which is full of fetching tunes, picturesque costumes, Graustarkian romance, and chuckly dialogue lines, left this observer, at least, with the uncheerful reflection that the Fox lot is seeing the decline of its domestic star—Gaynor—coincident with the anticipated rise of its imported star, Lilian Harvey.

Janet was amusing and appealing in many spots, which is natural in view of the fact the story was bought for her and shaped around her personality and looks; and, in general, she gave a rememberable performance, but the truth is that little Gaynor seemed to be overshadowed by three male players, her romantic lead, Henri Garat of France; the prime minister, C. Aubrey Smith, veteran English actor who tries to balk her love affair with Garat, and the prime minister's dumpling faced underling, Herbert Mundin, British comedian.

Incidentally, the story, under its former name, "Princess at Your Order," already has been made abroad with Lilian Harvey and Garat featured. Harvey's first Fox film, "My Lips Betray," is due for previewing in another week. And there is a report that it may give the fans something special to look at and listen to.

Fox probably will go back to the waif kind of rôles for most of little Gaynor's further appearances. She can't be expected to continue doing the Jeanette MacDonald and Chevalier type of story if the studio which employs her has another actress who does that kind of story better. And, after all, nobody ever did the waif rôles any better than Janet in "Seventh Heaven" and "Street Angel," not even Lillian Gish.

Fearful that their Tia Juana, Mexico, marriage of two years ago might come unglued, Marion Sayers and James Murray yesterday had the knot recemented by a judge here.

Engagement of Miss Bucklin Is Announced

On the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Dr. and Mrs. C. Phillip Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Harold H. Swift, and Dr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodward.

The ticket sale for the festival is in charge of Mrs. Ernst Freund.

Tonight the lobby of Mandel hall on the university campus is to be converted into a counterpart of Grauman's Chinese theater in Hollywood for the opening performance of the 29th annual Blackfriars' show, "Gypped in Egypt." The plot draws its inspiration from Prof. James Henry Breasted's current trip to the near east.

Many Luncheons on Calendar.

Beginning today and continuing through Sunday society's calendar is dotted with small luncheon and dinner parties, many of them for out of town guests.

This noon there is the party Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and her daughter, Janet, are having for Miss Frieda Inesport, who has put in an appearance at every smart gathering since she came to star in one of our popular comedies. Miss Fairbank said yesterday she had just received word that Louis Bachner, her Berlin singing master, is coming to America this summer and will be in Chicago during July and August.

Another luncheon this noon . . . select and fashionable . . . is the christening party at the Toy Town tavern on the Enchanted island of A Century of Progress. Mrs. William J. Chalmers will be one of the guests today, but tomorrow she will be the hostess for she is entertaining seven of her own friends in the same dining room following the première performance of "Peter Pan" in the Children's theater.

Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker are giving the bridal dinner for Mrs. Rinaker's daughter, Miss Marjorie Horton, who is to wed Winston Elting at 4:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. The party is to be held in the Rinakers' lovely Victorian house in Lake Forest and will be small, quite in keeping with the wedding. After the wedding rehearsal this afternoon David Hulburd has invited the wedding party to Onwentsia for cocktails.

Another engaged couple, Miss Rosamond Baker and Edgar Stanton Jr., are to be special guests at a luncheon Sunday noon in Lake Forest. Mrs. Joseph C. Belden is entertaining for Miss Baker and Mr. Stanton, who is her nephew.

Many Affairs for Pierre Bourdelles.

One of the most fêted couples come to town recently is M. and Mme. Pierre Bourdelle who are the house guests of Miss Edith Cummings in Lake Forest. Miss Cummings and Miss Eleanor Holden made the acquaintance of the Bourdelles during their visit last winter in Jamaica. M. Bourdelle is the son of Emile Antoine Bourdelle, who was one of the foremost French sculptors during his lifetime and Mme. Bourdelle is the daughter of Mrs. Cecil Baker of New York.

Last night when the Bourdelles were the guests of the Howard Linns at dinner at their Lake Bluff home, M. Bourdelle told of the two enormous murals he is to have in A Century of Progress. Tomorrow evening Miss Cummings is to have a large dinner party for them and on Sunday they will leave Chicago.

The Linns are having house guests of their own this week-end for the Jim Wallaces are arriving tomorrow for a few days. Mr. Linn stayed with the Wallaces last winter while in Palm Beach. Mrs. Linn has invited several of her friends to meet them on Sunday evening.

Alfred Granger will receive a hundred of his friends this afternoon at a tea in Kroch's galleries at 206 North Michigan avenue. The party is in celebration of the publication of Mr. Granger's new book, "Chicago Welcomes You," and is sponsored by the Friends of American Writers. At 5 o'clock Mr. Granger will talk about "The Grandeur of Chicago."

When Dr. Allen D. Albert and Miss Dorothy Schmidt give their talks on "What Kind of a Fair" and "The Enchanted Island," respectively, at 11 o'clock this morning at the Woman's Athletic club, they will have a very sizable audience, for, as Mrs. William N. Pelouze explained yesterday, the club members are demanding to know more and more about A Century of Progress.

Rummage Sale Opens Today.

Mrs. Charles King Corsant who with Dr. Corsant has just taken a two year lease on a lovely Highland Park home will be motoring to town bright and early this morning to be ready for the annual spring rummage sale the woman's division of the Salvation Army is having today and tomorrow at 157 North Wabash avenue.

The response to the appeal for white elephants and clothing of every variety has been amazing, Mrs. Corsant reported yesterday. Everything from a family portrait to junor's outgrown shoes has come into the headquarters the last couple of weeks and among the contributions are some particularly precious pieces given by the board members.

A "regular distribution of courses, including liquid assets," is guaranteed for the dinner revue the Country Club of Evanston is to have tonight through the generous coöperation of some of its members.

Luncheons of College Clubs

The middle of May, it appears, eastern college alumnae turn their thoughts to spring luncheons and annual elections. Tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock the Smith College Club of Chicago will have a party at the Tavern. On Tuesday the local Vassar alumnae will eat luncheon together at the Woman's Athletic club, and the same day Daughters of Wellesley will meet at the Toy Town Tavern on the Enchanted island.

At the Smith luncheon tomorrow Mrs. Norman L. Pritchard is going to tell the latest and most alluring details about the Enchanted isle.

It was all that Col. Ralph H. James could do yesterday to concentrate on affairs of transportation, for a cable came early in the morning announcing the arrival of a new granddaughter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarence Smith. Since her marriage to the attractive young Englishman the former Margaret James has made her home in Surrey, England, which isn't so far from that of her older sister, Mrs. Gordon Stannus who is living in London. Mrs. James sailed several weeks ago to be with her daughter.

The sponsors of the "Streets of Paris" at the World's Fair had such a gay time at their interior decorating party several weeks ago at Charles H. Weber's new café at 2922 Southport avenue that they voted for a second. Tonight George Lytton has invited half a hundred guests for dinner and gayety. Among others there will be Andy Reborí, Wirt Morton, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Laurance H. Armour, Edward A. Cudahy, Frank Chance, Col. Horatio B. Hackett, Leon Mandel, and Weymouth Kirkland.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt has as her house guest Mrs. James Rhodes of New York, who returned with her yesterday by motor from New York. Mrs. Roosevelt had guests at luncheon today while the President also entertained. His guests included the Mexican ambassador, officers of the embassy and Mexican officials.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Rhodes attended the tea given this afternoon by Mrs. Larz Anderson for the members of the canteen organized by Mrs. Roosevelt when the President was assistant secretary of the navy, to work in the railroad yards and at the Union station serving soldiers on the troop trains.

Nursery Benefit.

A benefit spring dance, sponsored by a group of young men and women of St. Philip Benizi parish, will be given tomorrow night at the Parkway hotel, 2100 Lincoln Park West. Proceeds from the dance will be donated to St. Philip's Oak street nursery, which is maintained by the Mantellate Sisters.

Bette Davis Wears Coiffure of Latest Mode

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The willowiness of certain of the moving picture girls is just something to discourage an 140-pound dieter. Toward some of the cinema favorites we're permitted a sister-under-the-skin sympathy. They, too, have to watch what they eat.

But a girl like Bette Davis, for instance, just lays you low at one glance. You could diet 'till the last quart of cream in the world turns to cheese and you still wouldn't have a waistline as neat as hers. This little Davis girl possesses one sweet silhouette. It has all the curved line needed and is exquisitely trim and lean.

We attended a tea the other day at which Miss Bette and an internationally known coiffure artist were the main exhibits. The latter, an excellent showman, never fails to startle, amuse—and instruct. He appeared in a form fitting black patent-leather satin two-piece suit. Blouse, buttoned up tight under the chin, Russian fashion, and form fitting trousers. Black hair, silver-tinged or maybe tinted here and there. But give this gentleman from Paris a beautiful blond lady, as the occasion did give him, a comb, a pair of shears—and what you have in a few minutes of fascinated watching is truly marvelous. He built over the fair model's beautifully coiffed blond locks a "skyscraper" Russian headpiece that was stunning.

Miss Bette was "all hairdressed up for the tea," as she explained, by this artist. She wore an extremely nice arrangement of flat, fairly large dandelion curls, running this way and that across the back, hair dressed fairly high on the neck. Her hair is blond, not by nature, we suspect, but that is neither here nor there. She's very pretty and tres chic. Wore a rust brown suit and chapeau, with a blouse of Alençon lace. Very dainty. Very Bette.

Well, some girls just don't know what luck is. Here's Bette at the tea, commiserating with another young lady on what, do you think? On being taken for younger than she is! Just wait till both those gals are five, ten years older and won't they be yenning for the good old days when no one believed their ages?

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well, I feel—as I imagine I'd feel—if I'd been down investigating a sewer.

All the good, clean talk of the Hays organization to women's clubs and the world at large becomes as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals when one contemplates that this same noble body has approved for popular consumption a reeking study in perversion such as "The Story of Temple Drake."

They do say that the Hays brotherhood hadn't read William Faulkner's book, "Sanctuary," from which the film was adapted, until after they had passed on the picture, and that after they did con its pages, given over to almost lip smacking descriptions of degeneracy, they forbade Paramount to mention the name of the novel in its advertising. One questions timidly—is that tending to business? Was such ignorance excusable?

The story concerns events contingent on an automobile accident that throws the erotic heroine and her drunken companion into the clutches of a band of bootleggers, whose leader is, to use a trite phrase, a moral leper. In the novel this fellow was "Popeye"—a pathologic degenerate. The picture calls him Trigger and makes him a sleek and unscrupulous gunman. While the Jekyll in the heroine recoils from this sinister person, the Hyde is fascinated. . . . Sordid and horrible are ensuing episodes. True to the Faulkner character is a pitiful half-wit who loses his life in defending the girl, and I imagine that physicians and state hospitals are not unfamiliar with anomalies such as the unhappy creature effectively portrayed by Miriam Hopkins. Other rôles are aptly presented. William Gargan as a clean cut young attorney who has loved Temple from childhood is the one refreshing breath of sweet air.

The scenery and the dilapidated old southern mansion where occur the most hideous sequences maintain the author's trend as I remember it, and direction was intelligent. There's no denying that the piece has a snaky fascination.

But it sickens and depresses you. It takes you into the mire with crawling things. Its one inspiring influence—WAS—the magnificent gesture of George Raft in refusing to appear in the rôle played by Jack La Rue.

See you tomorrow!

Pledge Safety for Youth at World's Fair

Civic Leaders Will Keep City Clean.

Protection for young people who visit A Century of Progress was pledged last night by representatives of the police department, the Chicago board of health, organizations for the control of vice, and social and welfare agencies. Plans for organized protective measures were discussed at the annual meeting of the Illinois Social Hygiene league in the Chicago Woman's club.

Miss Elizabeth Webster, acting director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, revealed that headquarters on and off the Fair grounds would be established for the service of individuals in difficulties through exploitation. World's Fair officials have approved a general plan, she said, to provide at least six policewomen on the grounds and to establish information and social service under the direction of the Travelers' Aid society.

"Outside the grounds," Miss Webster continued, "case workers will be on call and information will be available in pamphlet form on approved housing facilities for young people. Church and club women have promised to coöperate. These, with the assurance that public officials will lend their support, lead us to believe that we can promise parents outside Chicago that conditions for young people at the Fair will be as they would wish them."

Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, secretary of the league, who presided, said: "We do not intend to start a crusade, nor to make wholesale arrests of known prostitutes or their aids. Our purpose is to keep vice from becoming flagrant during the exposition. We want to be able to tell the world that Chicago is safe for her own young people and for the young folk who come here from other cities."

Writers Often Disagree on Child Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I've just been looking over some books and magazines on this ever-present subject of ours—parents and children. And these, let me assure you, are books, magazines and newspaper articles by leading writers in this country. Each paragraph following is by a different author or speaker:

"Children do not need more discipline and guidance. They will work out their own discipline from their creative activities," states another.

"It is better for children if their mothers are business or professional women. Then they are fresh for each other and when they meet have more to talk about," says a well known editor.

There are many more conclusions just as conflicting.

The reason for all this variation is that we are all dealing with a subtle and delicate thing when we deal with the human being as represented by childhood, especially childhood in this complicated world of today.

What thinking parents need then is to try diligently to gain insight into the nature and needs of children—their growth and development. Then to use their intelligence and sound common sense in applying these fundamental principles, with a big admixture of love and real interest.

Knitted Things Are Still High Style in Paris

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Knitted knick-knacks are still high style in Paris in spite of the fact that they can be easily made at home. So long as women insist upon them, as they do, they are likely to remain on the Paris program. The kind of knitted things which women wear just now are not, however, made of wool. They are usually done with flax, cotton, or silk, and they come in the giddiest of colors, or in natural string or white.

The knitted slouch hat is popular here, worn with a suit or coat dress, and the model shown here in the sketch on the lower figure is a Gina model that is knitted of natural string in flax. It has a squared crown and a narrow brim that is stiffened around the outer edge by a wire, which may be curved to suit the individual face.

The scarf, made of the same string, may be worn as a sort of muff, as shown, for it has a tube center and two flaring scarf ends. It may be draped around the neck. The sweater blouse that goes with this accessory ensemble is made of fine string colored linen and is knitted into a fine mesh.

At the top is a knitted turban-beret, done in vivid green and pulled forward over the forehead. It is held by two flowers in orange silk with black centers, made of silk floss. The short green knitted scarf has an orange floss flower sewed to the right side above the end, and the left side passes under this flower, making a novel closing. Model Gina.

MINUTE MYSTERY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE REACH OF DEATH.

On his lap lay the gun which had ended the crippled existence of Hiram Bloomfield as he sat in the wheel chair to which he had been confined for ten years. Three sons had managed the farm and cared for their father since the accident which had paralyzed his legs. They said they had all been away at the time of his death.

Nick, the youngest, told Prof. Fordney that upon his return home, as he drove the old Ford into the yard, he heard a shot. Running into the kitchen he found his father sitting near the table, his right side blown away by the shotgun charge. Fordney was informed that nothing in the room had been disturbed.

Nick said his father, believing himself a burden, had once before threatened suicide. The boys had taken it lightly and had joshed him about how he would accomplish it.

"I know how," he retorted, "I'll rest the gun on the table—and pull the trigger!"

Knowing this would be possible, because of his unusually long reach, which Fordney verified, Bill, the eldest, hid the gun in a clothes closet off the kitchen and put the cartridges under some towels in a drawer.

The professor noted the position of the body. "H'mmm," he mused. "I wonder now."

Taking from the dead man's pocket, amongst other things, a paper folder of safety matches he observed all the matches on the left half had been used; only two from the right side were gone!

"Well, that seems to check," he muttered angrily. "That poor, old, helpless man murdered in cold blood!"

WHAT TOLD THE PROFESSOR THE INVALID HAD BEEN MURDERED?

New Merry-Go-Round Bar Opened at Congress Hotel

While the hurdy-gurdy played old favorites of the "Sweet Adeline" era, fifty or more persons found footing at the polished rail of a merry-go-round bar yesterday in the Pompeian room of the Congress hotel. The new bar was opened officially with ceremonies attended by stage and radio performers and writers. This is said to be the second bar of its kind in this country, the other being in New York. It is approximately 20 feet in diameter, and revolves on a circular section of the polished floor.

PHILLIES READY TO TRADE KLEIN TO CUBS, REPORT

Grimm Denies It; Veeck Silent.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 11.—Rumors of the transfer of Chuck Klein, Philadelphia outfielder, to the Chicago Cubs tonight reached the highest pitch in three years, what with the Cubs having retired from baseball playing for days and days and nothing else to think about. The deadline for the transfer is next Monday at midnight, but the latest rumors have it that Chuck will be on the Cub special which leaves for Cincinnati Saturday evening.

CHUCK KLEIN.

Philadelphia sleuths have come out with two reports—one that Stephenson and Jurges and cash will figure in the expected deal, and the other that Root and Babe Herman will be involved in the transaction.

It's the Gold That Glitters.

It is more than likely that both of these deductions are incorrect. If Klein goes to the Cubs it will be through the glitter of gold and the rustle of greenbacks. The Phillies would take a recognized player as a sop to the Philly fans, if there still are Philly fans, but the lure is the dough.

No secret is made of the fact that the Philly bank roll is not what one would describe as a bale of currency. And the Philly treasury suffered no bulge when a Philadelphia bank busted with the Philly money satchel locked in the vault. Under these circumstances the Cub offers, and they are known to have been very heavy, have become increasingly difficult for President Gerry Nugent of the Phils to laugh off. His conscientious efforts to gain the good will of fans who stay away from the little Philly park in droves, are admirable, but will be nothing short of amazing if he again turns down Cub offers for Klein, it is contended.

Nobody Will Talk.

Klein, now generally appraised the best all around ball player alive, is a chattel that the Phillies need badly. If the Philly fans really appreciated their superb star to the point of paying to see him play, it is pointed out, he probably would be a lifetime fixture here. But, observers say, he is too valuable an exhibit to parade before empty benches.

Philadelphia operatives have reported that President Nugent and President Veeck held a lengthy conference with President Heydler of the National league in New York Tuesday. None of the gentlemen has expressed a willingness to discuss what transpired at the conference.

The only affirmation or denial has come from Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs. Grimm's greatest progress since becoming manager of the Cubs, it is said, has been in the rumor denying department.

Grimm's Still First Baseman.

Philadelphia papers tonight, under date of tomorrow, run Grimm's denials of an impending Klein deal under eight column headlines. They do not, however, point out that Grimm, while actively in charge of the team on the field, has no part in inter-club transactions of major import.

Grimm also took occasion to deny that the Cubs were seeking the services of First Baseman Don Hurst of the Phils. Every place Grimm goes somebody tries to make off that the Cubs need a first baseman. Last week in New York it was Sam Leslie, and here it is Don Hurst. On the Pacific Coast it was Camelli of the Sacramento Senators. The Bottomley rumors

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WORLD'S FAIR SPORTS.

MANY sporting events already are scheduled and more will be carded during the period of A Century of Progress, colloquially known as the World's Fair. It is not our opinion that all these ventures will be financially successful. Promoters might as well realize at the start they must offer an attraction or a "show" to a public grown discriminating in its disbursements during the depression.

That visitors in even greater number than originally anticipated will attend the World's Fair seems assured. How much they will spend other than necessary expenses is another question. Moreover, there are many concessions and side shows within the exposition grounds proper to lure extra change from the pokes of these visitors.

The Cubs and White Sox surely will profit by extra attendance. Opportunity to see big leaguers in action will appeal. These big leaguers have been read about in newspapers and "listened about" over the radio. Baseball is our national sport.

Race tracks, in our opinion, will not profit correspondingly. On days when big stake events are contested attendance should be augmented materially, but we doubt whether every day crowds are greatly increased. The type of visitors likely to be here have not the turf complex that city dwellers have because the sport is less well known to them.

Baseball and racing are sports on regular schedule, World's Fair or no World's Fair. For other events whose hope of profit is based largely on expected visitor attendance, success will depend upon the caliber of exhibition offered and the ballyhoo which it is possible to arouse. The Wake has a feeling our visitors will be canny and discriminating in their spending.

"Of this be certain—there is no death,"
The minister had said.

"There is no death"—the new plowed fields
Communed with the Maytime sun.
Barren they seemed, but you knew somehow
Their life had again begun.

The million blades of waving grass
Sang it on every breath;
The buds and the birds on the purple trees
Whispered: "There is no death."

And though the tears keep running down
And the pain in my heart is tight,
I know way down inside of me

HUNTER, WHITE WIN PLACES IN NATIONAL OPEN

Hunter, former British amateur champion, shot 74—72—146, two over par, to lead the field of twelve starters. White, a sophomore at the University of Southern California, finished second with a 76—77—153.

SCHISSLER TO COACH CARDINALS FOR THREE YEARS

Will Sign Today as Pro Football Leader.

Paul Schissler, who recently resigned as head football coach at Oregon State after nine years' service, will sign a contract this afternoon to coach the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football league, according to Dr. David Jones, president of the Cardinals and principal stockholder. The contract will be for three years.

Schissler was an assistant coach at Nebraska for three years and then was football coach at Lombard in 1921, 1922, and 1923. His teams won the Little Nineteen title in all three years.

In 1924 Schissler signed a contract to coach at Oregon State college, then known as Oregon Aggies. That season his team won three games and lost five, but in the following year Oregon State won seven of its nine games and came back in 1926 to win seven out of eight. Southern California, the only eleven to whip Oregon State that year, won, 17 to 7.

The next season showed three victories and three defeats and one tie, a 14 to 14 game with Carnegie Tech. In 1928 one of Oregon State's six victories was a surprise conquest of New York university in New York, 25 to 13. N. Y. U. previously had been undefeated and on the preceding Saturday had beaten Carnegie Tech. This was the year in which the Scots walloped Notre Dame, 27 to 7. Games won and lost since then were: 1929, won 5, lost 4; 1930, won 7, lost 3; 1931, won 6, lost 3, tied 1; 1932, won 4, lost 5.

N. U. Considers Schissler.

The 1932 season was the second in which Oregon State failed to win at least half of the games on its schedule. In nine years, under Schissler, Oregon State won 48 football games, lost 29, and tied 2.

When Glenn Thistlethwaite resigned as football coach at Northwestern prior to the season of 1927 Schissler was among those mentioned for the position which was filled by Dick Hanley, present head coach. Again in 1928 he was considered for the vacancy created at Nebraska when Ernest Bearg resigned, but Schissler preferred to remain on the Pacific coast.

"I believe we have found a man with sufficient experience and background to give the Cardinals the necessary push toward at least a first division berth in the pro league," Dr. Jones said last night discussing Schissler's appointment. "It takes an experienced coach to handle a group of post-graduate players.

He Succeeds Chevigny.

"Nearly a score of coaches, many of them prominent in the field, applied for the job. From these I have chosen Schissler as the best equipped. Our next and equally important task will be to find replacements for our 1932 Cardinal team," Dr. Jones continued. "We were badly handicapped last year by injuries to back field stars. It may be too much to believe we will get all the men we need, but Schissler will be with us for three seasons and in that time I am certain we will reach the top."

WEBB BRINGS BIG BATS TO SOX

Earl Webb, once of the Cubs but more recently a member of the Detroit Tigers, joined the White Sox yesterday. Earl immediately checked over his big bats, with which he hopes to give the Sox some left handed slugging, particularly timely doubles, at which he is adept.

THINGS you may not KNOW About the SOX

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

JIMMY DYKES has been in big league employment since 1917, but retains a few pet superstitions. . . .

When he's the next man at bat he never speaks to the bat boy . . . the boy can talk to him, but Dykes will not answer . . . when going to and from his position at third base, Dykes always steps over the foul lines and not on them . . . picks up all the hair pins he can find . . . regards them as sure base hits . . . throws one out of the collection for each hit he makes.

Al Simmons bars all smoking in his car before a ball game . . . after the game there are no restrictions . . . Al thinks the smoke bothers his eyes, hence endangering his hitting skill . . . never smokes himself . . . he never was a regular with a minor league club and never a bench warmer in the majors.

Mule Haas made his start in baseball at Montclair, N. J., High school . . . played every position except catcher . . . the Sox's leading jester and uses his roommate, Jim Dykes, as his stooge . . . has a weakness for shows . . . leads a life of ease in the winter but at one time helped his father in the plumbing business.

Frank Grube never played football until he entered Lafayette college . . . his father opposed it while the son was in high school. . . . At college he asked for a uniform and after a few days he was given a chance to work at Charley Berry's left end in practice . . . he tore the pet plays of the varsity to pieces . . . Berry was graduated in 1925 so that fall Grube became the regular left end . . . he held it during 1925 and 1926 and attracted almost as much national attention as Berry had before him.

Sam Jones has a funny little habit that reveals itself whenever he is pitching . . . whenever he leaves the bench to start an inning he says to himself "Let's hold 'em." . . . he says it only when his team is ahead.

Ed Durham didn't spend much time preparing himself for a major league berth . . . with no more experience than that gained in school ball he went to the Cotton States league . . . in two seasons he was in the big show . . . at Jackson, Miss., in 1928 he was a battery mate of Bill Dickey, now the Yanks' slugging catcher.

Braves Buy Outfielder from Minneapolis Club

Boston, Mass., May 11.—[Special.]—Joe Mowry, outfielder for whom several major league clubs have been dickering, was purchased today from the Minneapolis team of the American association by the Boston Braves. The deal involved Robert Holland, Braves' outfielder and a pitcher yet to be named, plus "a large sum of money."

Mowry will report in time to play against St. Louis Saturday.

Expect 13 to Face Barrier in Preakness

Pimlico, Md., May 11.—[Special.]—Thirteen thoroughbreds today were listed in the probable field for the $25,000 added Preakness here Saturday. J. E. Hughes's Silent Shot, a mudder, which was one of the late scratches from the Kentucky Derby, is a doubtful starter. He will not go if the track is fast.

Broker's Tip was on the track this morning, but for no serious workout. The Derby winner is in good condition. His chief handicap here may be the shorter route. Broker's Tip is a route horse and likes to come from behind, as he did in the Derby. A mile and a half race like the Belmont stakes would suit him best. The sharp turn at the clubhouse here is apt to put a slow beginner at a disadvantage, as the Preakness is at a mile and three-sixteenths.

Steffen Up on Poppyman.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's trainer has engaged Eugene Steffen to ride Poppyman in the Preakness. He worked well yesterday and is at his best in the mud.

T. P. Hayes, Kentucky breeder and trainer, who has Head Play in charge, is well satisfied with the Preakness favorite's condition. His first workout in the mud yesterday left no bad effects. Head Play refuses to stand in his stall and is always in motion in front of the stable, being led by a boy in the day time when not on the track. He was walked around the track this morning and taken to the paddock.

H. C. Phipps' De Valera was the most recent arrival on the scene. George Tappan led the New York horse around to the stall of Head Play this morning, "just to show Head Play that De Valera is not afraid of him,' as he put it.

Ladysman May Reverse Form.

Ladysman and Pomponius, the W. R. Coe pair which are in seclusion in the Worthington valley, do not work out at the Pimlico track. It was learned from a resident of the "valley" today that all of the population of that garden spot will be at the Preakness, expecting Ladysman to reverse his Derby form and win.

Fight Decisions

At Coulon's club—Curtis Mills beat Joe Reese [4]; Mennen Kumis knocked out Young Fino [3]; James Jenkins and George Williams drew [4]; Jimmy Richards knocked out Arthur Greer [1]; Oren Miller beat Dixie Kid [4].

SOX, SENATORS OPEN 3D PLACE BATTLE TODAY

Hose Climb Though Forced to Remain Idle.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Although they are losing ground every day the White Sox still have hopes of getting in their quota of 154 games before the 1933 race officially closes next Oct. 1.

Yesterday for the ninth time since they began earning pay on April 12 the Sox were kept from going through their scheduled exercises, the cause of the postponement being another downpour which added to the lagoon like appearance of the Comiskey Park outfield. After the boisterous way in which they handled the Yankees the day previous there naturally was some regret among the south siders because they couldn't get another whack at the world champions while the going was good.

But the idleness at least produced a dividend. Without turning a wheel the Sox were boosted into third place by the St. Louis Browns who put another crimp in Washington's pennant aspirations.

Senators Here Today.

The third place occupancy by the Sox either will be strengthened or entirely eliminated this afternoon, granted that the weather man ceases to be an annoyance. The berth is at stake because the enemy will be none other than the Senators themselves. They are scheduled for a three day appearance, but at this time the schedule means nothing. If there is any doubt about this, just remember that 33 American league games already have been prevented by weather. Paul Gregory will pitch against the Senators in the opener.

The rough fashion in which the Sox handled the Yanks in the 10 to 2 affair on Wednesday gave Manager Lew Fonseca the idea that there might be something about taking plenty of batting practice before a battle. The Sox devoted one hour and thirty minutes to that work before taking a look at Vern Gomez, the artful southpaw. They dusted him off effectively inside of two innings. For about ten days prior to that they had hit lightly and won only because of their own good pitching. The success against Gomez will result in similar batting drills.

Assured of Double Attractions.

Even if no more postponements are recorded during the visit of the Senators the Sox are assured enough Sunday double headers to last them for the better part of their home season. About six Sabbath bargains already have been booked.

Putter Is Club That Really Counts in Golf.

(This is the ninth of a series of articles on golf by Tommy Armour, who recently came to Chicago to become professional at the Medinah Country club. Armour has been ranked as one of the world's leading players for nearly a decade.)

BY TOMMY ARMOUR.

But for the fact that we have to putt, golf would have been one of the greatest of all competitive games. The tremendous importance of putting and the luck surrounding that department of the game have made golf very unfair from a competitive angle. Ninety-nine out of a hundred tournaments are won on the putting green. The fellow who wins the odd one is off his game; that is, he is placing the ball so close to the hole with his second shot that he does not need to putt well. As few people do that consistently, he must be temporarily off his game.

Putter Is Club That Counts; Sarazen Proves It.

The great champions are all great putters. Of course, they are all fine drivers and iron players and fine approach shot players but no matter how efficient they may be with these clubs, they must be fine putters. This department of the game has been he cause of heartbreak and sorrow, because I assure you there have been many great players whose careers have been wrecked by that sickening story of three putts.

So, no matter how you work it out, the putter is the club that counts. Gene Sarazen finished the last 28 holes in last year's American open championship in 100 strokes, and yet he will tell you himself that he did not play particularly well. He was in plenty of trouble, but when on the green his putter was like a magic wand. Nearly every time he touched the ball with the putter it went in the hole. That is what it takes to win. You can get a four by hooking your drive, slicing your second, topping your third onto the green and holing a putt, but if you hit a beautiful drive and fine second fifteen feet from the hole and then take three putts you get a five.

Remedies Tried, but None Seemed to Work.

In other words, you can miss three shots and get a four if you hole a

NOW'S TIME TO DEVELOP GAME WITH PRO'S AID

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Opportunity to learn how to play golf free of charge is presented today to all golfers—whether they actually play the game or merely talk it and want to play—with the announcement of THE TRIBUNE golf school, sponsored by the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association. The project is the largest of its kind ever attempted, involving all of the 27 member courses of the association which blanket the Chicago territory.

JOCK HUTCHISON.

The school is designed primarily for potential golfers—men, women, boys, and girls who have never played the game, either because they lacked the price of lessons or because they have dreaded the embarrassment that comes to many beginners while taking lessons.

This is not to say that the school is restricted to novices. Every average golfer in the district is invited to attend classes at the daily fee course most convenient to him, whether he has been playing 10 years or 10 months. The fundamentals of the game will be stressed during the course of the school. These are points which often prevent a golfer from shooting a game to his satisfaction even after years of play.

Competition to End School.

Aside from the actual knowledge gained during the lessons, knowledge which would be too expensive for the average purse if taken individually, there will be other objectives for the students. There will be two graduating exercises at the end of the school—one competition on the basis of form as applied to grip, stance, and swing and one of actual play, an 18 hole medal play tournament. The winners on form will be chosen by a jury composed of five of the game's leading professionals—Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Jock Hutchison of Glen View, and Bob MacDonald.

For the next ten days THE TRIBUNE will publish a coupon with which prospective students may enroll in the school. It should be sent with name, address, age, and the course at which the student wishes to take his lessons to the Golf Editor, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Gets Under Way May 22.

The school will get under way simultaneously at all of the 27 courses with a general outline of the curriculum at 7 p. m. Monday, May 22. Classes in individual groups will start on the following night and continue weekly until each class has taken six lessons. The final judgment on form will be decided on July 5 at a place to be chosen later. The 18 hole medal play tournament, wherein the students will put their lessons into practice, will be held July 8 over a course also to be decided upon later.

There will be more than enough prizes for the school's star pupils. THE TRIBUNE will present eight prizes, a trophy to the winner on form in each of the four classes and a bag and set of clubs to the four victors in the medal play tournament. The association's clubs will give second and third place winners in each of the final competitions a dozen balls. The association also will award to the four winners at each of the 27 courses a playing membership for the balance of the season at the course at which he took his lessons. It will present each of the final winners with playing memberships good for the season at any of the 27 member courses in the district.

Four Classes in School.

The officers of the association are Charles Nash of Vernon, president; Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, vice president; James Loye of Golfmoor, treasurer, and Bill Langford of Mid-City, secretary.

The school will be divided into four classes—men, women, boys, and girls, the latter two classes for those under 18 years of age. The professional at each club will serve as instructor and each club has agreed to hire competent assistants wherever the class becomes too large or unwieldy for one teacher. The school will be concluded after six lessons.

Bring Driver First Night.

Following the general explanation of the course on May 22, when all students are asked to bring a single club, preferably a driver [borrow one if you don't own one], the school will get under way on May 23 with the first class for men. All classes will start at 7 o'clock each night. Men will be taught on Tuesdays, women on Wednesdays, girls on Thursdays, and boys on Fridays. The first lesson will be devoted to the proper grip, stance, and pivot; the second to the back swing and the finish of the swing; the third to the swing in general; the fourth to the use of the mashie; the fifth to chip shots and putting, and the final lesson during the sixth week to a review of the fundamentals taught during the entire course.

AURORA JOCKEY GETS THRILL OF FIRST WINNER

Eddie Brasfield, 16, Boots In Gay Bird.

BY FRENCH LANE.

EDDIE BRASFIELD.

The horse that carried him to victory and sent the chills of excitement up and down his spine, making him so happy he came back to the scales crying, was Gay Bird. Tiny Brasfield brought the heavy headed old rascal up from far back to win the six furlong second race going away.

Until Brasfield pulled the big son of Wrack together in the midstretch Monty Parke had Helen Green far in front and seemed to be an easy winner. All of a sudden Brasfield swung Gay Bird into some solid footing in the muddy track. Gay Bird began running like a Broker's Tip, and Brasfield began riding like a Workman.

Victory Comes Early.

It was all over but the shouting and the collecting and the cheering for a hard riding lad which always follows his first triumph under silks. Gay Bird and Brasfield went on to trim Parke and Helen Green by a length.

The boy is a son of T. C. Brasfield and lives at 146 South 22d avenue in Bellwood. He got his first taste of victory sooner than most kids, for he didn't have any idea of horses or horsemanship when he completed the eighth grade of his school work last June.

Yet a week later, on June 15 of 1932, anxious to get going on something, he had signed up as a stable boy with E. B. Carpenter, an Omaha turfman. He progressed so rapidly in his horsemanship lessons that he was permitted to don silks for the first time on the same Gay Bird earlier in the Aurora season. His second effort brought triumph yesterday.

Most young fellows aspiring to become jockeys seldom get a chance to ride a winner until they have served a three year term as stable boy and exercise rider.

Favorites Win Double.

Despite the presence of the inexperienced Brasfield in the saddle Gay Bird was the favorite. So was Imelda when she won the third race to complete the daily double, which paid off at the low figure of $11.02.

Favorites continued to come in during the muddy, rainy afternoon. About 4,000 racegoers congregated at the track. The heavily backed choices came home one after another and usually by good wide margins, which took a lot of the excitement out of the finishes.

Gay Prince Wins.

The best race on the program was the Aurora Hotel claiming purse. It turned out to be sort of a brother-in-law affair when Gay Prince stayed in front from start to finish. Gay Prince is owned by F. T. Miller and he was ridden by A. Richard, who is Miller's brother-in-law. The Miller family is best known around the Hawthorne track, where F. T. Miller is the "red cap" who sees that the horses reach the post safely.

The rain improved the running strip and the time was much faster than the same sort of horses had been able to run the same distance 24 hours earlier.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Hamburger Jim is rapidly becoming one of the most popular platers at Sportsman's park. This consistent sprinter galloped through the mud and rain to his fourth consecutive victory yesterday in the feature race, a dash of five furlongs, and beat the well regarded Tombereau by five lengths.

In the betting as well as in the running the contest was largely between these two horses, both being quoted at a little less than 2 to 1 at post time.

As the field of six swung into stride, Hamburger Jim flashed to the front and took the rail position, with Wise Mona and Transformation close behind. During the run down the back stretch Tombereau began moving past Transformation and on the lower bend he disposed of Wise Mona. Then he went out to catch Hamburger Jim, but the pacemaker had no difficulty in maintaining a safe lead to the finish. Transformation outfooted the tiring Wise Mona to take third place, six lengths behind Tombereau.

Mutuel tickets on Hamburger Jim were worth $5.45 to win, $2.96 to place, and $3.04 to show. Tombereau paid $2.70 to place and $2.58 to show.

Daily double players holding tickets on Go Easy and Gallopette realized $99.20 on their investment. After being rated two lengths behind the pacemaker, Rural Queen, for five eighths of a mile, Go Easy took the lead in the stretch and had no difficulty drawing away to an advantage of four lengths. Migosh, the favorite, passed the tiring Rural Queen to take second place. Go Easy was second choice in the betting, paying $9 to win.

Gallopette Refuses to Weaken.

The other daily double horse, Gallopette, was not so highly regarded, for she had weakened and finished fifth in the only previous start of the season. But yesterday she took the lead soon after leaving the barrier and had no trouble keeping a safe distance ahead of Fast Life. The odds-on favorite, Greenwald, was never a factor. In the mutuels Gallopette paid $17.78 to win.

The favorite, Chief's Camille, proved much the best of the field of seven which competed in the fourth race, at six and one-half furlongs. Although Jockey McLaren was forced to go to the outside at every turn, Chief's Camille closed a big gap and came on in the stretch to win by a length from Hippias.

MANY A DRIVE WASTED BY POOR WORK ON GREENS

putt, whereas you can only miss one short one on the putting green and take a five, presuming the short one is not for a birdie.

There is a woman of 80 in Australia who has never played a round of golf in her life and never putted a ball until she was seventy. Yet she is backed as a putter against every player who visits the club to which she belongs. So something must be wrong when a frail old woman who never has played the game can be backed against the world's greatest.

In an effort to minimize the tremendously important part putting plays in golf, a lot of remedies have been tried in the last fifty years, from the eight inch cup (first tried out thirty years ago) down to the three inch cup. None of them has seemed to work. I think the most constructive idea was offered by Bernard Darwin, who suggested that the putt be counted as half a stroke. If you give this suggestion a little thought as to how it would work in different situations you will find it a very good one.

This weakness of construction in golf, as a competitive game, has opened a loophole for many bad golfers to excuse their inefficiency. You have only to walk through the locker room at a big tournament to hear the moans of the unfortunates, wailing of their three putt greens. But you seldom hear them mention the long ones they holed.

From the galleries' standpoint the holing of a long putt is the most attractive feature of the game. There is a fascination in watching the little white pellet rolling across a long stretch of greensward and disappearing into the hole. It always brings a roar of applause from the gallery.

Bobby Jones' Long Putt Just Drops In.

I am going to tell you about one of these long putts. In 1929, at the national open in New York, which Bobby Jones finally won after a playoff with Al Espinosa, he came to the last hole needing a four to tie. Jones had a very indifferent drive and a bad second that was fortunate enough to stop between two bunkers at the left of the green. From that position he played a miserable chip shot, leaving himself twelve to fourteen feet from the hole.

It was then, however, that Bobby showed the stuff of which champions are made. Bobby plays golf very quickly. He steps up to the ball, and with hardly any preliminaries wallops it on its way. In a situation like this, when left with a 12 foot putt to tie for the national open, one would have expected him to give a little time to a study of the details. Not the great Robert. As calmly as if he were eating a dish of ice cream he stepped up to the ball, took his stance, placed the putter in front of the ball, glanced at the hole, lifted the putter over the ball, and stroked it smoothly and truly towards the cup. Everybody in that immense crowd thought the putt was short, but it rolled and rolled and hung on the very left hand edge of the hole for what seemed an eternity. Finally it dropped in. It was indeed the stroke of a champion.

The method Jones used in making that putt was practically the same that all good putters used. Almost all players have a different grip and a different stance. Some use flat and some gooseneck, some use upright and some use aluminum putters, but they all use the same methods. They stand absolutely still when stroking the ball, they never hurry the backswing, they all follow through a few inches past where the ball lies, and they all keep their eye on the ball. If you think you are a bad putter, try this. Good golfers do.

Michigan Has a Track Team by the Name of Willis Ward

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Michigan's defense of its Big Ten outdoor track and field championship, if successful, will be the result of the efforts of Willis Ward, sophomore Negro star, more than any other individual.

Ward is conceded the high jump, which he won at the indoor meet with a leap of 6 feet 4 inches, and it is likely he will score heavily in every event in which he is entered. Quite likely he will be the high point man of the meet a week from Saturday at Dyche stadium, but it is almost as certain he must total more than ten points to do so.

Jack Keller, Ohio State's hurdle star, probably will win the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles, thus scoring ten points. Charley Hornbostel of Indiana university is another possible ten pointer with victories in the half mile and mile races.

Ward Is Versatile.

HIGH JUMP—Won at 5 feet 10 inches. Moisio of Michigan was second and Humphrey of Michigan tied for third.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Ward at 22 feet 5½ inches. Schell and Rea of Michigan were second and third respectively.

100 YARD DASH—Won by Ward in 9 7-10 seconds.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Ward was second behind Keller, who was timed in 14 3-10 seconds.

Ward's 18 points should set some kind of record. Perhaps the most startling of his achievements were his victory in the 100 yard dash and his second place in the high hurdles. He beat out Egleston, a team mate, who last year was the best of the Wolverine hurdlers. Egleston finished fourth in the conference high hurdle event.

May Place in Dash.

If Ward can run that fast a week from Saturday he'll press Schiefley of Minnesota and the other hurdlers for second place. Then, if he can get up the same speed in the hundred, he'll have an excellent chance to win this race, for there isn't an outstanding sprinter in the conference, with the possible exception of Thornton of Minnesota, who hasn't hit his stride this season, and Hellmich of Illinois. Don Bennett, Ohio State's double sprint winner last year, is ineligible.

Since 1918 Michigan has won the Big Ten track championship seven times. If the Wolverines repeat this year they will have a record of eight titles in 16 meets since returning to the Big Ten.

Michigan stars who scored last year and now are graduated are: Renwick, Russell, Brooks, Wolfe, Campbell, Roberts, and Glading. Sophomores who have filled in the gaps, in addition to Ward, are: Jack Childs, miler; Boyd Pantlind, hurdler; Kass Kamp, sprinter; Rod Howell, two miler, and Bob Kositchek, javelin thrower.

Quarter Milers Good.

Capt. Charles De Baker, Chill Allen, and Ed Lemen now appear to be the entries in the quarter mile, although Ellerby may run in place of Lemen, who may be used only in the half mile. De Baker, Ellerby, Lemen, and Turner have run the quarter in less than 49 5-10 seconds this season. The quarter always has been a Michigan event, and from this group has come the one mile relay championship team for three successive years.

Turner is the best half miler in the conference outside of Hornbostel of Indiana, and he will have support from Lemen and Howard Braden in this race. Braden was ineligible last year. Bill Howell, Jack Childs, and Dick McManus are the mile entrants. Howell has done the distance in less than 4:19. He placed third in the indoor meet. Childs finished fifth indoors in 4:23.

Bill Hill, runner-up to Brocksmith of Indiana in the two mile run last season and who was unable to place in the indoor meet, is expected to make a comeback. He is capable of running the distance in 9:30 or less. Archie McMillan, who has had alternately good and bad days in practice, may start.

Weak in Field.

Al Blumenfeld and Russell Damm are the shot putters. The former has done more than 44 feet. Damm and Bob Gillilan are working with the discus but neither has given indication that he will rival Booker Brooks' winning effort last season.

Jack Jennett, John Humphrey and Kim Northrup represent the pole vaulting talent, and as only Jennett has gone above 12 feet 3 inches with any consistency there is little likelihood that a place will be won in this event. Northrup and Bob Kositchek are the javelin throwers, but again the necessary distance for qualifying seems to be lacking.

Previous Results

FOLLOWING are the results of the high jump in the Big Ten outdoor track meet last year and the 1933 indoor meet:

OUTDOOR—Won by Shaw, Wis., 6 feet 3 inches; Hoehman, Ohio State, and Moisio, Michigan, tied for second, 6 feet 2 inches; Roberts, Chicago, Murphy, Wis., and Russell, Ohio State, tied for fourth, 6 feet.

INDOOR—Won by Ward, Michigan, 6 feet 4 inches; Olson, Northwestern, second, 6 feet 1 inch; Read, Northwestern, Jolly, Minnesota, and Moisio, Michigan, tied for third, 6 feet.

Beg Your Pardon

Elmer H. Baumgarten, secretary of the American Bowling Congress, in last Sunday's TRIBUNE was erroneously quoted as criticising the conditions of play in the Chicago Randolph league. His criticism applied only to the Chicago Classic league, whose teams, Mr. Baumgarten said, bowled much lower scores in the A. B. C. tournament, on neutral alleys, than they did in regular league play.

Where the article referred to the Milwaukee leagues as using pins weighing less than 3 pounds 6 ounces, it should have read "not less than 3 pounds 6 ounces."

H. W. Lange, president of the Classic league, declared that league rules specify pins of 3 pounds 4 ounces to 3 pounds 6 ounces. The A. B. C. rules, said Mr. Lange, specified 3 pounds as minimum and 3 pounds 6 ounces as maximum. As for "phoney" alleys, Mr. Lange said, "the alleys in question were gone over with a fine tooth comb by the A. B. C. local representatives and pronounced O. K."

In his denial Grimm was quoted as saying: "I am going to go along with the club I have and hope for the best. We did not get off to a good start because we are not hitting."

It Rains at Park.

The Cubs seemed right up against the prospect of actually playing a game with the Phillies today. The day was cloudy but not cold, and it did not seem that the hungriest magnate could have the crust to call off a game under such circumstances. But the officials of the Phillies are an ingenious lot. They engaged a vassal to go atop the grandstand with a sprinkling can. Then, as a dash of mist sifted down on the field, there were shrieks from the magnates. "My Gawd," they sobbed, "it's raining again, which means we'll have to set over the game for a double header Saturday."

The "rain" from off the top of the Phillies' stand was the only rain in town, but it was enough to give the Cubs their fourth successive day off with not a necessary cancellation in the whole lot.

Malone to Face Holley.

Today's subterfuge, coming after the silly manipulations in Brooklyn, was not gracefully received by the Cubs and brought suggestions that while the manufacture of double headers is justified to some extent under current conditions there may have to be some curbing of clubs which are seeking to duck ball games while they are going bad.

If the high powered athletes get their backs up to the wall tomorrow to the extent they have to play a baseball game Pat Malone will oppose Ed Holley, former Cub. Bush and Tinning will pitch in the double header Saturday and Root and Warneke will pitch in Sunday's manufactured double header in Cincinnati.

Phagan Gets His Chance at Purvis Tonight

The Card

Johnny Phagan vs. Jackie Purvis [10].
Kid Irish vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [6].
Hershie Wilson vs. Eddie Smith [4].
Walter Jerz vs. Jackie Parker [4].
Little Pal vs. Al De Rose [4].

Johnny Phagan, 1932 International Golden Gloves welterweight champion, and Jackie Purvis of Indianapolis, Ind., will meet in an eight round bout tonight at the Cicero stadium, 19th street and 52d avenue. A month ago Purvis won a decision over Phagan in a close bout at the Cicero arena. Neither has fought since.

Phagan has been boxing professionally for 10 months. He has engaged in 10 matches. He won seven, three by knockouts, boxing a draw and was defeated twice. The other defeat was by Solly Dukelsky. Prior to facing Purvis for the first time, Johnny scored his three knockouts at the Cicero stadium.

Kid Irish, Benld, Ill., featherweight, who meets Johnny Fitzpatrick in the six round semi-final, has had 40 matches. He won more than two-thirds of them. He knocked out 20 opponents. Joey Kleko, former amateur star, will seek his third professional victory in three starts against Izzy Lubansky in a four round preliminary. Hershie Wilson, Walter Jerz, Little Pal and Biff Bennett are to appear in four other matches at four rounds each.

Negotiations between the Chicago Stadium Operating company and A Century of Progress promotion department to lease Soldiers' field for the Canzoneri-Ross bout were declared definitely off yesterday.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, will begin drills in Chicago about June 4 for the defense of his title against Barney Ross of the west side on June 22. He will stop off here on his return to New York from New Irleans, La., where he faces Battling Shaw in an overweight contest on Sunday afternoon, May 21.

GIRLS' TEAM TO PLAY.

Comiskey Forbids Sox to Catch Ball Off Fair Tower

Louis A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, has forbidden any members of his team to attempt to catch a baseball dropped from the top of the Skyride at A Century of Progress Exposition. The tower tops of the Skyride are the highest points in Chicago. In a letter addressed to the Fair yesterday Comiskey stated the experiment was too risky to take a chance on injuring any of the players.

It was agreed last week that Ted Lyons, White Sox pitcher, would drop the ball from a tower top, 628 feet or sixty-four stories high, to Jimmy Dykes, Al Simmons and Red Kress. Simmons then withdrew and Frank Grube agreed to take his place. The test was to have been made today at 10:30 a. m.

Expert mathematicians have computed that the ball would be traveling 145.88 miles per hour and would strike the player's glove with an impact of 60.7 foot pounds. The catching of the baseball from this height, they explained, would be the same as catching a 60 pound weight dropped one foot.

The Skyride towers are 100 feet higher than the Washington monument from which Gabby Street, St. Louis Cardinal manager, once caught a baseball.

M'MILLEN AND COLEMAN MEET AT WHITE CITY

Jim McMillen and Abie Coleman will meet in the headline bout of Promoter Joe Coffey's first wrestling show at the White City arena tonight. The winner tonight will be given a match with Jim Londos.

The bout, the first contest to be held under the new Illinois athletic commission rulings, will go to a two-hour time limit and a referee's decision in the event of no falls.

One switch has been made in the card. Darna Ostapovich, a Lithuanian, will meet Hans Kampfer instead of Renato Gardini, originally scheduled as Kampfer's foe. Frank Judson and Paul Harper are matched in the opener.

"YOU'LL PAY $200 MORE FOR ROCKNE'S EQUAL!"

THAT'S a big statement, isn't it? You're going to tell me that a lot of big companies are building low-priced cars and that Studebaker can't do anything more than they can do.

Well, have you seen the cars? Have you driven them? Have you compared them with Rockne? I thought old-established names in low-priced cars meant a lot more than they do too, until I took my first ride in a Rockne.

Then I changed my mind, as you'll change yours. They've put something into this Rockne that nobody's been offering except in costlier cars. They've given Rockne simply high price car construction. And that shows in its performance. And its upholstery and interior trim rival cars costing $200 more.

Why I actually wouldn't dare round a corner in any other low-priced car at the speed I use in my Rockne. And there's never a whimper or tremor from Rockne's rubber-floated 70-horsepower six-cylinder engine, no matter what you decide to make it do.

My family says Rockne has it all over the others for comfort and style. They say it doesn't tell our friends how we've slipped in income the way other low-priced cars might.

A man told me about Rockne just as I'm telling you. I wasn't even going to look at Rockne. What a chump I would have been if I hadn't! And how sorry you'll be a year from now if you don't go right over now and see what your Rockne dealer can do for you!

TRY A ROCKNE . . . AND YOU'LL BUY A ROCKNE

Rockne offers you a six-cylinder, 70-horsepower engine floated in live rubber . . . free wheeling, synchronized shift, silent second . . . automatic switch-key starting . . . double-drop, rigid "X" frame . . . one-piece all steel bodies . . . electro-plated pistons . . . contoured upholstery with special coil springs . . . smaller wheels, lower over-all height.

Indians Beat Red Sox, 4-1; Lead League

Cleveland, O., May 11.—(AP)—Mel Harder pitched and batted the Indians into an exclusive claim on first place in the American league today as Cleveland defeated Boston, 4 to 1. The victory gave the Indians a half game lead over the New York Yankees.

Harder drove out a home run and also scored on a two base hit. He held Boston to six hits, two of which were made by Rick Ferrell, who caught his first game for Boston.

Joe Vosmik, Cleveland outfielder, drove out a single after 18 hitless trips to the plate. Score

FATHER TAKES BODY OF SUICIDE GIRL BACK HOME

DR. A. C. ROCHE.

Tries to Control Grief.

In another moment he had broken down and sat with his handkerchief at his eyes, trying to control his grief. But he did not falter again during his recital, and his accents were strong with paternal pride as he told of his daughter's accomplishments.

"She was graduated from the high school at Calumet with second honors," he testified. "She was an honor student also at Northwestern, where she completed her work in 1930. Her mental condition was good—she was always unusually bright."

Beyond the jury and facing the witness stand, Dr. Restell sat with his wife, Mrs. Hortense Coulon Restell, as Policeman Leonard McThail testified that the dentist had admitted intimacies with the dead girl. Dr. Restell betrayed no evidence of nervousness.

Mrs. Restell, small, slender and modishly garbed in a black ensemble with a silver fox scarf about her shoulders, was called to the stand and gave her name and address in a quiet voice, with a slight French accent. She is a dressmaker, she said. Asked what she knew of the circumstances of Miss Roche's death, she told the coroner she had been advised by her attorney, Emmett Byrne, not to testify.

Her complete story, however, was read into the record from the statement she made to police following discovery of the body of the girl in the third floor court of the building, and the subsequent revelation that Miss Roche had been on the verge of such an act on at least one previous occasion.

Building Manager Testifies.

Lawrence V. Range, manager of the Lake-Michigan building, gave the testimony which apparently caused the jury to absolve Dr. Restell of any direct blame in the girl's fall. He had just finished questioning the dentist when Dr. Louis Bremerman called to him that a woman had fallen into the court, Range said.

Interviewed after the verdict was returned, Dr. Restell said, "I am sorry for her family." Dr. Roche's comment was: "I'm convinced my daughter didn't commit suicide."

He was asked whether he would take any further action.

SCOTTSBORO NEGRO SENTENCED TO DEATH STABBED BY HIS PALS

Birmingham, Ala., May 11.—(AP)—Heywood Patterson, one of nine Negroes in the "Scottsboro case" charged with raping two white girls, was stabbed and wounded slightly by two of his co-defendants in the Jefferson county jail today.

Wardens at the jail said Patterson, convicted for the second time at Decatur, Ala., recently and sentenced to death, was stabbed in the side by Andy and Roy Wright as the Negroes were being transferred from the night to day cells.

HIGGINS HEADS BOARD OF LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Joseph F. Higgins, a member of the board of local improvements for two years, was elected vice president yesterday at a meeting at which Martin J. McNally, a new member, was inducted into office. Mr. Higgins is acting head of the department, as the position of president, vacated by Benjamin F. Lindheimer when he became president of the Illinois commerce commission, has not been filled.

Mr. McNally succeeds Ernest Kruetgen, who also has been appointed to the commerce commission by Gov. Horner. Another change in the improvement board was made when Arthur Sullivan was selected attorney for the board to succeed Irwin Rooks. Mr. Rooks resigned to become attorney for the commerce commission, making the third member of the board to go into the commerce commision office.

Former Ald. Frank H. Landmesser yesterday took over the position of commissioner of compensation to which he was named Wednesday by Mayor Kelly.

FEAR GANDHI IS DYING; DOCTOR SPEEDS TO SIDE

POONA, India, May 11.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, visibly weakened in the fourth day of his projected three weeks fast, tonight had to be carried in a stretcher to his bed.

The Nationalist leader was no longer able to do any spinning, an occupation which took up much of the first two days of his fast, which is in protest against treatment of the untouchables, the lowest caste in India.

Mrs. Gandhi Freed.

His personal physician expressed disappointment that the mahatma had declined in health so quickly. Friends have expressed fear that he cannot survive the ordeal. He is 63 years old.

Mrs. Gandhi, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment Feb. 5 because of her participation in the civil disobedience campaign against the government, was released from jail today and hurried to her husband's bedside from Ahmedabad.

Her release was unconditional. She had been imprisoned on charges that she had not paid revenue due the government.

Has Attack of Jaundice.

Dr. Ansari, who attended Gandhi in his previous fast, was urgently summoned to Poona by Mme. Naidu, famouh Hindu poetess and one of the leader's disciples. He is expected here tomorrow to treat an attack of jaundice suffered by Gandhi.

Mme. Naidu informed the physician that Gandhi had spent a bad night.

DR. WEST DIES IN WOODSTOCK FROM FALL OFF HORSE

Dr. Hyde West, 47 years old, prominent physician of Woodstock, died there yesterday of injuries incurred in a fall from his horse Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. West is survived by his widow, Florentine, and a son, Billy, 4 years old.

Seven years ago Dr. West divorced his first wife, Mrs. Ida May West, in Mexico. Judge Edward D. Shurtleff set aside the Mexican decree in McHenry county, but Dr. West in the meanwhile had married his office girl, then Florentine Richter.

Dr. West was born in Louisville, Ky., May 16, 1885. He graduated from Richmond college at Richmond, Va., and the University of Illinois school of medicine. He was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, and was once vice president of the Illinois State Homeopathic society and secretary of the McHenry County Medical society.

Student Falls to Death in Loop Elevator Shaft

Frank B. Gault, 18 years old, a student at Crane junior college, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell down an elevator shaft from the third floor to the basement of the building at 320 South Wabash avenue. He died at St. Luke's hospital. He had gone to the building to visit an uncle, Frank L. Gault, secretary of the Dixie Music House.

Samuel Marx, Father of the Four Comedians, Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., May 11.—[Special.]—Samuel Marx, 72, father of the Four Marx Brothers, stage and screen comedy team, died here today at the home of his son, Arthur [Harpo] Marx, in the Garden of Allah apartments in Hollywood. Death followed a period of illness from kidney trouble.

Sterling, Ill., Manufacturer Dies of Heart Disease

William J. Burleigh, 66 years old, of Sterling, Ill., manufacturer of ornamental iron, died of heart disease last night in his room at the Brevoort hotel. With him at the time was his son, R. A. Burleigh. Mr. Burleigh had come to Chicago on business Wednesday, according to the son.

Minnesota Governor Goes to Hospital for Operation

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—(AP)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson was taken to a hospital here tonight for treatment of an acute attack of appendicitis. His doctor said an operation may be necessary, but that a decision will not be made until tomorrow.

Glad She Lost 22 Lbs. of Fat

"When I started to use Kruschen Salts I weighed 153 and now with my 3rd bottle I weigh 131 pounds without any harm done. Thanks to Kruschen. I like it because it doesn't weaken me as some other salts I had taken. I have lost 3 pounds in one week and haven't starved a single moment." Libbie J. Lahut, Parma, Ohio (Dec. 6, 1932).

Once a day take Kruschen Salts—one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water first thing every morning, and to hasten results avoid fatty meats and go light on starches. Besides losing ugly fat SAFELY you'll gain in health and physical attractiveness—constipation, gas and acidity will cease to bother—you'll feel younger—more active—full of ambition—clear skin—sparkling eyes.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at any drug store in the world—but demand and get Kruschen and if one bottle doesn't joyfully please you—money back.

GEN. CUSTER'S WIDOW LEAVES U. S. WAR RELICS

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—Articles of considerable historical significance are bequeathed to branches of the government in the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon Custer, widow of Gen. George A. Custer. Gen. Custer was slain with all his men by Indians in the battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana. The will was filed for probate today in Surrogates' court, and it disposed of an estate valued at "more than $10,000."

Mrs. Custer's will, which was dated Nov. 18, 1926, left to the United States government "the two flags of truce, one made of a white towel and the other a white handkerchief, which were used on the occasion of the surrender of Gen. Lee at Appomattox, and also a table on which the surrender of Gen. Lee to Gen. Grant was written."

Mrs. Custer directed that these articles remain in the memorial hall of the war department building in Washington where they have been on exhibition for a number of years.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples. If neglected, it can seriously impair health.

Fortunately you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

DR. BUTLER URGES AL SMITH TO RUN FOR MAYOR

New York, May 11.—[Special.]—Nomination of Alfred E. Smith for mayor by both the Democratic and Republican parties was urged tonight by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, at a meeting of the New York county Republican committee.

The surprising suggestion of Dr. Butler, who previously urged abandonment of partisanship in support of President Roosevelt, was received with scattering but generous applause. The majority of the committee members present sat in silent amazement.

Earlier today officers of the Powhatan Democratic club of Washington Heights announced that they already had obtained more than 200,000 signatures asking Mr. Smith to become a candidate.

TRADE UPTURN PICKS UP SPEED IN MANY LINES

All Sections Report Business Quickens.

Reports coming from all parts of the nation indicate that the improvement in business, which began to be noticeable some weeks ago, is continuing at a constantly accelerating rate. Dispatches from many cities tell of more men being put back to work, increases in wages and salaries, and of expanding manufacturing and business activity.

WM. H. LALLEY.

It is stated that the American Woolen company, the leading organization in the woolen industry, is planning to increase its operations to an extent that will require the addition of 15,000 men at the Lawrence mills alone, with proportionate increases at other centers.

The company is said to have orders booked ahead for the next five months. Conditions in the woolen industry are reported to be the best in years and the big leader is said to have withdrawn its offerings from the market.

It is stated that for the first time in over a decade sellers are in the saddle in the wool industry. Woolen yardage is said to have advanced from 10 to 40 cents a yard, compared with prices prevailing a month to six months ago.

Call for Furniture Makers.

J. W. Bergthold, vocational adviser of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, sees an upturn in the furniture industry. The J. L. Chase company has asked him to furnish 12 upholsterers. He selected 12 men whose families are on the county relief rolls. Mr. Bergthold also reports a marked increase in calls in the last 10 days for painters, calciminers, and paper hangers.

The Rudy Furnace company at Dowagiac, Mich., reports unit shipments of furnaces in April were 69 per cent better than in March and 100 per cent better than in April, 1932. The improvement in orders was reported responsible for a 25 per cent step-up in foundry operations.

Continental Motors in Detroit reports 50 per cent increase in production and in sale of automobiles and taxicabs in April over March, with exports gaining, especially in the orient.

The White Motor company announced at Cleveland orders for 12 two ton trucks from the Pilsener Brewing company of Cleveland and for six trucks from the Fidelio Brewing company of New York, the latter order supplementing a previous one for ten trucks. Since April 7 the company has received 100 orders for brewery trucks.

Tire Shipments Increase.

W. H. Lalley, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire company, says the company's shipments to dealers in April were double those in March and were 35 per cent more than April, 1932. Tire shipments last week were reported as the best for about a year and a half.

Harvey S. Firestone Sr. asserts that factories of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company are on a full time basis, with current sales running 50 per cent higher than at this time in 1932. Plants are reported running in four six-hour shifts six days a week.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company's plants at Carterville, Ga., will go on a full time double shift basis on Monday, it is reported. Employment for 2,000 men will be provided. The plants have been operating in two shifts, fifteen hours a week.

The Southern Malleable Iron company of East St. Louis, Ill., announces operations are on a day-and-night basis with business in the last two weeks within 5 per cent of the 1929 average. Employment is reported to have increased 35 per cent. Railroad, automobile and stove company orders caused the increase.

Hosiery Concern Sets Record.

Interstate Hosiery Mills, Inc., of New York report that the volume of business in April, both in dollars and volume, was the greatest in the company's history.

The P. R. Mallory company at Indianapolis has increased pay 25 per cent since April 1.

An improvement in the demand of industry for coal is noted by Appalachian Coals, Inc., marketing agency for a large number of coal companies.

In Maryland, employment increased 5 per cent and pay rolls 4.3 per cent.

Wages of 200 employés of Dresswell Shirts, Inc., in New York and Connecticut have been increased from 7½ to 10 per cent.

CENTRAL ILLINOIS PUBLIC SERVICE EARNS $171,371

Central Illinois Public Service company, largest operating unit of the Middle West Utilities system, earned net income of $171,371 in the first quarter this year, the receivers for the parent company reported yesterday. The net is equivalent to 60 cents a share on the preferred stock outstanding. The company paid a dividend of 50 cents on the preferred shares during the period.

Central Power and Light company reported first quarter net of $188,809. First quarter net profits reported by other units were: Kansas Electric Power, $90,092; Central Power, $23,055; Great Lakes Power, $2,939; Lake Superior District Power, $89,863.

Market Boom Laid to Farm Bill Passage

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Yesterday's whoopee in all markets was attributed chiefly to the senate's passing the farm bill, which, in reality is three bills in one. It authorizes price fixing, mortgage fixing and currency fixing.

Judging by the effect on the markets of the mere promise of currency fixing the other features of the farm bill will not be needed to give the farmer the relief his champions demand for him.

Talk of currency inflation alone has pushed wheat prices up from around 45 cents to 75 cents per bushel in just a few weeks. Other farm products have likewise enjoyed substantial advances.

The average price of hogs at the stock yards yesterday was $4.40 per hundred pounds, compared with $2.80 not long ago. Lambs have risen $1.50 per hundred pounds in three weeks.

Farmer's Return Doubles.

These prices are at the Chicago markets. Subtract freight and handling charges and the rise in prices is even more pronounced. Down on the farm the producer is getting double what he got a few weeks ago.

If the mere promise of inflation has done all this, what can be done by the actual exercise of the inflationary powers granted the President?

The price fixing and mortgage fixing features of the new farm bill may not be needed if the inflation program continues to restore the farmers' purchasing power by such leaps and bounds.

Furthermore, you don't need a government agent in each county to extend the kind of relief given by inflation of currency.

BRITISH PROTEST. WHY?

The British are getting all steamed up about what they call America's "repudiation" of its government bonds. They've even formed a bondholders' protective committee, à la the real estate bondholders.

The reason for this is that the United States treasury the other day refused to honor its pledges to redeem its maturing bonds in gold. All U. S. government bonds contain the "gold clause." British government bonds do not.

Therefore, when the British divorced the pound from gold and paid holders of government bonds in depreciated paper it was not, in their opinion, "repudiation." In America's case, they say, it is repudiation because of the gold clause.

Q.—Why does America refuse to pay British holders of American government bonds in gold?

A.—Because she has refused to pay gold to American holders of such bonds. America has had to abandon the gold standard.

Q.—Why has America had to abandon the gold standard?

A.—Because government expenditures were so great that taxes could not longer be paid except in depreciated money.

Q.—Why were government expenditures so great?

A.—Because America was forced to pay not only the charges on her own world war debt burden but also a large part of the war costs of European nations, due to past scaling down schemes and moratoriums and present defaults.

CHICAGO LEADS RECOVERY

New Yorkers are beginning to discover that there's foundation to the assertion that Chicago will lead the recovery. The following is taken from the daily market letter of Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co. from their New York office:

"A leading New York banker who has just returned from the Chicago area interviewed the heads of forty corporations engaged in a diversified line of industry. Without a single exception, he learned that business was better for each of the forty corporations."

The letter cites the case of a director of a leading American corporation who, interviewed as he left the directors' meeting of his corporation yesterday, said that every salesman of this corporation who made a report for the week ended May 6 reported increased orders.

"A canvass of the New York City textile industry," it continues, "revealed that buying orders entered in a single day virtually swamped the industry and caused a runaway market on the largest daily volume of business ever transacted in this industry's history."

Perhaps there's a lot of substance in this story about postponed buying and pent up demand that we've been listening to for three years. People are demonstrating that they will buy goods on a rising market just as they demonstrated that they would not buy on a declining market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 11.—The resignation of Percy A. Rockefeller from the board of directors of the National City bank was announced today by the bank. The resignation took place a month ago. Ill health was given as the reason for his withdrawal.

A year ago Mr. Rockefeller appeared before the senate committee which was investigating the stock market. At one point in his testimony Mr. Rockefeller, who is a nephew of John D. Rockefeller Sr., described his loss as running into millions when he operated in the market. He said his operations as a short seller, with which the committee was chiefly interested, had netted him $550,000.

Billion Pieces on Clothesline of U.S. Weekly

Approximately 1,057,770,000 pieces of clothing are strung up every week on the clotheslines of American homes equipped with power washers. This is the figure arrived at by the American Washing Machine Manufacturers' association after a nation-wide survey. It includes everything from shirts to rompers, the manufacturers report.

The method of research was not disclosed, but the association states that actual family records were examined in all sections of the country. The average weight of the washing in a family of four is 30 pounds, the study showed.

Estimating the total population of the United States at 125 million, the number of pieces washed per person each week would be more than eight.

Women and others who fear to add to their weight by drinking stouter beverages are expected to quaff the greater part of the 4 per cent (by volume) wine made legal by congress, according to Joseph Triner, Chicago vintner. He says the industry expects to produce 500,000,000 gallons of wine during the coming year. If all is sold the tax of 17 cents a gallon should add around $85,000,000 to the government revenues.

The day of monumental railway stations has gone, in the opinion of W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé. Mr. Black says that the need for economy will force railroads to build only utilitarian buildings in the future, eliminating fancy towers, classical columns, and the like. The new Cincinnati Union station probably is the last of this type, he believes.

Exchange fluctuations are confounding the statisticians attempting to figure the earnings of the Canadian gold mining companies. These concerns are receiving payment for their gold in terms of sterling which recently has been commanding a premium of around 30 per cent in terms of Canadian dollars. About half of this premium disappears in turn when the Canadian funds are remitted to New York. It sounds complex but it works out that the recent exchange fluctuations have resulted in boosting the earnings of these companies in terms of dollars.

A prominent live stock commission man in commenting on the present movement of live stock direct to packers said: "Selling methods come and go in waves. There have been three major waves in the last 50 years. First was the country shipper buyer. Then came the shipping associations that broke the country shipper. This wave ebbed with the coming of direct selling. The last wave is five years old and, I believe, is at its peak, since dissatisfaction in marketing methods is again cropping up. Through it all the open live stock marketing system has stood as a dependable outlet for three-quarters of a century. The next selling wave will be entirely in favor of the open public markets."

How soon after the passage of the farm bill will the secretary of agriculture take action? This is a question frequently heard in the live stock trade. A publicity man for one of the leading packing houses, just back from Washington, where he spent a good deal of time trying to find the answer, believes many bills passed by a confused congress will be rescinded in December. "There is no time in these hectic days for serious consideration by the lawmaker," he remarked. "This summer may be a very unusual and practical thinking by the fall session of congress."

PRIVATE TRUCKS NEW CARRIER SYSTEM THAT CAN'T BE REGULATED

BY H. A. LAIRD.

[Chicago Tribune Traffic Manager.]

In a radio address recently made by Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institute, he emphasized the fact that the United States does not have a national transportation system or a national transportation policy. As a consequence 'we have a great excess of transportation capacity and unnecessarily high transportation charges.c"

Mr. Moulton's cure is to place all transportation agencies on an equal footing as regards to the cost of right of way and taxes thereon and then give the public the advantage of the cheapest form.

"But," say the truckmen, "is this as easy as it sounds?" Barely 6 per cent of the trucks on our highways are common carrier trucks—the balance are either contract or privately owned, principally the latter. It is the inherent right of any citizen to buy a truck or an automobile, if he has the price to pay for it, and to drive it on the highways for which he has paid through taxation. In so doing he eliminates the cost of labor, which is 65 per cent of the total cost of operating a railroad.

Truckmen, who examine transportation conditions as they exist in our rural districts, get an entirely different picture than economists pondering the situation at long distance. They find that Farmer Jones, having twelve hogs to ship to market, calls up Farmer Smith to ask if he is taking his truck into town.

If between them they haven't a complete load they know where to find the balance.

Another neighbor, who has an errand in town, goes along "just for company." On their way they get instructions from another neighbor to get his watch, which is being repaired at a jewelry store, and still another asks that they pick up a grocery bargain he has seen advertised in that morning's TRIBUNE.

This sounds like an entirely local proposition, but nevertheless it forms the backbone of the new transportation system that has been superimposed on the old and which must remain unregulated because it is a return to transportation independence and individuality.

UNION PACIFIC VOTES REGULAR $1.50 DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 11.—Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad company at their meeting here today indicated their expectation of continued improvement in rail traffic and earnings by declaring the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock.

Earnings of the company, which previously had made only one reduction in the quarterly common dividend rate, from $2.25 to $1.50 a share, have not maintained the 1932 level so far this year, but prospects for the next few months have been materially improved by the sharp spurt in industrial operations and a mounting loading trend.

Austin State Bank Plans for Opening Near Decision

Dollar Incurs New Relapse; Sterling Up

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 11.—The dollar had a further sinking spell in foreign exchange today. European currencies improved steadily and closed at or near their highest quotations of the day.

The British pound sterling gained 4⅛ cents to $3.99⅛, French francs rallied 2½ points to 4.63½ cents, Dutch guilders were up 35 points to 47.35 cents, Belgian belgas were up 10 points to 16.40 cents and Swiss francs were 8 points higher at 22.70 cents. At these prices the foreign exchanges showed a recovery of nearly all the losses sustained by them in Tuesday's rally of the dollar. Sterling was within 7 cents of its recent high and French francs about 10 points below their recent record.

The New York Federal Reserve bank's weekly summary of gold movements for the period ended on Wednesday indicated a gain of $77,000. There was an export of $6,100,000 to Norway, which was offset by a corresponding release of earmarked gold.

Dollar Sags in London.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—Moderate early sales from continental and other sources led to a slight cheapening of the American dollar today in a quiet exchange market.

Supporting orders late in the afternoon caused appreciation to $3.95⅛ from an opening rate of $3.95 to the pound. At one time the quotation was 3.96⅞. The dollar closed yesterday at $3.95 and in after hours trading reached $3.93¾.

Financial circles believed the prospects are improving in connection with the world economic conference but the market remained unsettled because of lack of evidence of any actual action regarding devaluation.

Paris Speculation Subsides.

PARIS, May 11.—(AP)—Uncertainty over President Roosevelt's monetary policy and the belief that American authorities would be able to control fluctuations with gold reserves caused a slackening today in American dollar speculations.

The dollar was apathetic in prebourse trading at about 21.60 francs, at which level it closed yesterday. Today the closing quotation was 21.62 francs to the dollar. On Tuesday the close was 22.03 francs.

LLOYDS IS SUED BY RECEIVER OF INSULL COMPANY

Eugene V. R. Thayer, receiver for the Mississippi Valley Utilities company, an Insull subsidiary, yesterday filed suit in the federal district court against Lloyds of London and a group of affiliated underwriters to collect a $200,000 bond they furnished for officials of the utility company.

Samuel Insull Sr., and his brother, Martin J. Insull, were officers of the company. The bill recites that through collusion between Martin and Samuel Insull, the company loaned Martin Insull $170,222. The second count in the bill is that Martin Insull sold the company securities valued at $225,000, with a repurchase option. The securities were highly speculative, the bill says, and are now worthless.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Agricultural commodity prices soared swiftly upward yesterday under the stimulus of the passage of the farm relief bill late Wednesday and the certainty that the crops of winter wheat and rye would be small at best.

Wheat, corn, oats, and rye futures advanced to new high levels for the season; hogs were lifted to the best level since last September, while lard, bellies, and cotton were in new ground for the current crop year.

Trade in grains was enormous at times with a steady flow of large and small sized buying orders coming into the pits from all classes of traders. The highest levels of the day were reached shortly before the close. Selling against offers and profit taking checked the bulge, but substantial net gains were shown on all grains and other commodities.

Wheat Leads Advance.

Wheat and rye futures led the advance in the grain markets. Wheat at the extreme was 3⅝ cents above the finish on Wednesday, while rye was up as much as 5½ cents. Wheat closed with net gains of 2⅜ to 2⅞ cents, the May being 74 cents; July, 75 to 75½ cents; September, 75¾ to 75⅞ cents, and December, 77⅞ to 78 cents.

Little attention was paid to routine news on wheat, and even the surprising strength shown in Liverpool was ignored. The English market gained 1½ to 1⅝ cents for the day. Winnipeg was up 2¼ to 2⅜ cents in Canadian funds, practically keeping pace with the domestic upturn.

Somewhat more favorable crop comments were received from the winter wheat belt. Some messages from the southwest suggested that the government June report would show considerable increase as compared with the 337,000,000 bushels indicated for the entire country as of May 1.

Corn Planting Late.

Heavy and continuous rains over the corn belt have increased apprehension regarding the new crop, which added to the buying furore in this grain. Prices advanced rapidly to the best figures since November, 1931, with the December option, representing the new crop, getting above 50 cents with a maximum upturn of 2½ cents. The close was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of 1⅜ to 2⅛ cents. May corn showed the least gain, finishing at 44½ cents, while July was 46¾ to 46⅞ cents, September 48½ to 48⅝ cents, and December 49¾ to 49⅞ cents.

Rye acted tight throughout the day, especially the May option, which is regarded as largely controlled by a leading eastern operator. The close was 3¾ to 4¾ cents higher, with May finishing at 56¼ cents; July, 56⅝ cents, and September, 55¾ cents. Barley was 1¼ to 1⅜ cents higher, with May at 35½ cents and July 38½ cents. Oats gained 1 to 1¼ cents, with May at 26¼ to 26⅜ cents; July, 26¼ to 26⅜ cents, and September, 26¾ cents at the last.

ADVERTISERS ON RADIO ASK WHO ARE LISTENERS

Washington, D. C., May 11.—(AP)—A plan to secure from radio stations the same type of information regarding their listeners that newspapers give advertisers about their readers was adopted today at the opening session of the annual meeting of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

The radio program adopted calls for development of an independent bureau jointly supported by radio stations, advertisers, and advertising agencies to study radio coverage through signal strength measurements, popularity of programs and number of listeners, to be determined through field surveys.

It also calls for publication of all advertising rates of stations and payment by radio stations of the standard 15 per cent agency commission.

Reserve Banks Not Helping Inflation Rise

Beyond a moderate increase in bank deposits, a slight increase in commercial loans, a 52 million advance in brokers' loans and the dealing out of another paltry 7 million of the new "asset money" the banks of the nation have done nothing during the last week to contribute to the "inflation" markets that have been swirling stock and commodity prices upward to new high levels.

That is the story told by the weekly reports of the federal reserve banks and the member banks in New York and Chicago, released last night. They are for the week ended Wednesday night.

The figures show that what the markets have done they have done on their own. In other words, inflation is still in the traders' heads—not on the books. Most of the advance to date has been on the promise of inflation contained in the farm bill rather than on any substantial expansion of credit or currency.

Money Circulating Drops.

The amount of federal reserve notes in circulation continued to decline, the drop for the week being about 45 million dollars. Despite the seven million dollar increase in "asset money," the total of all money in circulation dropped 62 millions to 5 billion 892 million. This is a billion 646 million under the peak reached March 8.

The twelve reserve banks added nothing to their holdings in United States government bonds, which means that the big government bond buying spree hasn't yet begun.

The total amount of reserve bank credit outstanding, as measured by the holdings of securities and commercial paper by the 12 reserve banks, shrank 94 million dollars during the week. Total gold reserves increased about 6½ millions.

Chicago member banks increased their commercial loans about 11 millions during the week, which is interpreted as a reflection of a moderate increase in business activity in this area. These Chicago banks reduced their holdings of government bonds 16 millions.

Chicago Deposits Rise.

New York member banks, on the other hand, had 21 millions less of commercial loans on Wednesday night than a week before, but they had added 4 millions to their holdings of government bonds.

Chicago reported a 3 million increase in net deposits, but allowing for interbank items a gross increase in deposits of 27 millions was indicated for the week. Indicated increase in gross deposits of New York member banks was about 90 millions.

Member banks in each city increased their reserve balance at the reserve banks substantially and in neither city was there any borrowing from the central banks.

STEEL INDUSTRY OUTPUT RISES TO 36% OF CAPACITY

The steel industry is producing at the current rate of operations around 79,000 tons daily, almost double the average daily output rate for all of last year, says the Daily Metal Trade of Cleveland.

"Steel making operations at midweek stand at 36½ per cent of capacity, a rise of 5½ points since last midweek and the highest level of production activity attained in the industry since June, 1931," says the journal. Chicago is at about 31 per cent.

The Wheeling district leads the country with estimated operations of 70 per cent. Cleveland's operations stand at 54 per cent, the Youngstown district at 43, and Pittsburgh around 23.

BANK OF FRANCE INCREASES GOLD; STUMPS CRITICS

(Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, May 11.—For the second week in succession the gold stocks of the Bank of France show a rise in the weekly statement, thus confounding many critics of the French policy of remaining on the gold standard when the United States abandoned it. It was widely predicted then that French gold would be drained by Great Britain or sent abroad by Frenchmen, thus forcing a French gold embargo.

STOCKS BOIL UP IN A 6 MILLION SHARE SESSION

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 11.—Buying enthusiasm hit a new high on the New York Stock exchange today following the final passage of the farm bill with its inflation rider. More than 6,100,000 shares changed hands in the hectic five hour trading session and prices soared from $1 to $5 in nearly every department.

About 300 prominent issues were boosted to new peaks for the year and some of them set new highs for periods of eighteen months or longer. It was one of the broadest and most vigorous upturns of the whole current inflation movement.

Further weakness in the dollar in terms of foreign exchange and publication of the government's bullish wheat crop report provided additional fuel for the advance. Trade reports from various centers continued to be of an encouraging nature.

Buying Orders Reflect Optimism.

The buying orders came from all over the nation and reflected a growing general belief that that much discussed corner has at last been turned and that business is due to go forward. Apparently the view is shared by the big and little speculators alike, for blocks of shares ranging anywhere from the 100 share minimum to bundles of 10,000 and 15,000 shares in such so-called "rich men's" trading favorites as United States Steel, United Aircraft, and the like were generously mixed throughout the day.

Some of the heaviest blocks of the day came out in the first half hour, having accumulated overnight in response to the impressive performance of the market in the late dealings yesterday.

The first half hour was by far the heaviest of the year in point of business, and had the pace held up it would have made for a 12,000,000 share day. The ticker was jumped six minutes on the opening list and an hour or so later was clattering along some 15 minutes behind floor trading.

Prices Best at Midday.

Prices reached their best levels around midday. Profit taking sales began to bear down on the list in the early afternoon and kept prices shaded a fraction to a point or so from their highs until the close.

Some of the more notable net gains of the day included Allied Chemical, 3¾ points; American Telephone, 1¾; J. I. Case, 1⅜; International Business Machine, 3¼; Ingersoll Rand, 4½; Industrial Rayon, 3⅝; Union Pacific, 5½; Peoples Gas, 4⅜; Owens Illinois Glass, 4; Du Pont, 3¼; Consolidated Gas, 2⅜; and Loose-Wiles Biscuit, 3½ points.

United States Steel crossed 50 for the first time this year before being overtaken by profit takers. Other steel issues also rose vigorously, with Bethlehem, National, and American Rolling Mills all coming in for spirited demand.

The farm stocks were buoyed up with the jump in wheat prices and food issues came in for marked attention, particularly Corn Products, Borden, National Biscuit, and American Sugar.

Railroad shares were among the strongest on the board, nearly all issues of the group reaching new price peaks. Declaration of Union Pacific's regular quarterly dividend was a helpful influence. Utilities were strong, but the gold mining shares, true to custom, had one of their off days.

UTILITY DEFENDS SUBURBAN GAS AND LIGHT RATES

State Commission Hears Cicero Protests.

Sharp differences of opinion on fair rates for gas and electricity in the suburbs were expressed yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission by representatives of the consumers and attorneys for the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

The utility company filed with the commission a financial statement showing its income and expenditures, what it has done to cut costs and reasons for not reducing its rates, as asked in a petition by officials of many of the villages in the territory served by the company.

Attorney Harry J. Dunbaugh, for the company, said the average monthly residential bill for electricity in the suburbs is $3.34. On Monday the same attorney filed a similar answer in behalf of the Commonwealth Edison company, stating that the average electrical bill for Chicago residences is $2.67 a month.

J. A. Huir, president of the Cicero Taxpayers' council, who said he spoke for sixteen Cicero organizations, said he could not understand why rates are higher in the suburbs.

"In Cicero on one side of the street we pay $1.35 per 1,000 cubic feet of gas while on the other side of the street, which is Chicago, the charge is 80 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Mr. Dunbaugh has read a lot of figures which make people dizzy. What we want is a reduction of rates and we expect to have our wants granted."

Replies with Questions.

Attorney Dunbaugh replied that the reason for the difference in rates for Chicago and Cicero would be found in the answers to four questions he put to Mr. Muir, as follows: Why Mr. Muir located in Cicero instead of in Chicago; why Cicero was not annexed to Chicago; what tax rates does Cicero have, and what are the Cicero water rates? The answers were not given.

W. R. Sanborn of the Lehigh Valley company spoke for a group of crushed stone and gravel plants, stating that the "maximum demand charge" by the Public Service company resulted in a 33 per cent increase in electricity costs since 1928. This is a charge based on the highest number of kilowatts used in any thirty minutes during a month.

"This maximum demand charge is a mystery to users," Mr. Sanborn said.

Domes Mines, Ltd., operates in the Porcupine district of Ontario. New discoveries on the company's land had brought estimated reserves up to 1,970,000 tons by May, 1932.

In 1931 the company purchased $1,107,000 of stock [90,000 shares] in a South African gold mining company. An initial dividend of a shilling a share was paid on it in July, 1932.

During the first quarter of 1933 the company milled 136,000 tons and reported a total income, before depreciation, depletion, etc., equal to 87 cents a share. For the first quarter of last year the company milled 133,450 tons and reported total income equal to 55 cents a share.

During 1932 the company milled 536,450 tons. Net income before depletion was $1,996,000, or $2.68 per share. In 1931 milling of 542,600 tons yielded a net income before depletion of $1,491,000, or $1.56 per share. After depletion of $500,000, net would equal $1.04 per share.

The destruction of the old mill by fire in October, 1929, makes any comparison with results in that year and in 1930 unsatisfactory.

On Dec. 31, 1932, cash assets alone amounted to more than $3,700,000, in contrast to total current liabilities of $868,000.

The 953,334 shares of capital stock pay 25 cents a share per quarter. Extra dividend on April 20, 1933, totaled 20 cents, bringing the 1933 total of extras to 30 cents.

Controlled Inflation.

Inflation is a term used to describe a rise in the general price level resulting from reduced value of money. It is an increase in money and credit without an attendant increase in trade.

The price of any commodity is subject to two factors—that affecting a particular commodity [supply and demand] and that affecting the general price level [value of money].

The experience of governments in attempting to control prices of individual commodities has not been very encouraging.

Inflationists believe, however, that a government can control all prices, in a general way, by regulating the value of money. This can be done either by changing the gold security behind the currency or by printing unsecured money.

Where there are no set limits or where set limits are disregarded in reducing gold backing of currency or using the printing press, uncontrolled inflation results. Those who propose "controlled inflation" express the belief that a government can set a limit on its actions in cheapening the value of its currency and stay within that limit.

RAIL EARNINGS FOR APRIL SHOW SHARP UPTURN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 11.—Indications point to a substantial improvement in April railroad results. Several carriers estimate that net earnings from operations will considerably exceed the 1932 results.

In the case of the Illinois Central April net railway operating income will show a material increase over the March net of $722,238 and the net of $721,846 reported for April, 1932. With this upturn, however, the net operating profits will fall somewhat under the month's fixed charges of around $1,400,000. Since the banking holiday traffic of the Illinois Central, in line with that of the railroads as a group, has rebounded sharply and has maintained its peak levels of the year.

North Western Gross Rises.

Preliminary estimates indicate that the April deficit of the New York Central will be considerably less than one-half of that a year ago, amounting to approximately $1,000,000 after charges, against $2,700,000 for April of last year.

Gross earnings of the Chicago and North Western for April will exceed those of March, Fred Sargent, president, said, but the total will be below 1932. A small operating deficit for the month is now indicated, he said. While not predicting a big increase in loadings from this level in the near future, Sargent considers the present upturn as a natural aftermath to the depression influences of the last three years.

Trade Scrap for Rails.

With an eye to conserving liquid assets, the railroads, which have been in the market for steel rails, have been arranging to trade scrap steel with the rail makers in a mutually advantageous transaction.

The order for 9,000 tons of rails recently placed by the New York Central with the United States Steel corporation, was largely paid for on a barter basis, the carrier turning over 30,000 tons of scrap for the finished product. With steel rail quoted at $40 a ton and scrap aroound $12, the 30,000 tons of scrap would be worth $2,600,000, or the cost of 9,000 tons of rail at current prices.

BONDS OF EVERY CLASS KEEP UP FORWARD MARCH

Speculative bonds retained leadership with appreciations of 1 to more than 5 points in heavy trading. Convertible issues and those of companies due to benefit substantially from business improvement were notably strong.

Treasury and other high grade descriptions continued to enjoy a brisk demand, with resultant rising prices. Commercial banks are prominent among institutions known to be filling their portfolios with top rank securities.

The market, having been stimulated by the quick sale of a $5,000,000 state of New Jersey issue, state and municipal liens showed signs of improvement.

PRICES RISE, BUT ARE FAR BELOW FARM BILL GOAL

Grain, live stock, and other farm products have scored tremendous advances in prices in a little over 60 days, but still are far below the average level during the August, 1909, to July, 1914, period, the goal of the farm relief bill.

Taking the average price paid for cash wheat in Chicago as a basis, the latter at the close of the market on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday showed a gain of 26¾ cents a bushel above the price on March 3, the last day of trading preceding the bank holidays. Corn in the meantime has practically doubled in price; oats have advanced 10½ cents; rye, 22 cents per bushel, and barley, 27 cents.

Further Gains Are Goal.

These advances while wiping out part of the disparity which existed as compared with the 1909-'14 average figure received by the producer, must be greatly augmented to bring the price level up to that preceding the war.

In the following table the 1909-'14 average price is that paid to the producer throughout the country as determined by the department of agriculture.

Chicago Prices Higher.

Prices in Chicago are materially above those which would be paid in the country owing to freight and other charges being added. Local statisticians estimate that as much as 30 cents per bushel would have to be added to the country price for wheat to arrive at an approximate comparative figure for Chicago. Comparisons follow:

SOLUTION TO THE REACH OF DEATH

The fact that the shotgun with which he was killed rested on the invalid's knees was definite proof that he had been murdered.

In the first place the recoil of shotgun would have thrown it beyond reach of the dead man.
